

Minority student project underway

By KATHY WINN

Staff Writers

Disadvantaged students of minority groups may find academic and financial assistance and cultural advancement through the A. B. C. project currently in development at De Anza and Foothill.

A. B. C. (Anglo - Black - Chicano) is supported by North Santa Clara County parents who have raised money from individuals in the community. The district will put the funds raised into a special trust account for the project, according to Calvin Flint, district superintendent. The district has already allotted $50,000 for programs aimed at disadvantaged students.

TWO DISTRICT instructors, John Lovas and Jose Coleman, are co-chairman of the program.

Immediate emphasis of the project is on getting Mexican-Americans and Blacks into college and keeping them there. The long-run emphasis would be on directing the colleges in the district toward appreciation and acceptance of the contributions of all minorities and on eliminating any existing institutional racism.

Lovas and Coleman define institutional racism as "any instance in which the structure or procedure of an organization or institution produce discriminatory effects whether or not that was the intention of the structure or procedure."

LOVAS TEACHES English at Foothill and is assistant chairman of the language arts division. He formerly trained as a Peace Corpsman to teach English and has taught English as a second language.

Coleman teaches Spanish at De Anza and is coordinator of the foreign language program. He formerly spent time in Peru on a Fulbright scholarship.

The co-chairmen have visited other colleges where similar projects have been planned — such as College of San Mateo — and have attended conferences which concentrated on the disadvantaged student.

SINCE MOST OF these disadvantaged students find their way into remedial courses and tend to stay there, a new course combining the objectives of four remedial courses has been proposed.

This course, called Study Skills, is designed to provide the student with the minimal skills he requires to compete in the regular academic program. Improvement in reading, writing and speaking skills are stressed.

Study Skills is also designed to expose the student to a "broad spectrum scope of experience related to his role as a member of pluralistic society," according to the report. Course methods would include audio-visual presentations, panels and discussions.

DIAGNOSTIC TESTS aimed at determining the specific problems of each student and attempting to encourage him to develop successful study habits would be included in the course.

The course is now designed to be flexible and change with the different student or class needs.

Financial assistance and gaining a heightened sense of pride for minority group members are other goals of A.B.C.

THE PRESENT financial aids program must be examined and revamped in order to reach all students, according to A.B.C. Loans presently require freshman applicants to have had a "B" average in all high school work, and this requirement frequently passes over disadvantaged students.

The Federal Work Study program now in effect offers little financial aid relief at its salary level of $1.50 per hour for a maximum of 15 hours.

In order to heighten a sense of pride in the minority group students and more thoroughly cover the content of minority

Operation Share needs DA student tutors

This year De Anza College will participate in the Operation Share program.

Operation Share is a program which benefits not only a child in need of tutoring but the students who participate in the program, according to Greg Rios, Share representative at De Anza.

SHARE IS A voluntary tutoring program based on the assumption that a culturally different child can realize his capabilities and potential through attention, warmth and respect.

Participation in the program involves tutoring a child who, although not lacking in basic intelligence, lacks self-confidence and motivation. Tutoring is done on a one-to-one basis two hours a week. The tutoring takes place in the child's home, the idea being to solve the problem where it exists.

The most important of the principles under which Share operates is the "Big Brother/Big Sister" concept. Tutors are asked to take the child on small trips, if possible. This may be something as simple as taking the child to the airport to see the planes landing and taking off, a totally new experience for him, however.

THE BASIC PROBLEM of many of these children is that they need someone to listen to them, someone who will accept them, and someone in whom they can confide, according to Rios.

The children the De Anza College student will be tutoring will live in the Cupertino area. Tutors will work with the child's grammar school teacher.

Students interested in sharing with these children who are in need of help should contact Rios anytime from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays in Adm. 8-11.

That the Pope's recent banning of birth control devices is "the most disastrous document ever produced by any leader, anytime, anywhere in the world" was a point emphasized by Rev. Lester Kinsolving in his lecture, "The Sexual Revolution and the New Morality," Friday at De Anza's Campus Center. Kinsolving feels that the rhythm method of birth control, which he referred to as "Vatican roulette," is unnatural and ineffective.

