The two incumbents running for the Board of Trustees were voted out of office on Tuesday November 5, making room for three new candidates.

Incumbent, Raymond Bachetti finished fourth in the vote count behind Mary Mason, Dolores Sandoval, and Judith Moss.

Moss who was an administrator with the San Francisco Community College District, and also a former Councilmember and Mayor of Mountain View led the vote count, receiving 20,426 votes. Following close behind was Dolores Sandoval, a former De Anza student. She received a total of 20,357 votes. Sandoval at age 30 is the youngest member on the board. Mary Mason, 55, finished third in the ballot count with 18,922 votes. Mason is a former trustee for the Mountain View-Los Altos Union High School District.

Robert C. Smithwick, one of the founding members of the Foothill-De Anza Board of Trustees was also ousted from his position.

This election was fueled by the recent budget crisis. Bachetti had been endorsed by the Faculty PAC, but voter discontent with the financial situation of the district was strong enough to prevent his re-election.

Election results

Judith Moss	20,426
Dolores Sandoval	20,357
Mary Mason	18,922

Head of Security plans to step down due to health

By Malia Sing
Feature/Arts Editor

After serving the De Anza Community for seven years as Director of Security, Mike Paccioretti is stepping down from his post. High-blood pressure is the culprit.

"I lost weight, took high-blood-pressure pills, and exercised to lower my blood pressure, but it didn't work. My blood pressure went through the roof. So, my wife and I decided that the best thing for me would be to step down."

Since September 23, Paccioretti has been officially classified as Supervisor of Student Officers. Now, Paccioretti continues to wear the hat of Director of Security as well as that of Supervisor of Student Officers. That is because no one has been hired to fill his previous position. Despite the seemingly increased amount of work he is doing, Paccioretti's blood pressure has returned to almost normal levels since

"It's all a matter of saying enough is enough. I've got to stop worrying about everything."
- Mike Paccioretti

he officially stepped down. Paccioretti contributes his healthy status to his new mental attitude. "It's all a matter of saying enough is enough. I've got to stop worrying about everything," said Paccioretti.

Although he won't miss the stress of being first in command, Paccioretti said he will miss being able to lead the unit. "There is pride involved in being a chief," commented Paccioretti. What he won't miss is getting all the calls, not having any days off, and being responsible for the entire department.

Paccioretti's new position will be that of an on-line supervisor to De Anza Security. Paccioretti compares being Supervisor of Student Officers to "being a beat sergeant." Some of the more positive things about stepping down to this position include spending more time outside of the office, performing an active role in security operations, and getting more contact with people.

For Paccioretti, the main benefit of being Supervisor of Student Officers is the increased contact he has with people. "I pride myself in being able to handle almost anyone," said Paccioretti.

In his pre-De Anza days, Paccioretti attended Chabot College and planned to major in accounting. His interest in law enforcement was the result of conversations with a friend about his major.

De Hart starts down the road to recovery

By Orlando Santos
News Editor

De Anza President, Robert De Hart after having surgery to remove a brain tumor, stated in letter that he is on his way to recovery. "My doctors tell me I have an excellent recovery to date, and my own experience with three past surgeries validates their statement to me," said De Hart.

De Hart stated in his letter that the operation left him without any hearing in his left ear, but he is otherwise doing fine.

De Hart said that he would not return to his official duties until after his recovery is complete, which is expected to be around December. At that time he plans to attend athletic events and student concerts.

Teacher Appreciation proposal defeated

By Malia Sing
Feature/Arts Editor

After a heated debate by the members of De Anza Associated Student Body Government at Monday's meeting, the proposal for a Teacher Appreciation Program was defeated.

During the meeting, Teo King, DASB Vice President of Finance, led the debate against TAP, and said, "I'm in favor of a teacher appreciation program, I'm just not sure this is the one." DASB Senator Hilary Cole agreed with King and said, "Maybe the way to show appreciation for teachers is to write letters in favor of their tenure."

TAP was originally presented to the DASB Finance Committee with a proposed yearly budget of $2,200 and was rejected. Financial revisions by the TAP Committee led the DASB Finance Committee to approve the allocation of $1,475 to the program, pending DASB Senate approval, (which it did not receive). Immediate financial support of TAP was received through

"I'm in favor of a teacher appreciation program. I'm just not sure this is the one."

-Teo King

the efforts of John Cagnetta and the Activities Office, who contributed $500 to the cause.

