

Voters Say No On Prop. One

Brewer, Schoening win on split ticket as voters cross party lines

Bob Brewer and Clint Schoening were elected to the top executive student government posts last night when voters crossed party lines to cast a split ballot.

THE HIGHLY controversial Proposition One that would re-apportion club representation on student council was soundly defeated 194 to 160.

Schoening of the New ERA party overwhelmingly defeated Carlene Gieszl, of the ACTION party for the vice presidency while Jim Glynn won a 31 vote decision over John Allan for Commissioner of Activities. Carrie Hawkins swept to victory over Millie Randolph for Secretary and incumbent Yvonne plete. Brewer's race with his opponent Barry Hunt was "nip and tuck" until the last returns came in which gave the Vet's Club president a narrow victory.

ALLAN AND Glynn remained separated by only a few votes in their race for Commissioner of Activities, but Glynn edged ahead at the last minute.

Only 371 voters out of approximately 900 eligible voters cast ballots in the two-day election. Before the polls opened student government officials predicted the extra day would increase the voter turnout.

Election board members expressed disappointment at the "poor turnout" at the polls.

THERE WAS no candidate for the office of Commissioner of Finance. The officer will be appointed by the new executive council next semester.

Marge Watson, chairman of the election board, said yesterday that the election counting was "efficient" and well organized. However, at one point, ASFC president Herb Harrison charged that publicity chairman were counting votes and meetings of the election board were being called without notice, and he was not able to be present.

The committee stopped counting votes and waited until 3 p.m. when Harrison could be present, at which time the votes were re-counted.

Officers pledge to work together

Newly elected vice president Clint Schoening told reporters last night, "Even though my running mate Barry Hunt and I didn't win together on our party ticket, I don't feel this will hamper student government next year."

Hunt and Schoening (New ERA party) ran against Brewer and Gieszl (ACTION party).

"Even though Brewer and I don't see eye to eye on all issues, I think we will work well together," he said.

Brewer called for unity saying, "It is time for us to work together for the goals of our college and promote a lasting tradition of which we may all be proud."

Both candidates said they would work to increase cooperation and communication between all areas of the college.

She said that everyone who was connected with the Pageant was very nice and although "I was scared to death—I would do it all over again."

She plans to attend Foothill for another year and then transfer to UCLA. She is now majoring in education, but plans to change her major to music.

Sandy Thorlakkson, another Foothill contestant, was named Miss Congeniality in the contest. This award was voted upon by all persons participating in the show.

Annual student-faculty picnic called successful; Circle K knocks Vets

Attendance to the third annual student-faculty picnic exceeded all expectations when some 576 ticket holders broke away from campus life for a day of recreation.

Held at Adobe Creek Lodge, the picnic featured swimming, volleyball, softball and other activities. The French Club presented Dr. Calvin C. Flint with a check for $250 to be used to construct a barbecue pit on the new campus so "we can enjoy more of these outings."

The check was presented by Vishanti Jutagir. Dr. Flint was also presented a trophy as the "world's best chef." It was presented by Karen Williams for the Intramural Council.

In one of the competitive games, the women faculty defeated the Press Club in a "heated" softball game and the Circle K rose to the water polo "championship" when they clobbered the Vets Club. The Circle K was awarded a trophy in the shape of an alligator.

The highlight of the evening came with the variety show sponsored by the Freshman class. Approximately thirty Foothill students entertained the assembled group with dancing, singing, guitar acts and an old-fashioned melodrama.

Jean-Luc Tremel

FC parent to French foster child

By Larry Stammer

His name is Jean-Luc Tremel. Life will be just a little easier for Jean-Luc. Now his mother can care for him more adequately than before because she has another parent to help her.

That parent's name is the Associated Students of Foothill College. After many semesters of planning, waiting and yes, sometimes fighting red tape and slow moving Clubs, Foothill College students have adopted a foster child. The news was confirmed early this week.

Jean-Luc is 10 years old. He is 4'5" tall, weighs 65 pounds and boasts a 27 inch waist line. But Jean-Luc has had, something that most American children haven't had—rejection, unhappiness and abject poverty.

The Tremel family lives at the Chateau de France, an emergency camp located on one of the worst slum areas on the outskirts of Paris. Old tents, trucks, wagons and quonset huts are "homes" in this area. The hut in which the Tremels live is damp, drafty, without heat, electricity, running water or gas.

Jean-Luc is one of five children in the Tremel family. His father, who ran into difficulty with the police, is serving a prison sentence. The mother is burdened with the care of the five children. Aside from this, it is almost impossible for a woman in this area to find work.

Jean-Luc has brown hair and eyes and a wide, warm smile. In short, Jean-Luc is an energetic, promising boy, according to the agency that handled the adoption.

FOSTER CHILD — This is Jean-Luc Tremel, a 10 year old French boy who Foothill College adopted as a foster child.

Fulton Lewis III

Verbal bullets fired at HUAC narrator

Fulton Lewis III, narrator of the controversial film, "Operation Abolition," was greeted at Foothill last week by a barrage of questions from students — everyone of them "unfavorable."