As soon as a safe, long-term birth control pill is perfected, Kinsolving believes that a law should be passed requiring all girls over the age of ten to take the pill. He also feels that when a vaccination against venereal disease is invented, all babies should be inoculated. When universal use of the pill and venereal disease vaccinations are realities, then trial marriages could be safe and desirable to society, according to Kinsolving.

REV. KINSOLVING IS an Episcopal minister, religious columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, and contributor to the book, "Sex Education and the Teenager."

Kinsolving attacked the "double standard" concerning premarital sex in his lecture. "The wife has to be as pure as driven snow even though he (the husband) was the snow plow!" remarked Kinsolving.

DURING THE question and answer period following the lecture, Kinsolving stated that he feels that Max Rafferty, Republican candidate for senator, is "the most dangerous man since Huey Long." He was particularly critical of Rafferty's banning of the American Dictionary of slang because, in Kinsolving's words, "it contained the same four-letter words that are on every lavatory wall in high schools and grammar schools and in every locker room, male and female, in the state."

Rios to aid Chicanos

"If the Chicanos and Negroes are going to be part of the education system, they will have to have more identities. People have to be made aware of the cultural differences that these two ethnic groups have."

"By becoming aware of these differences the white man will learn to understand and communicate with the minority groups," said Richard Rios, chairman for the Chicano and Negro (Black) student unions on the De Anza campus.

THE STUDENT unions were formed primarily to help members of minority groups get into college and stay to learn. But

The De Anza Black Student Union held its first meeting this week. Rios says that it is a good chance for other Negro students to get together and help each other regain identities that they have been denied all their life.

THROUGH THE UNION, students will have a chance to learn about their ancestral background. They will be enrolled in courses that cater to their desires, such as Negro history taught by a Negro teacher. Or, perhaps, a math class toned down to the pace that they will be able to keep up with instead of for a white middle-class student.

"Enrollment in the caucasian middle-class school is how the trouble began," explained Rios. And enrollment in the Caucasian middle-class community college is how the trouble can be halted or at least curbed.

The minute a Negro or a Chicano is enrolled in a white school his identity begins to be lost in a maze of a different language, different values, manners, gestures, and perhaps sometimes ridicule.

AS HE IS overcoming these difficulties, his classmates are learning about academic subjects. The minority student is always behind other students because of this detriment.

"The unions are open to anyone who is interested in helping minority students get the same chance that other middle-class students started out with," said Rios.

Rios can be found in the administration building in room 8-U. Also, he can be reached on the school phone, extension 278, or his home phone, 243-9043.

Richard Rios

it can develop into more than an educational tool.

"I've considered lecture series with visiting minority group lecturers, social events such as rallies, conventions and even an international day where people of the same nationality get together and build booths where they can show their native dress, food, music, art and anything else they could think of," said Rios.

Propose equal voice plan

Students may soon get an equal voice in choosing De Anza's top officials, according to Dean of Instruction George Willey.

If accepted, a proposal at hand would make two students part of a six-man committee to screen applicants for such top positions as replacements for district superintendent, president of the College and the deans of instruction and students. The other two-thirds of the committee would be comprised of two administrators and two instructors. One of the six would act as chairman for the committee.

THE PROPOSAL MAY be put before the Board of Trustees within a month.

Already endorsed by top student body officers, President DeHart and his cabinet, District Superintendent Calvin C. Flint and Foothill President Hugh Semans, it now awaits approval by executive officers of the faculty. Approval must then be given by the trustees.

Said Willey of his feelings and the administration's, "We're all very enthusiastic about it and think it's great." He felt one important aspect of it was that it "reflects everybody's interest," not only the faculty's and administration's, but the students' also.

THE COMMITTEE would act as a recommending body to the Board of Trustees.

"It will be a recommending body because legally it can't be anything else," Semans explained.

The Board of Trustees always has the last word on administrative appointments, he further explained.