The defunct TAP program would have utilized the $1,475 allocation throughout the year, showing appreciation for teachers each quarter. This quarter TAP was scheduled to celebrate Teacher Appreciation Week during Nov. 25-27, by hanging a banner in the faculty mailroom and giving out fresh apples to 900 teachers with TAP stickers attached. Because of the Activities Office contribution, TAP will still be able to go ahead with those plans.

Other items on TAP's agenda that may be cut due to lack of funds are: free tickets to the De Anza Spring Ball that cost $25 a piece; printing of "appreciation" flyers for teachers; complimentary pens and paperweights. DASB Senator and President of the TAP Committee, Charles Huang feels that the reason TAP was not passed was that, "Not enough senators had all of the information about TAP, and I wasn't able to be at the meeting to give it to them."

The failed TAP motion is considered a dead issue by DASB and cannot be voted on again, as is. However, having an appreciation program for teachers is not out of the question.

A new proposal could reintroduce the program to DASB. Huang, said that a proposal is scheduled to happen in two weeks. The TAP Committee will meet on Nov. 12 to discuss their options.

VOICE OF LA VOZ

Faculty won't get apples after all

It's been a long time coming, but it seems that the De Anza Student Body Government (DASB) finally realizes the severeness of financial problems this college faces. On Monday, after a heated debate, DASB rejected a proposal from Senator Charles Huang that would have allocated $1475 to the Teacher Awareness Program (for details, please turn to the cover page.)

In more ways than one, this vote was a breakthrough. The program, like so many others circulating through DASB, had good intentions but no feeling for the situation all of us are in. It had "bad logic" written all over it.

To recognize our distinguished teachers (and by the way, aren't they called instructors?), people from the TAP committee wanted to put up a banner and give them all plastic pens and paperweights. But that's not all. Get ready for this one, folks. The TAP committee wanted to spend $300 on 900 apples and 900 stickers, and as Executive Vice President Teo King put it, "then paste those stickers on those apples." In all honesty, DASB was not asked to pay for the craftsmanship in that task.

The scary part is, the proposal almost passed. Late Saturday night, it appeared there would be only two votes opposing the move. Frustrated, one of the two told La Voz that at that point he was ready to resign from DASB. "I did all the lobbying in the world, explained the reasons why this was a bad proposal, but still couldn't get more than two votes."

On Friday, Charles Huang couldn't even calculate the total costs. La Voz has learned that one Senator said: "God damn it, just give us a figure and we'll pass it." In fact, supporters of the proposal could come up with only arguments: a) It was a nice idea, and b) They (TAP committee) worked hard. With De Anza's financial crisis, neither one can hold ground.

And the bottom line is, the proposal was silly, to say the least. As Teo King put it, during the Senate debate: "I talked to a dear friend of mine (a supporter of the proposal) and his wife, who is a teacher. She told me that there are better ways to recognize teachers, than to give them apples with little labels on them." Listen to the "dear friend's" wife.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

La Voz should edit all letters it prints

Editor,

I would like to rebuttal the letter to the editor your paper printed October 10, 1991, "What's really wrong about De Anza." I think that Mr. Britton's letter could have been edited or proofed, what ever the newspaper term may be, more efficiently. I thought "La Voz" was really created first to be a spirited school paper and second an informational source of events that occur on and off campus which would be beneficial to De Anza's students and staff. Unfortunately, it lacked both October 10, 1991.

I know Mr. Britton has rights under the First Amendment of the Constitution to freedom of Speech. But, he exploited that right by calling Chauncey a fag in print especially since Chauncey's sexual life is his own PRIVATE business. What is even more disturbing is Mr. Britton's remarks about Chauncey's so-called sexual preference had no real bearing or significance to his letter about his grievances with De Anza. Mr. Britton should be held libel for his actions.

I'm sure Mr. Britton is not the only student who finds these financial times difficult in our school. We all have been effected one way or another. Chauncey is also one person, who along with others in the career center department are trying their best to serve all 27,000 of us students in a timely and efficient manner.

Mr. Britton must realize we all are victims of this budget bashing. Our school's financial standings have taken a toll on all of us on campus. We should all remember this is still our school - with or without a healthy budget. So, instead of adding to the frustration by responding negatively to those situations we come across, why not try and take on a more positive outlook. Let's all remember our school is still number one; let's not turn it into the forgotten one.

