Homecoming game draws 900

Team gets creamed/Queen gets crowned

By WILL BAILEY

The Homecoming game was a mere formality on Friday night as Foothill lost 52-0 to visiting De Anza. Nonetheless, a crowd of nearly 900 watched as Homecoming festivities went well amidst the balloons and banners supplied by Foothill cheerleaders.

At halftime former Queen Beth Swanson was on hand to relinquish her crown. The football team voted in Pamela Postlewaite as new Homecoming Queen. The first runner up was Shelly Steck while Kristy Weiler was second runner up.

Postlewaite said, "I've always tried to give my all to the football team and to cheerleading and it makes me very happy to be honored like this."

Postlewaite is a second year performing arts major and she plans to attend UCLA next year. She is an active member of the honor society and is currently secretary of activities.

The Owls lost their fifth game of the season in this year's annual clash with De Anza. Foothill gave up the ball nine times, including six interceptions. De Anza scored on every possession until they fumbled early in the third quarter. By this time, the Dons were ahead 49-0.

There are not many positive things to look at in a 52-0 loss. Late in the second quarter the Owls marched the ball down to De Anza's one-yard line, tried to score on fourth down, but didn't.

This was the closest the Owls came to scoring all night. However, Foothill running-back James Buntin made a good effort, receiving for 34 yards and rushing for 99 yards.

In the first quarter Buntin ran back a kickoff return for 66 yards and had the Foothill crowd on their feet, cheering.

On Friday, Oct. 18, the Owls face College of San Mateo at Foothill. Hopefully, the Owls will put the tough loss to De Anza in the back of their minds and play solid football for the second half of the season.

Wheelchair elevator projected

By KATANNYA JANTZEN

Plans are now being made for an elevator in the Campus Center to take wheelchair students from the main floor down to the cafeteria. The estimated cost is $105,000 to $135,000. The exact location of the elevator has not yet been decided.

If Franklin Roosevelt could visit Foothill Campus today to speak at a fundraising luncheon for this project, here's how he would get to the dining room.

Students collect for quake aid

By LYNN HENSEL

Foothill College is sponsoring a clothing and food drive for the Mexican Earthquake Relief Effort until Friday, Oct. 25.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution may donate non-perishable food that is in non-perishable containers (such as canned goods), or clean and usable clothing.

Collection bins for these items are located in the library, faculty house, campus center and the mailroom.

Help is also needed to box the donated items for shipment. If you wish to volunteer your time, you may do so by contacting Ismel Gonzalez at extension 4206.

Art instructor Jackie Cantrell and ASFC president Alison Good are the two people responsible for implementing this drive which has been endorsed by the following organizations: The Academic Senate, California School Employees Association, Ibero-American Student Association, and the Extended Opportunity Program and Services staff at Foothill College.

Paul Buxton, chicken cook at ASFC Club Membership Drive, serves student, Carol Tatevosian.

ASFC members sworn in

By TOINY GEELEN

After three hours behind closed doors, Associated Students of Foothill College (ASFC) decided who will serve on Student Council. The decision was reached after screening applications and interviewing the applicants.

The new members are: Sally Ames, social affairs director; Adriane M. Urband, elections director; Steve Chappell, senator; Stacey Clark, social affairs director; Kim Cleveland, community affairs director; Carrie Coe, ASFC secretary; Jefferson Curry, legislative director; Paula Elmore, marketing director; Bob Ghaffari, senator; Teresa Joyce, finance director; Jill Kanning, activities publicity director; and Michelle Mathot, senator.

After announcing the new members, ASFC President Alison Good swore in the new members of the Council. All raised their right hand and followed Good in the pledge to student government.

Good said, "This is the first time in five to 10 years that ASFC has had more applicants than positions available. I'm so glad that we had such a large choice of applicants and were able to pick out the best."

"I'm glad now that I'm appointed, because I can now voice the student's opinions. As a student, I couldn't do that," said Chappell, a new senator.

Each member of the ASFC, besides their regular duties, also serves on a committee.

Decisions on the positions of public affairs director, parliamentarian and mass communications director have not been reached yet.

Community colleges preferred

By JULIE GRIMSTEAD

Reverse Transfer Students are those who have transferred from a university to a community college. Recently, the number of Reverse Transfer Students has increased dramatically.

In a search for the reason why so many students are returning to Community Colleges, Dr. Thomas Fryer, chancellor of the district, and Larry Miller, Respiratory Program director, surveyed Reverse Transfer Students currently attending community colleges in this region.

Dr. Thomas Clements, president of Foothill College, explained three major reasons why university students are returning to community colleges.

First, universities sometimes have awkward grading systems. For example, UC Santa Cruz grades their students with an evaluation which eventually boils down to a "pass" or (Continued on page 4)

Scholarship drive

By KATANNYA JANTZEN

Fundraising for the annual Foothill Senior and Disabled Scholarship Fund is now underway. Contributors yet may do so by contacting the President's Round Table c/o Lisa Spielman, assistant dean of students, at 415/960-4350.