THE ONLY CONCEIVABLE snag to the swift adoption of the proposal would be if faculty officers decide the entire faculty should study the proposal and vote to wait for a time before passing it on with a recommendation.

Talking it out in the first President's Coffee Hour, students and faculty discussed subjects ranging from apathy in student government to the shortage of motorcycle parking places. President A. Robert DeHart (right) initiated the idea to improve the channels between students and administrators. The coffee hour will be held on Thursday mornings at 11:00 in the Cellar. Computers save steps

Registration is really the end. As long as you attend De Anza College. In other places, namely San Jose State, it is only the beginning of a long and often frustrating scramble for classes.

Let's compare two students, one at SJS and the other at De Anza. The first, depending on where his name falls in the alphabet, arrives for registration. If he's three hours early and lucky, maybe there are only 150 people ahead of him in line. He settles down to wait.

The De Anza student probably has a wait in line ahead of him, too, but once registration begins it moves fast and he's probably finished in an hour.

Now we have nothing to compare. The De Anza student, unless there are errors in his program, is finished. He can go to the beach. But back at SJS our student is now, four hours later, scrambling across the campus in an effort to fill his schedule before everyone else.

Every San Jose State student has to spend hours on his own getting his classes. De Anza's computer programming accomplishes the same thing at the rate of 600 day students an hour.

At State, classes are filled on a first come - first served basis. The De Anza student schedules his classes when he sits down and works out a program with his counselor before the next quarter starts.

When the computer begins to process your schedule it uses a method of trial and error to match your requests with the master schedule. The computer will try 4,000 times to complete the schedule.

The computer, then, does the work, saving you hours of frustration and confusion. The end of the alphabet is given the same chance the A's have to set their classes as they request them and new classes are often added to accommodate the students. When you think about it, the computer really does try harder.

Letter to Editor

DAC student graffiti victim

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the person who wrote obscene comments under my small Nixon banner and all over the side of my white car in the student parking lot last Sunday. I can only hope it was some smart junior high or high school brat with a water base paint instead of enamel. The reason I hope it was not a De Anza student is that all the students I've come in contact with in the past year and a quarter have been very thoughtful, level headed people who are more fair than my contemporaries. The young people I have met are the hope of my future, and that of my three boys.

Since my husband and I are in our thirties and have quite a few responsibilities, (like three kids in school, grocery bills, and federal taxes to pay instead dental work my kids need), I have now removed the Nixon sticker. If my car is damaged I will have to quit school for I cannot walk to school in time for a nine o'clock class with a child to see to school at 8:30. We certainly can't afford another car.

To some of you students who wonder why some adults don't want to become involved, the above incident may seem trivial, but it means the difference between groceries and a car to us. Unfortunately we have to work long hours for a living and are not independently wealthy. To the person who wrote on my car I'd only like to say that if people like you are against Nixon he must be better than I thought.

Sincerely,
Ona Jane Dawson

Kinsolving talks; denounces Pope

A series of programs billed as the Friday Night Science Spectaculars will be offered weekly throughout the year.

Under the direction of Thomas M. Gates, coordinator of Community Science Services, the three-part program will offer a planetarium show at 7 p.m., free science films at 8 p.m. and a free observatory viewing from 9 to 11 p.m.

The 1968-69 series of planetarium shows will change monthly. This October's show, entitled "Planetarium on Parade," spotlights the planetarium projector and auxiliary equipment. A preview of what to expect from the most sophisticated audio visual device man has ever invented will be given.

"THE FROZEN GIANTS" will be the November planetarium topic. The strange worlds of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, which lie billions of miles into the unknown, will be explored.

The science film series, created by Lee Bonneau, planetarium manager, will cover topics from atoms to weather. Tonight's film is entitled, "Water, Fountain of Life." Occasionally, lectures and films given by experts in their fields will be presented.

The observatory program, under the direction of Martin Vann, will be flexible, giving attention to such celestial events as meteor showers and eclipses of the moon. Each program will feature unaided eye observation to acquaint the visitor with the seasonal skies, field glass observation, small telescope observation through portable telescopes and viewing of selected objects through the 16-inch telescope under the observatory dome.