Gays' percentages

Editor,

I do not wish to enter the dispute between Editor Vlad Olic and reader Steven Hays as to whether additional legislation is needed to protect the civil rights of homosexuals. I should like to raise a question with Mr. Hays about his statement that "it is a fact that 10% of the population is gay." I would like to know where he found the data which establishes this as a fact.

When Time magazine made the same statement two years ago, I asked them about their source. They acknowledged that it was a Kinsey report that both they and I knew was invalid. They then referred me to an anthropologist at Emory University who also could produce no data. The only valid data I have seen is from the University of Chicago which placed the number of homosexuals at just over one percent. Let me assure Mr. Hays that one percent are also entitled to their civil rights. The data is important for other sociometric reasons and I should like to know his source.

Students' apathy is the problem at DAC

Editor,

Every year DASB allocates monies toward student oriented programs. Within your Student Council, there are five functioning Internal Committees, also funded by DASB. One of the five committees works towards the sole purpose of communicating ideas and information throughout our campus.

The idea alone, of the Sweatshirt Project, had been circulating through the Committee since the beginning of the year, and for the past five weeks the idea was posted, debated upon, and finally passed. (Location of posting: lower level of Hinson Campus Center, across from DASB offices, on the wall, next to the huge yellow on black lettering stating COMMUNICATIONS.)

I can honestly state that nothing

hurts me more than students who fail to ask their representatives on issues that effect them. This posting location is used ideally to inform students on student government issues, and encourage student involvement.

I guess, I too have some questions for the concerned student of the Grapevine. Out of the circulating $770,000, why did less than $300 interest you? Now that you are aware of the DASB information wall in the Hinson Campus Center, will you read it? Did you vote during DASB elections for the year 1991-92? And last, would you like to join the DASB Senate and help cut down on student apathy?

Sandra C. Madrigal,
DASB President

Looking for victims of sexual assault

Editor,

During the past year, the press has focused attention on the experiences of women who have been sexually assaulted. This attention is good because it makes us all more aware of the experiences of sexual assault survivors, but it also demonstrates that there is a significant gap to be filled. Few women who enter the legal system know what to expect.

It is time this information gap is filled, and it is time we have our input. During the next two years, I will be gathering information about the way women from all walks of life go through the sexual assault "court process."

I would like to talk to you if you are at least 16 years old; feel comfortable speaking in English; and are or were involved in a criminal case in Santa Clara or Santa Cruz county, because you were raped / sexually assaulted. Write or call to volunteer or to ask me questions. By mail: Amanda Konradi, Sociology Board, Stevenson college, UC Santa Cruz, CA, 95064. By phone: (408) 459-4724.

The Right Stuff

Vlad's Top Ten lists are meant purely as fun. I hoped that was quite obvious by now, but it seems some still take them seriously.

So, once again, I repeat: my Top Ten lists do not represent a hidden political agenda. They are not meant to insult people. Regardless of what some of you may think, I'm not even trying to offend anyone. I'm just having fun.

Last year, after a few punch lines involving GALA (Gay And Lesbian Association), this newspaper received numerous complaints about the lists' "offensiveness." I wrote a letter to the LGBA (Lesbian, Gay and Bisexuals' Organization) explaining that this was not my personal vendetta against them. I once even responded in La Voz, stating that the point of the lists was not to insult homosexuals on this campus - or anywhere else, for that matter. I was simply having some good natured fun.

For those among you who hadn't had a chance to read my previous remarks - here's a recap.

Top Ten lists are written with the assumption that a college newspaper needs a humorous section. Hopefully, they can make you laugh. If they do, that's great; but if they don't, simply go on to the next page. The lists are not part of a master plan to politically influence De Anza students, nor are they my excuse to insult and outrage those same people.

As one of my friends put it, I'm an "equal opportunity joker." If Vlad's Top Ten lists were taken seriously, that would mean that I hate: homosexuals, Los Angeleans, New Yorkers, Madonna, the LAPD, Bob DeHart, Tom Fryer, Jack Mason, the Student Liberation Front, DASB, La Voz, myself, Al Sharpton, Orrin Hatch, Strom Thurmond, Arler Spenser, the Senate, Howard Metzenbaum, Paul Simon, Teddy Kennedy, Anita Hill, Clarence Thomas, Pete Wilson, Democrats, Republicans, David Duke, Pee-Wee Herman, all minority groups, the World League of American Football, and of course, Dan Quayle.