Join the Foothill College Special Education Division in making the impossible possible. The staff at Disabled Student Services are dedicated, understanding people who help the students with everything from registering to tutoring.

These services begin with a brochure of the program with the last two pages in braille and are topped off with the scholarship program made possible by the generosity of the students, staff, faculty, the President of Foothill College Thomas Clements, the President's Round Table, and members of the community.

Dean of Special Education Lisa Spielman, Counselor/Coordinator Pat Mooney, Physically Disabled Student Coordinator Margo Dobbins, Mainstreaming Program's Cheryl Woodward, Secretary/Receptionist Marilyn Larson, Secretary to the Dean Kathryn Smith, Tutor and Coordinator of Testing John Ostram, and Valpar/Mesa Testing person at Middlefield, Carol Watson, are all special people with a lot of enthusiasm for giving help to handicapped and disabled students to get an education.

Clubs woo students with BBQ

More than 250 students and faculty were served barbeque chicken and watermelon by the ASFC on Wednesday in order to introduce them to the clubs available at Foothill College.

Alison Good, ASFC president, was on hand at the festivities checking on the menu and talking to students and keeping things running smoothly.

The barbeque was a coordinated effort between the ASFC and Organizations Board of Directors, each contributing $400 for food and band.

Sentinel eats humble pie, 100%

In an article under Health Tips in last week's issue of The SENTINEL, an error was made regarding the meatloaf served at the campus cafeteria. The error was brought to our attention by Klaus Dehn, in charge of food services at De Anza and Foothill colleges, and we would like to set the record straight.

The meatloaf served at the cafeteria is made with 100 percent beef, bread crumbs, parsley, onions and eggs, according to Dehn. There are no hot dogs in the meatloaf nor are there any chemicals added to the meatloaf or any of the other food at the cafeteria. Dehn takes great pride in the fact that all of the food served in the cafeteria is without any additives and is of the highest quality.

Dehn says he tastes all the food before it is served to the students. He and his staff try to be inventive and vary the selection of the food served. If a student offers a suggestion for an addition to the menu, it will be tried at least once. If a new item becomes popular and there is a demand for it, it will become a permanent part of the rotation.

Dehn operates the cleanest food service in the county, according to the Food, Health and Drug Administration. There have been no complaints in the nine years since he took over the operation.

"If a group of students wants to come through here and look around, no one on my staff will stop them," said Dehn. "If anyone can find any chemicals in the food, I will hand in my resignation."

In an independent survey at De Anza, the food services department ranked number one in satisfying the needs of the students. Dehn and his staff go to great lengths to insure that the food is pure and nutritious and keep the prices as low as possible.

The SENTINEL wishes to apologize for the article and any misconceptions regarding the campus cafeteria and the quality of food served there.

EDITORIAL

Lyrics spark controversy

By BOB DAVIS

Controversy over the content of rock and roll records, lyrical in particular, is nothing new. It's been going on in some form for decades.

But the recent incident regarding the "Night Stalker" and his supposed obsession with the hard rock group AC/DC, has helped to revitalize the efforts of certain organizations who wish to restrict access of certain records to youngsters by labeling them or banning them altogether.

Rock performers Frank Zappa and Dee Snider, among others, have recently spoken against forms of music censorship. KFJC's station supervisor Robert "Doc" Pelzel feels that record restriction has its good and bad points, but generally it isn't worth all the fuss some people are putting into it.

Longtime KFJC disk jockey Tony Camin says, "It's just a right wing group trying to flex their moral muscles over one of the last outposts of creativity, free of censorship. The only effect it will have is to drive up the already high cost of records. It's a totally worthless idea."

As far as movie ratings, and laws regarding the age necessary to be able to drive and to drink, the line is drawn at a certain place. But where will the line be drawn if the people who wish to restrict records decide to try to censor other forms of entertainment?

JCC plans moon-viewing party

By LORI RENO

The Japanese Cultural Center has planned a moon-viewing party and a cross-cultural business seminar for the latter half of October.

The cross-cultural business seminar will be held Friday, Oct. 18, in the Toyon Room, Campus Center. Mr. K.K.

Yawata, president of Nihon LSI Logic Corporation, will be the guest speaker; his topic will be the cultural aspects of U.S.-Japan trade relations. A reception with refreshments will begin at 5:30 p.m., at 6 p.m. Yawata will speak, and a half hour question-and-answer period will follow his talk. Admission is $6 for Cultural Center members and students holding a current ASFC card, and $8 for non-members.

The Center's second offering will be a cultural event in a different realm; a "moon-viewing party" is planned for Oct. 27 at a private resident in Los Altos Hills. Moon-viewing is a traditional Japanese informal ceremony, done in appreciation of natural beauty, and is typical of their culture's reverence for the significance of the cycles of nature.

For more information regarding this fund-raising event, contact Michiko Hiramatsu, Japanese Cultural Center Advisor, at 960-4302, or the Language Arts Office, 960-4250.

The nuclear age. Conceptual? Who knows for sure, but it's danceable. Every Tuesday night at Giggle's, 2540 California Ave. in Mountain View in the Old Mill Shopping Center, it's a night of modern disco and video never seen before here in the South Bay.