A BULLETIN CALLED the "Stargazer" is published every two months and contains information on upcoming programs. It is available without charge in the Community Services office.

Admission into the planetarium show for students is 25 cents.

Man vs. IBM, address mix-up

Another case of man versus machine is responsible for the address mix-up on registration cards.

Wrong addresses on the white cards received Sept. 19 were not designed to confuse the student. It seems that the correct logic was not fed into the computer. Because of this mistake the address of each student was printed on the next student's card.

Alas, the problem was discovered in the check-out line and reported to Data Processing Center.

The cards for the freshmen and sophomores scheduled to pick up their classes on Sept. 20 were then processed and the correct addresses were placed on the cards.

There IS hope

If we are to have a society worthy of our youths' participation we must now create a Congress which will sensitively address itself to our nation's crucial needs. Grayson Taketa, determined to defeat the long-time unresponsive Tenth District incumbent, says:

"We must bring the excluded and neglected into the American family, combat our urgent urban problems, and achieve peace so that we may get to the business of imaginatively creating domestic harmony and international understanding."

"We must search for personal understanding of racial conflicts and seek to fill with understanding that widening canyon that threatens to divide the American society."

"We must have youthful representation to challenge the course of abuse of our human and natural resources we are currently entrenched in, and to break those institutional chains that have made us all captives to day-to-day crises."

The real power of the Nation lies in the hands of the Congress. Are you willing to help make it more responsive to our real needs?

The night Paulson delivered the first of his TV "editorials" brought a flood of 10,000 fan letters. Since then he has presented editorials on firearm restrictions, "Let no man take away our liberties, let's preserve our freedom to kill," and litter, "We suggest state legislation to provide for a woman to come in three times a week to clean our cities."

His performance will be held in the Foothill College Gym at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $2 and are available at the De Anza box office.

What is College Hour?

Lazing on a sunny afternoon, College Hour can be many things. Some, like the boy above, use the free time to inspect the new lawn, while others enjoy De Anza's more scenic delights (below left) during the recreational segment of the hour which features swimming, gymnastics, dance, weight training and field sports. For the more serious minded students, there are a variety of clubs and organizations meeting during the hour. Siniwik members (the "friendly club") hold their first meeting of the year (right), while a few doors away the Christian Fellowship Club gets organized.

Candidate total hits record high

Kris Gomez

Offering "equal representation for all", Kris Gomez makes her stand for the position of freshman class representative.

While attending Lynbrook High, she was vice-president of the Future Business Leaders of America, secretary of the National Forensic League, and treasurer of the National Thespians Association.

At De Anza, Miss Gomez is a member of DASFA, a club being formed for the progress of minority groups on campus. Club membership includes all races and the program is designed to give the students better understanding of the problems they confront socially and on campus.

Concerned with "everyone being represented fairly," Miss Gomez promises "special emphasis on minority groups and the underprivileged. If anyone has a complaint, it will be heard."

Judy Balcom

"Through representation" is the goal of Judy Balcom, running on the freshman ballot.

Serving her senior class at Lynbrook High as a representative, Miss Balcom was also a member of the Legislative Council.

"A direct voice in the government" is her wish for the new students at De Anza. Miss Balcom also feels that she can best provide the freshman class with "efficient and total representation."

Howard Fisher

In order to fulfill the needs of De Anza students through progressive legislation Howard Fisher feels he should be elected.

He believes that he can help the Freshman class by legislating things that have been left to do.

Fisher's qualifications are being in two high school student councils, a member of Junior Statesmen of America, and president of a chess, cycling, and Spanish club.

Bruce Devert

Soph candidate, Bruce Devert wants to have full representation of his class. He feels that a closer working relationship between the faculty, student Council, and the students is needed.

Two years on the Dean's Honor Roll, active leadership in student affairs, and a Corinthian Award at Palo Alto High School are some of Devert's qualifications.

Walt Robinson

Running for the office of freshman representative, Walt Robinson feels "concerned with student government and its functions."

