Dolls: a cultural tool

By SANDRA SHAFER

For centuries Japanese girls have learned about Japan's history and culture during Ohinamatsuri, the Girls' Dolls Festival celebrated in Japan on March 3.

Wednesday, March 6, a diverse, capacity crowd learned about Japanese history and culture while celebrating Ohinamatsuri at the Japanese Cultural Center here on the Foothill Campus.

According to Michiko Hiramatsu, the Japanese Language instructor at Foothill, families celebrated the dolls' festival (boys have one on May 5) in lieu of birthday parties, so the occasions were made as festive as possible.

Girls learned about the Japanese social hierarchy as they displayed their doll collections, representing the emperor and his court in 11th century costumes, by social hierarchy and learned Japanese social skills as they invited friends to their homes for festive luncheons.

"The food, the colors and peach blossoms, are as important to the festivities as the dolls," Hiramatsu said as she described the significance of each one.

Doll-making is an art in Japan and Keiko Hamano, a San Jose artist who has studied under three different doll-makers in Japan, made two dolls during the luncheon with the help of her apprentice, Yoshiko Watanabe.

Flouridation opponent to speak Friday

By RHONI GILKEY

Wendy Nelder, president of the San Francisco board of supervisors and advocate for eliminating flouridation of the city's water system, will speak to Foothill's Dental Hygiene students, Friday, March 15.

Nelder has taken the first steps to place the issue of removing flouride from San Francisco's water supply on the ballot.

At the same time, a group of doctors and dentists in Santa Clara County want to mandate adding the mineral to the county's predominantly non-flouridated water systems.

"Traditionally, Japanese dolls were made without features, Hiramatsu said. "Japanese art often makes the audience participate. Without features painted on the dolls, children could use their imagination to create the dolls' faces. However, today many artists paint faces on their dolls because of western cultural influences," she said.

Yoko Yoshikawa's complete collection of 15 dolls was on display

Firebugs at Foothill

By VANESSA WALKER

The Foothill College Drama Department will present the play "Firebugs" in the Studio Theatre (A-31). Performances are at 8 p.m., Thursday to Saturday, March 14 to 16.

"Firebugs" is directed by Janis Cortez and produced by Jay Manley. The play was written by the European playwright Max Frisch. The comedy takes place in a small town in Switzerland which is being systematically incinerated by an anonymous pair of devils. The two firebugs are played by Barrie Ryan and Rod Gerber.

Kelly Hudson and Alan Begoun play a middle class couple who are petrified that the two vagabonds who barged into their home just may be arsonists.

Firebugs is an allegory about a careless Everyman who permits evil and destruction to insinuate themselves in his home.

Firebug Rod Gerber chose a modern allegory to explain the play: "It's like taxes; the middle class gets burned."

Other cast members in "Firebugs" are: Alexandra Brodmann, Bob Compani, Rich Curtis, Beverly Crawford Davis, Sami Gabriel, Kennard Gray, Erin Harris, Paul Kuebler, Judith Sorenson, Kelley Smith and Beverly Tucker.

Tickets for "Firebugs" are available from the Foothill Box Office. General admission is $6 and students and seniors pay $5.50.

ASFC election volunteers Teresa Joyce and Richard Milward encourage Aelah Segovia to vote.

Research now easier with Dialog

By SANDRA SHAFER

Foothill's Hubert H. Semans Library has Dialog, an electronic information retrieval system, available for use now so researchers can find information about a topic without relying exclusively on printed indexes.

Diane Smith, a new reference librarian at Foothill, described Dialog during a talk Monday afternoon and said that there are demonstrations Monday, March 11 through Friday, March 15, from noon to 2 p.m.

"Computers have really changed the way information is stored and retrieved," Smith said. "Printed information is being transferred to computer disks while other information, like census records, is being put directly on disks and may never be printed or published."

Once information is stored on computers, people can retrieve it over the telephone by using modems. The material can either be viewed on a computer screen or printed out. (The library doesn't have a computer screen yet.)

Any electronic information retrieval system allows the user fast access to an enormous amount of current data that individual libraries cannot afford to buy or do not have the space to store conventionally.

Smith said that Dialog is one of the oldest and biggest systems in use. It has over 200 data bases that cover almost every conceivable topic from thousands of sources all over the world. It is also the most widely used system in academic libraries.

The system charges the user, in this case the library, according to the amount of time spent online retrieving information. "Dialog is not easy to master. Unless you use it a lot, you just won't be a proficient searcher," Smith said. At Foothill, the researcher fills out a literature search request form and gives it to the librarian who retrieves the information.

This service is free to students and staff. "These electronic search systems are really cost effective," said Richard Sutherland, coordinator of public services. "For example, the Book Review Digest subscriptions can cost hundreds, but a brief electronic search through the same material on Dialog can cost only 56 cents. If a subscription is rarely used, we don't need to buy the printed material, we can just use Dialog and save money," he said.

"If you can't get to one of these scheduled demonstrations, talk to me - we'll work something out," Smith said to the audience.

Relays bring out personal best

By MICHAEL BELEF

Members of the Foothill track and field team presented their personal best at the Golden Gate Conference Relays held at West Valley College, Saturday, March 9.

Linda Mantynen set a new school record, running 3,000 meters in 10:17.1. The old record was 10:28 set by Jacque Lewis in 1984. Mantynen's time is currently the best in the state.

