

Foothill College Opening Radio Station October 15

Foothill College's 10-watt radio station, KFJC, is scheduled to go on the air Oct. 15, Ervin L. Harlacher, director of public information, reported this morning.

The station will be powerful enough to be picked up on radios from San Mateo to San Jose.

Harlacher says that a 25-foot antenna has just been hoisted atop the main college building. The station will operate just two hours per night at first but the college division of mass communications, of which Harlacher is chairman, hopes to increase this before the school year ends. There will be no daytime broadcasting.

Programming will consist primarily of classical music with some educational programs, drama and news occasionally presented.

Listeners will hear no commercials. The station is being financed entirely by the Foothill Junior College District.

Robert Ballou is student manager of the station. Fred Critchfield is instructor.

Public Works Projects Set For Council

Public works improvements will share the spotlight with a public hearing on a sign denial at tonight's meeting of the Sunnyvale City Council. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the city council chambers, S. Murphy and McKinley aves.

Councilmen are expected to award a $14,158 contract with the low bidding firm of Howard Electric Co. of San Jose for installation of mercury vapor electorliers along S. Murphy ave.

White House Steel Talks Set Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower, putting aside his hands off policy toward labor-management disputes, today prepared to try to melt some of the ice in the frozen steel negotiations.

The Chief Executive made his most startling move in the 77-day-old steel strike yesterday by summoning industry

Councilmen also are expected