Having held offices in service clubs at Cupertino High, Robinson was also senior class representative.

"This office means very much to me and I ask the freshman class for their support," said Robinson.

A record number of candidates have turned out to run for freshman and sophomore representatives.

Eight freshmen will be on the ballot Monday when elections are held during the day. Only two may be chosen to represent the class.

Only one sophomore representative will be chosen from the four candidates in the race.

Students who plan to vote in Monday's election should make sure that they have their student body cards with them.

Tom Comer

"Lack of communication between student and representative is a hindrance to an efficient and effective government." Believes Tom Comer, freshman candidate.

He also feels that representatives should be more available to students to accept ideas and suggestions. "When the communication problem is solved, then the next step is to make the government more responsive to the feelings of the students," said Comer.

He believes being class representative, president of the House of Representatives, and a member of cabinet for four years, qualifies him as top choice.

Furthermore, Comer took first place in a state speech tournament at Stanford University and attended an honors seminar at Northwestern University.

Comer adds, "I sincerely believe I can help student government through my experience and my ideas. If elected, I propose to work for this government because it is worth working for."

Phillip Russel

Philip Russell is running for sophomore class representative. He was on the Student Council four years in high school and was president of French Club. Russell was not available for further comment by press time.

'Action' students helping minorities

"A sincere interest in the problems of minority groups is the only requirement for membership in DASFA," said the club's organizer Letitia Showen.

DASFA (De Anza Students For Act), newly formed club on campus, meets for the first time Oct. 15 at 1 p.m. in L36.

The club hopes to understand minority group's problems, and thereby find solutions to it. Solutions would come in the form of club projects on and off the campus.

A speaker from Community House in East Palo Alto, Kit Anderton, will begin the club's first meeting with a lecture on "Institutional Racism." Anderton has participated in the Saturday conferences held on the racial question by the Christian ministry.

"Our first move will be to form committees within the club which will find ways for us to educate ourselves on the minority problem. We need to know how to work in the white community," Miss Showen said.

Included in the club's future plans are an Asilomar conference, guest speakers and fund-raising projects.

Advisors for DASFA are Mr. Griese and Mrs. Adams. Mrs. Adams spent part of her summer this year working in Mississippi with community action programs.

Val Sutter

Fremont graduate, Val Sutter rewrote the constitution of the Ski Club while he was its president. He also had the records renovated and updated.

As part of his Political Science major, Sutter wants to include active membership in student government.

He proposes to further the awareness of students at De Anza through his office, if he is elected.

Rosalinda Sosa

Seeking office as representative of the freshman class, Rosalinda Sosa feels that new students on campus should be "better informed."

Miss Sosa believes that as a representative, she could serve as a source of information for students who are strange to the happenings around the college.

A graduate of Sunnyvale High, Miss Sosa was a representative for her senior class. She was also active in Spanish Club and Altruettes, a girl's service club.

Interested in a teaching career, Miss Sosa wishes to become "more involved" with student activities.

Victor Whitmore

"I propose a forum for the Freshman and Sophomore representatives, for problems such as communication and more effectiveness of student government," said Sophomore candidate Victor Whitmore.

His qualifications are head of Model UN at Berkely, a member of National Forensic league and attaining a Degree of Distinction. He feels also that being vice president of Latin Club, and president of IRC at Homestead High helps his qualifications.

Bill Crowl

Bill feels that being a representative at Homestead High and helping in the organizing and promotion of the Mountaineers Club helps to qualify him for the office of Sophomore representative.

A big bell to ring after each of the touchdowns at games and a Selective Service counselor are two of the ideas that Bill has in mind to help De Anza.

"I'll gladly accept any ideas that will be presented to me," said Bill.

cultures in district curriculum, new courses have been proposed by A.B.C. These include histories of minorities, such as African history taught by a black instructor. Literature courses, such as Spanish-American, ethnic art, music and foreign languages are also recommended.

ONE A.B.C. PROGRAM now in effect is a law enforcement career program involving Sunnyvale High School students of Mexican-American descent.