KFJC's Eugene Orifice is your host for six hours of the newest alternative modern dance music and video. There is no cover charge for those 21 and older (sorry no minors). Don't miss out on the fun.

Comedy debuts

By JULIE GRIMSTEAD

The Foothill College Theatre presents "The Would-Be Gentleman," directed by Jay Manley.

Foothill's Drama Department will perform Molier's comic satire about a gentleman who gets rich fast, then wants to become cultured fast. People he hires to accomplish this task prove that he's not what he's attempting to be.

"The Would-Be Gentleman" will be performed "In-The-Round," which means the actors will communicate more directly to the audience by coming down into the aisles rather than remaining only on the stage.

The play will be presented Thursdays through Saturdays, Oct. 31, Nov. 1, 2, 7, 8 and 9, at 8 p.m. Tickets will be $5.50 for general admission and $5 for students and senior citizens at the door, or in advance through Foothill Box Office, 948-4444.

Hero remembered

By DONNA RIGUERO

The inscription reads, "In Memory of Edward Prchal, 1911-1985," on the 24-inch globe placed in the reference room of the library in June of this year.

Edward Prchal, a former pilot for Czechoslovak Airlines served with the R.A.F. during World War II. Upon returning to liberated Czechoslovakia after the war, Prchal was forced to flee from communist persecution in 1950.

His wife, Dolly Prchal, was a member of the Foothill College library staff from the opening of the college in 1958 until 1978, serving as head librarian from 1970 to 1978.

In addition to his wife, Prchal is survived by a daughter, Kejka Collins, a former Foothill student, now an aeronautical Engineer.

SADD formed on campus

By TOINY GEELEN

There is a SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) club being formed at Foothill.

Language Arts Instructor Robert Bloesser had approached students to start a SADD chapter at Foothill. Student Katie Hauser picked up on the idea and initiated a meeting for interested students.

Together these students agreed to form a club. They have set the first and third Thursdays of every month for their meetings at 2 p.m. in the Council chambers.

Activities that they plan to pursue include going to local high schools to talk about the consequences of drunk driving. They hope the high school student governments will also form SADD Chapters.

In order to belong to the club, ASFC membership is required. There will be no dues to pay, and as yet there has been no election of president, vice president, secretary or an OBD appointment. The requirements to fill any of these positions is a minimum GPA of 3.0.

Another activity is to push for stricter drunk driving laws, even though at present Santa Clara County is the toughest county in California concerning drunk driving.

Secondly, tuition is higher at UC and state colleges than at community colleges. The reason for such high tuition is that it costs a UC $4,500 per year to educate one student. It costs a state college $2,700 per year to educate one student. However, the cost to a community college is only $800 per year to educate one student.

Thirdly, many students receive better instruction at community colleges than they do at universities. Often, classes at universities are taught by undergraduates who are trying to earn their teaching degrees. These classes tend to be larger, as many as 400 students, compared to 40 at community colleges, and they are less personal.

Eighty-five percent of the university students don't know where to go for help with their major. "There is no one to sit down and work with them to explore possibilities for their major," said Clements. "They need more direction and more support."

Teachers fill in for colleague

By ANSHU NAGPAL

The English Department and Robert Bloesser's students are coping with his heart attack. His three classes have been taken over by James Quinn, Dennis Berthiaume and Bill Haralson, according to Nayan McNeill, division dean of Language Arts.

James Quinn, who is teaching Bloesser's 7:30 a.m. English 1B class, says the only difficulty that arises in situations like these is finding someone who has that particular hour free to take over someone else's class.

As for teaching, some changes are expected because each teacher has a different method of teaching. According to Quinn, "it is difficult for a student to have somebody else come in and say something else after a week of class." He said, however, that up to now the response has been very positive from the students.

Dennis Berthiaume, who is teaching Bloesser's 10:30 a.m. English 1B class, has had to make slight adjustment in his shedule. He has three other classes to teach, plus he has a moonlighting job playing the piano until 1 a.m. Now he has had to give that up because he feels he needs his sleep.

the kitchen to the dining room where he would join the rest of us who had walked down the stairs.

Services for handicapped and disabled students continue to expand on Foothill Campus, thanks to the caring support of their fellow students, staff and faculty. Now that the footbridge is open to wheelchair students, the future looks bright for making the cafeteria easily accessible to them.

Bloesser had planned to teach his class Shakespeare's "King Lear" as one of the texts in the class. Berthiaume, who happened to see the play as an opera about two weeks ago, feels it worked out fine. Berthiaume feels the students have had to make a few adjustments because his teaching methods are different from Bloesser's. "Bob is a refined teacher, whereas I am aggressive."

Bill Haralson, who is teaching

Bloesser's third class, English 110, is retired but occasionally comes back to teach classes.

According to Haralson, fitting into the new schedule was not a problem, but fitting into his class was. The class he is teaching now basically consist of freshmen and he hasn't taught freshmen in three to four years.

He also said he has kept the same syllabus as Bloesser had planned.