Lewis, who spoke here under the Press Club's sponsorship, was fired question after question from sometimes indignant students and each time, much to the surprise of students, came up with the answer.

Lewis said the Communists were stressing a "youth movement" in the United States and he warned students not to be taken in by "these masters of deceit."

He outlined a four point plan they should follow. He said: (1.) Understand how they work, (2.) make an objective analysis and research, (3.) come up with your own solution and (4.) take responsible action."

The member of the HUAC committee said the youth of the world were a powerful political force today, as he pointed to the demonstration in Japan and the Hungarian Revolution. During his speech, Lewis traced the activities of the communists in this country since the 30's. Following the speech students asked questions.

One student said the HUAC was not a committee to make recommendations for legislation but a kangaroo court." The student charged the committee was not fulfilling its purpose. But Lewis said that as a result of the committee recommendations, nine bills have been passed into law, 58 bills are pending in the House of Representatives, 35 bills await Senate approval and 50 are now waiting action by the House.

Asked if the film was distorted, Lewis said film sequence and photography were not good. He said the sequence of shots in the film were not as it occurred. But he added, the overall story was true and accurate. He denied that shots of riots in other parts of the country were spliced into the film on the San Francisco student riot.

Philosophy Club plans discussion

by Len Hill

The Philosophy Club meets today at 8 p.m. at the home of Harry and Mary Hewitt, 102 South Clark, Los Altos to discuss "perspectives on Existentialism." Dr. Gale Engle, John DeLamater and Mary Hewitt will act as a panel to lead discussion on the topic.

For awhile there it was feared that the student-faculty picnic of last Tuesday would be called off because not enough students had purchased tickets. Sales zoomed so fast by Friday, however (over 500 sold), that an extra day of sales was held on Monday.

Marilyn Markkanen told student council Thursday, May 18, that it wouldn't set well with Adobe Creek Lodge to hang campaign posters for the election on their trees. "So nothing can be hung on trees," she said. Barry Hunt: "Not even the opposition?"

Have you been reading in Footprints that slacks are not allowed to be worn in the library? Not even on fellas?

The civil defense committee has had no meetings for months now. Are they going to let us all be destroyed? Remember the student union cellar on the new campus will only hold 50 and you'll have to petition to get in.

Last Thursday's student council meeting was quick. A whole batch of awards were kicked through with ease. Nobody votes "no" on an award for themselves.

Fresno downs Owls in NC finals as FC ends 'successful' season

By Ed Smith

With their uniforms in the locker, Foothill College's baseball squad can get back to hitting the books for the up-and-coming finals.

Bob Pifferini's crew ended their highly successful season, last Saturday, when Fresno City College sneaked across a single run in the bottom of the 12th frame to nip the Owls 1-0 in the finals of the Northern California playoffs at Sacramento.

FOOTHILL ADVANCED into the finals, Friday, with a resounding 7-0 defeat of American River, while Fresno was dumping Sacramento City College, 7-2.

"I'm really disappointed, because the guys really put out and hustled," commented coach Pifferini.

Fresno tallied their lone run in the home half of the 12th inning when Jim Hendrickson drove home Ted Belli on an infield grounder to deep shortstop. Bob Stoll fielded the ball cleanly, but the long throw was too late and Belli roared home for the game winning marker.

THE OWLS muffed their lone chance to win the game in the eighth frame with two on and only one out. Corky Lara missed the ball on an attempted squeeze play and Gary Chiotti was trapped off third.

Wayman Crowder went all the way, Friday, for the Owls limiting American River to only four hits, while fanning seven and walking two.

Southpaw Eddie Hoffacker, who suffered the loss on Saturday, struckout 13 and walked six. It was only his second loss of the year.

FOOTHILL WON the Coast Conference championship two weeks ago with a perfect 14-0 record.

Pifferini stated that he will miss veterans Jerry Collins, Bob Rayl and Jerry Penick. With the fine crop of freshmen he had this year and the many high school stars who are slated to enroll at Foothill next fall, the Owls are destined to come back strong next year, according to Pifferini.

In this, their second year of intercollegiate baseball, the Owl horsehiders completed their slate with an impressive 23 wins, five losses and one tie.

Don Beal vaults 13'8 in winning first place at Sacramento; Modesto next Don Beal, Foothill's ace pole vaulter, prevailed over all competition, last Saturday, in the Northern California Junior College track and field championships at Hughes Field in Sacramento.

The ex-Palo Alto High star, vaulted his season best of 13-feet, eight-inches to earn a spot at the state finals and Modesto Relays, held Saturday, at Modesto.

RESULTS OF the Saturday meet, however, were not available by press time.

Overton Williams of Oakland City College highlighted the trackfest by shattering the 20-year old national junior college standard in the 220-yard dash with a clocking of :20.4.

Foothill placed 12th in the massive field of entrants with 10 points — all on Beal's first place in the pole vault.

POWERHOUSE FRESNO City College, who also annexed the Northern California baseball championships on the other side of town, copped team laurels with 50-1/3 points.

Meet records were also set in the high jump, mile, 100 (wind-aided), 120-high hurdles (ties record—wind-aided), 880, 220-low hurdles and mile relay.