A.B.C. also plans to reach those adults who can't reach the college. Classrooms will be set up in central locations of Mountain View and Sunnyvale to give instruction in the courses the local people want.

Community involvement also would be a vital part of A.B.C. One community program, Interdistrict Advisory Committee would be composed of representatives from the elementary, secondary and junior college districts in the North Santa Clara County area.

Its main purpose would be to assure a continuing integrated program for disadvantaged students by establishing communication between all north county school districts.

THIS QUARTER, A lecture series on "The Brown and White Crisis" will be presented. A conference on "The Mexican-American" was held in cooperation with the Economic Opportunity Commission.

A.B.C. notes "these are grieved and angry voices, but they are not yet leading protests in the streets. They are asking the legitimate agencies and institutions of this society to accommodate them. We still have time to act before we are forced to react. We dare not let this opportunity pass."

Friday Flicks run 'Casablanca,' 'Mockingbird'

This Friday, Oct. 11, the Evening College Student Association will present "To Kill a Mockingbird" and "Casablanca" in Forum 1 at 7:30. Price of admission is 25 cents with a student body card and 50 cents without. ASDAC cards will be honored.

According to Mr. Floren Caldwell, assistant dean of students, the Friday flicks were so popular with students this summer that it was decided to continue them all year.

Poloists take fifth place

Fresh from a consolation win in the Northern California AAU Open Water Polo Tourney last weekend at Foothill, the Dons will battle Santa Ana here today at 3:30. Tomorrow they will face Long Beach at 10:00 and the University of the Pacific at 2:00.

In their opener De Anza lost to the Olympic Clubs' A team by a score of 6-4. The close score proved the Dons to be the toughest opponents of the meet for the tourney winners. With full confidence they came back to outplay the JV's of the University of California 14-8. The afternoon match against Foothill was packed with excitement as the Dons staged a last quarter rally to overcome the Owls 7-4. This was De Anza's first victory over their arch-rivals and put them in fifth place for the tourney.

Council to meet nights

Student Council meetings will be held on Mondays at 7 p.m. in the Student Council chambers of the Campus Center.

Due to a mix-up in scheduling of the council members, there was no time during the day when they could all get together, forcing them into holding evening sessions.

To compensate for the negative effects of the possible inconvenience to students wishing to attend the meetings, Student Body President Harry Jaramillo will have what has been termed "The President's Table." This will allow students to present their views and problems to him. The day and time will be announced.

"I think this new time slot could have many advantages; the most apparent is the council's ability to extend the meeting when and if necessary," Jaramillo said.

Reid Buckley next

The next De Anza public lecture, Nov. 15, will feature Reid Buckley. There is no admission charge, and non-students may attend the lectures.

Pencil drawings shown at FC

"Social Commentary," reflected in 25 pencil drawings by Palo Altan John S. Alcorn, are on display in the Foothill College Library. The show will hang until Oct. 25.

Alcorn is a staff engineer at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center. He holds a B.S. in mechanical engineering from Rice Institute, Houston, Texas.

Stating he has had no formal art training, the artist has had several one-man shows. His work touches on subjects from Detroit automobile designs to his two years' service on a destroyer as a Marine officer.

Alcorn explained he carefully develops each drawing over several months, adding, "I'm always pleased and a little amazed when someone likes my work. I don't draw for fun, it's a form of self-preservation."

Dance to follow Cabrillo game

The Student Activities Committee will be sponsoring a dance following the football game on October 12.

It will be held from 10:30 to 1:00 a.m. in the Campus Center. The admission fee will be 75¢ per student.

De Anza's thinclads trounced Solano in their first home stand of the season. The win came on the new De Anza cross-country track on Regnart Road. Steve Fagundes set the pace for the Don victory with a time of 22:43. Art Rodrigues, Frank Mateos and Dan Horan finished second, third and fourth, respectively, for the Dons in the 16-47 win. (La Voz photo by Dennis Bellman)

Dons spike Solano

By RICK HOEBEE

With dual meet victories over Santa Rosa and Solano, the conference-champ Don mileage-makers appear in good shape to finish high in the Sacramento Invitational tomorrow at 9 a.m.