The only problem is - I don't. My personal political and social views have absolutely nothing to do with the content of the Top Ten lists. When the mood strikes me, I sit down and write ten funny items. There's nothing more to it.

It doesn't take a brain surgeon to figure this out. I mean, Dave Letterman has been doing a Top Ten list since 1982, and the opening remark (see page 3) belongs to Monty Python.

So relax! Vlad's Top Ten lists are meant purely as fun. If you enjoy that type of humor, that's great. But if you don't, please don't get offended; just look the other way.

Three new environmental courses explore Earth-related concerns

By Mark Mach
Staff Reporter

With the three new environmentally targeted courses that have been added to the De Anza academic curriculum, the expanding Environmental Studies program is looking better all the time.

Under the coordination of Julie Phillips, the Environmental Studies program will now include: Environmental Studies 1 (an introductory course), Environmental Studies 2 (Environmental Biology), and Environmental Studies 45 (Environmental and Natural History Interpretation).

ES X1 is an introductory course in Environmental Studies which explores new technologies. These technologies will include topic areas such as photovoltaics, solar cars, energy efficiency, lighting, and techniques in waste management. ES X1 will also approach issues in biology, chemistry, geology, economics, politirainforests. Other topics will include overpopulation and pollution.

ES X45 will explore the native plants and ecosystem of California. De Anza College students will even be allowed to participate in San Jose State University's Environmental Studies program. One of the benefits of the program is that it grants a bachelor of science degree in Environmental Studies. The new Environmental Studies program on campus is the latest in a series of Earth-related concerns that the De Anza community addresses. According to the latest DAC news release, "De Anza underwent a major assessment as part of a matching grant made available by the California Energy Commission" in 1985.

The report also followed that "a technical audit awarded a subsequent matching grant of $298,000 for the college to implement recommendations and install equipment as a cost and energy saving effort."

As a result, four components were installed in De Anza College. These include a sophisticated computer system which monitors and controls air conditioning in every campus building and continually makes necessary corrections for air temperature and flow.

College leadership has been cited as the main proponent in seeing that studies were undertaken, according to college district and key contact, Al Guevara. This same leadership will allow the Environmental Studies program to expand even more, as concerns for the earth become a number one priority for the Foothill-De Anza Community. Those interested in the new program at De Anza are encouraged to contact Julie Phillips at (408) 864-8657.

Vanzandt throws for three touchdowns
De Anza football defeats Modesto

By Bryan Do
Sports Editor

The De Anza football team is having a great season under head coach Bob Mazzuca. Last week, the Dons went on to beat Modesto College by a score of 21-12. Starting quarterback, Eric Vanzandt, had a spectacular day as he threw for three touchdowns. Other players contributing to De Anza's win includes defensive back Gerald Harvey, linebacker Christopher Gaines, running back Lenray McCalister, and offensive lineman Kelvin Jackson.

In a game versus Foothill College last Friday, the Dons lost by a narrow margin of 28-21. At halftime, Foothill was up 12-7. Entertainment was provided for the spirited fans that came to watch. As the game continued into the third quarter, De Anza had scored two more touchdowns and the tables turned as the Dons were up 21-12. During the third quarter, the Dons had also recovered a fumble on Foothill's 25 yard line, but were unable to convert the advantage for another score. By the end of the fourth quarter, Foothill came charging back with 16 more points. The Dons were unable to score any more points in the last quarter which gave Foothill College a victory.

Overall, the Don's record is three wins and five losses. The five losses were close games by a total margin of 26 points.

Coach Mazzuca commented, "We've had a good season thus far. Like other schools, we've had our share of inexperienced and new players, but we're doing pretty good in division."

The De Anza football team is in a division which includes Los Medonas, Foot Modesto, and Kings River Colleges. De Anza has beaten all of the teams except for Foothill.

If Foothill loses two more games and De Anza wins their last two, the Dons will be invited to compete in a college bowl, which showcases the top ranked teams in Northern California.

Coach Mazzuca hopes to see more support for his team. "The weather's great and entertainment is fun. We've had a lot of support thus far from the students, but I hope to see more out during our last two games," said Mazzuca.

The Don's two remaining games are against Los Medonas College on November 11 and Kings River College on November 14. Both games are at 1 p.m. at De Anza College.