Mantynen said she was real high following her performances Saturday. "I didn't come down until I had to go to work on Sunday," she said. This is her second year with the Foothill track team. "I think the 5,000 will be my best event. I just want to break 18 minutes; ideally I'd like to get a 17:30. The school record is around 18:40."

Becky Van Zant ran the 3,000 meters in 10:29, missing the previous record by one second.

Anne Kendrick won a "very significant" rating on Coach Dwayne "Peanut" Harms' list of top performers. Kendrick ran 800 meters in 2:14.6 in the last leg of the women's sprint medley. In the first leg of the same event, Mary Beth Henke ran an impressive 200 meters in 24.6 seconds.

Andy Mantel achieved the top score in the GGC conference for his javelin throw of 187'11". "He's really making some great gains." Coach Hank Ketels said. "He's our hope in the decathlon." Mantel never vaulted or ran the hurdles before this season, Ketels said, but he has run well in the high hurdles and is steadily improving in the pole vault.

The men were first in the two mile relay, beating second place College of San Mateo by 18 seconds in 7:53.9. Steve Scholz ran first in 1:57.5; Steve Walker 1:57.8; Dave Campbell 1:55.7; and Tod Thomas 2:03.

The following scores are the best in the Golden Gate Conference: women's distance medley 12:25.4 (440-Henke in 58.4; 1,320-Kenrick in 3:42); 4x400 meters (individual time, Henke 58.3); men's sprint medley (individual time, Clarence Williams, 200m in 21.9); men's 4x800m 7:53.8 (individual times: Steve Scholz 1:57.5; Dave Campbell 1:55.7; Steve Walker 1:57.8).

Women's coach Joy Upshaw is pleased with the team's comradery which she described as "unbelievable spirit." Upshaw said all the team members cheered each other on with chants of "Foothill, Foothill" and hand clapping during the meet Saturday.

The match at home against West Valley College, Friday, March 15 could be a tough one for the Foothill women because West Valley has many more women competitors than Foothill. Harms thinks the match will be a close one. Field events begin at 2:30 on the Foothill track field.

Dolls

in the tea room of the Center. These dolls are often handed down from generation to generation with the oldest daughter inheriting her mother's collection and the maternal grandmother responsible for starting the other daughters' collections.

Many collections were destroyed during World War II. One member of the audience said that although her husband's set survived the war, his parents later burned it because it was "too Japanese."

An entire set is expensive and takes time to accumulate, so a child without an entire set is encouraged to place other favorite dolls on display. Small children often put food and drink on the display shelves because they believe the dolls throw a party at night. Then they try to stay awake to see the dolls' revelry.

It all worked last Wednesday. The audience learned something about Japanese culture and history as it participated in a celebration of Ohinamatsuri.

Friends of the Japanese Cultural Center, a non-profit organization of Japanese and American individuals, sponsored the event.

Kurozawa film featured

By JOHN WILEY GARNER

Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in Room F-12 foreign film fanatics can broaden their cinematic horizons and gain a tax write-off at the same time by going to one of the films in the first Japanese Film Festival.

The Japanese Culture Club has put together the festival as a means to enrich the community's awareness of great Japanese films and to raise donations for the Japanese Scholarship Fund through ticket sales.

The festival began last Friday night with 'Sanjuro,' and continues

March 15 with the 1945 film, "They Who Tread on the Tiger's Tail." Both were directed by Japan's internationally famous film director Akira Kurozawa.

"They Who Tread on the Tiger's Tail," one of Kurozawa's first films, represents his screen adaptation of the Kabuki drama, "Kanjinkcho," for the World War II Japanese government. The story takes place during the 12th century and centers around a noble of the Genji clan named Yoshitsune and his attempt to escape the wrath of his brother, the Shogun. His generals attempt to smuggle him out of a captured province by dressing up as Buddhist priests to slip through a border checkpoint.

The satire was finished in 1945, but was not released until 1952 because of the wartime ban by the Japanese and the post-war occupation governments for its emphasis on Japan's feudal period.

The film will be the last of the winter quarter, but the festival will continue Friday, April 12 with the film, "Floating Grass."

Admission to the films is $2 for students and $2.50 for others.

ing No. 3 defeated her opponent 6-1, 6-3 and Kay Bushell who won 6-4, 6-4.

What does the word "chincapin" mean to you?

By RHONI GILKEY & FLAVIA RADDAVERO

Anyone come close? For the definition, turn to page 2, column 5.

(Horticulture):

Chincapin? I have no idea. I would guess it's a fuzzy creature that no one has seen, that's indefinable, although real. But then it could be an exotic flower or something like that.

BRANDON TOMLINSON
(Chemistry):

I have absolutely no idea. It sounds Indian. It sounds like a word that isn't defined — like a greeting — like a "Hello, how are you doing?" Sorry, I just got out of math class and I'm thinking very linearly right now.

ROBERT WARREN
(Computer Science):

It's a town in Northern California. I know I've been to Chincapin, but I don't know where it is exactly. It also means a small crevice, which describes the town.

LORI RENO
(Undeclared):

I don't know what it means, but it sounds like a Japanese festival.

MARGIE BECKER
(Psychology):

Oh please! I really don't know. It sounds like a luxurious chair to me that I can visualize an elegant, prominent woman relaxing in.