The meet will draw statewide competition from junior college and college ranks and should prove to be a real test for the De Anza harriers.

Last Saturday, Coach Don Vick's charges literally trounced Solano 16-47 in De Anza's first home meeting on their newly laid out course on the upper end of Regnart Road.

In the Solano skirmish, the Dons placed one, two, three and four at the finish line and ended up with eight out of the first ten spots. Leading the charge was Steve Fagundes with a time of 22:43. Coming in behind Fagundes was Art Rodrigues in second; Frank Mateos; Dan Horan, fourth. Other in the top ten were Glen Gaesser, Gordon Currie, Bruce Karas and Marty Bernstein. Also finishing were Jan Dawson and Mark Price.

Seeing that the Dons overpowered Solano, the coach was asked for a prediction in tomorrow's encounter. Vick understated that he is "taking each meet as it comes . . ." and would rather reserve comment.

"Taking each meet as it comes," is the coach's philosophy, as the Dons will participate in at least six dual meets this fall as sort of "practice sessions" for the Conference Championships on Nov. 8 and the Northern California Championships on Nov. 15. The coach isn't taking each meet lightly because he "wants to make the team's presence known." He adds "we are not in the league to lose."

Cross country is not a slouch sport by any means as the team averages about 40 to 50 miles a week in practice alone. The repertoire includes grass work, speed trials, beach "jogging, road work, with the majority taken up by running in the hills.

The sport is basic devotion and dedication as each runner puts in an effort seven days a week. The glory is not what they are looking for, as fame and fortune are usually at a minimum in this sport.

Each student carries a full load of academic work and is expected to fulfill his duties in the classroom. Coach Vick believes "De Anza exists for its educational value which is enhanced by its athletic program." He adds that the athlete should be given no special consideration academically. School first, and athletics second and only second.

For those interested in the details of cross country competition, the course is usually four miles long with a proliferation of hills, grass and dirt footing, occasional water and hedge barriers. This terrain, if run correctly, should be run at a time of around five minutes a mile. Also, a smattering of guts and determination should be thrown in to help finish the race.

The scoring is done on a place basis, with the team having the least amount of points winning.

ans scored heavily throughout the tourney while goalie Todd Healy protected the Don's score with fine defensive play.

Coach Spears said today's match "will be won by the team who makes the fewest number of mistakes." Santa Ana is rated as one of the top teams in Southern California.

Tomorrow's game against Long Beach should be close as the Dons are being challenged. Their acting coach Rick Decker challenged De Anza's own acting coach George Spear.

The 2 p.m. match with the University of Pacific should also be fairly even.

Gridders upset Lobos; set sights on Cabrillo

After their upset victory over the Monterey Peninsula Lobos last Saturday, the Dons will try to make it two in a row against Cabrillo tomorrow night.

De Anza copped its first victory of the season on a 12 yard field goal by Vince Mok with the score deadlocked at 6-6 in the last period.

The Lobos took the opening kick and made two first downs before the Don defense held and forced the Lobos to punt. The Dons kept possession of the ball for only a few plays and were forced to kick. Both teams continued to exchange the ball during first and second quarters.

Midway through the second quarter the Lobos took the ball on the Don 42 yard line on a blocked punt. Immediately the Lobo quarterback, Dave Stewart, moved the ball up to the 19 yard line through a series of runs and a 31 yard pass to flanker, Frank Sollecito.

On the next play Sollecito got the ball again and took it in for the Lobos only score of the game. Their conversion attempt failed.

The Dons got the ball with a little less than two minutes left in the half. They started a drive on their 30 yard line and moved it to the 45 as quarterback, Larry Lorenz, dropped back to pass, but found his receivers covered and was forced to run with the ball.

On the third play of this series the ball was given to back Ron Salas, who scrambled 45 yards to the Lobo 20 yard line. Lorenz dropped back to pass and hit Bryan Stevens who made a diving catch in the end zone for the TD. The extra point attempt failed and the half ended with the score 6-6.
