

One-time radical, Cleaver now librarian

Eldridge Cleaver, former Black Panther leader and fugitive from federal law, is now serving 2,000 hours of volunteer work, a stipulation of his January sentence of five years on probation.

by JULIE WRIGHT
Managing Editor

Two students are walking down the steps of De Anza's Learning Center:

"I tell you, it's Eldridge Cleaver," one says, "I recognize him."

"Cleaver?" scoffs the other. "I'll bet! Why the heck would he be here? He's in prison or something."

OR SOMETHING. Eldridge Cleaver, one time militant radical, Minister of Information to the Black Panther Party and fugitive from federal law, turned author and lecturer, is currently serving 2,000 hours of volunteer work, a stipulation of his January sentencing of five years on probation for three counts of assaulting police in a 1968 shootout.

The skirmish, which resulted in the death of Bobby Hutton, a 17-year-old Panther, caused Cleaver to flee the United States to avoid trial.

Cleaver, the grandson of a preacher, grew up in the Watts area of Los Angeles. Now 44, he has spent 14 years of his life behind bars. His first prison sentence was two and a half years for the possession of marijuana; the second, 14 years, was for assault with attempt to kill, assault for attempt to rape, and assault while armed with a dangerous weapon. He was paroled early from both sentences.

IT WAS DURING this time in prison that Cleaver wrote his first book, the scalding socio-political treatise "Soul on Ice."

"The truth is that I did some things that night that were illegal," Cleaver said. He tells the story of what happened on the night of April 6, 1968: a three-car convoy of 14 armed Black Panthers headed by Cleaver turned down a dark street in Oakland, transporting food for a barbecue.

"One of the reasons we travelled in groups is because we didn't want to be caught alone," said Cleaver. "This was the day after Martin Luther King was shot. There were small-scale shootings all over Oakland."

SUDDENLY, A PATROL car turned the corner, floodlights shining and slowly cruising. "Okay, yeah, we shot first," he admitted. The Panthers have always maintained that the police shot first, while the police, Sergeant Nolan Darnell and Officer Richard Jensen, insist they were ambushed.

"It was the Black Panthers, man," Cleaver explained. "We had guns, and they (the police) would not have just driven by. That's the facts of life."

During the ensuing shootout, the Panthers scattered, and Cleaver and Hutton exchanged shots from a basement with the police. They surrendered, however, when the basement was fire-bombed.

CLEAVER SAID the police took Hutton, pushed him, and shot him. "They said he broke and ran. That was murder what they did," he asserts. Cleaver said the police tried to do the same to him, but instead just beat him up because he had been shot in the leg.

Six months later, with the other Panthers involved in the shootout in jail, Cleaver jumped the $50,000 bail posted for him by friends and fled: first to Canada, then by boat to Cuba, and on to Algeria, where he was joined by his wife of one year, Kathleen.

Their son, Maceo, now 11 years old, was born there and their daughter Joju was born a year later in North Korea. The Cleaver family lived in and visited many different locales in the Eastern hemisphere; most of the

Kissinger speech rescheduled

Henry Kissinger, scheduled to speak at De Anza College Sunday, Oct. 19, has changed the time of his speech to 10 a.m. in the Flint Center.

Kissinger was originally scheduled to speak at 8 p.m.

"The switch in time was made to accommodate a change in Kissinger's schedule," said Ron Bottini, public information officer.

The former U.S. Secretary of State will speak on "The World Today."

Aliens exhaust funds

Refugee students have received approximately 60 per cent of De Anza's financial aid. This is due to expiration of a State code which gave tuition exemption to alien students after residing in California for one year as refugees.

The resident requirement is a year's stay in California only after being admitted into the country as a U.S. citizen or permanent resident.

California State Education Code Section 68076.6 was adopted in 1975 when the U.S. accepted refugees from South Vietnam. However, a five-year expiration date was set, and on June 30, 1980, this code expired.

According to Lewis Ham, Jr., registrar and admissions officer at De Anza College, legislation to re-enact this refugee exemption is being help up in the State Senate because of demonstrations and riots instigated in the U.S. by non-immigrant groups. Further action may be taken by the State Senate in early 1981 to pursue the re-enactment of this code.

Since the number of students applying for federal assistance doubled this year, all financial aid administered by De Anza College Financial Aid Office has been spent.

Adverse effects of this increased need of funds by refugee students were first seen last year at San Jose City College. A minor demonstration was made by students in various minority groups.

Most refugee students receiving financial assistance could not attend college without these funds. However, it has also caused many returning students, who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents, to miss out on funds.

According to Jose Robledo, financial aids coordinator, this is due to many returning students' delay in applying for federal assistance along with a greater need demonstrated by refugee students.

Robledo further commented that next year's financial aid situation will not improve. Tuition will increase from $38 to $48 per unit this winter quarter. He recommends that all students submit their applications for next fall's federal assistance before the end of the spring 1981 quarter.

Flint Center raises rates

By JANET WEEKS

Rental rates for the use of Flint Center were officially raised following last month's District Board of Trustees approval.

The current going rate of $1,000 per day is presently being charged to all organizations using Flint Center, including student enterprises.

In the past, students enjoyed some special considerations in use of Flint. A reduced rate and first shot at scheduling events enabled student groups to sponsor shows and use Flint for student productions.

However, now it is "no cheaper for students to use," than anyone else, according to Jay Doty, Flint Center executive director.

THE COMMUNITY TAX Fund, which had supported Flint Center was killed in the wake of Proposition 13. Consequently, Flint receives no outside funding and was forced to become a completely separate operation from De Anza College.

The greatest damage attributed to the rate increase has been suffered by the Fine Arts Division. Until recently, the Music Department used Flint nine times a year, Dance, three times a year, and Theater Arts once, according to Bill Clevelan, division dean.

"The Fine Arts Division is in the process of being re-evaluated. The issue is not yet totally resolved," said Doty.

"I made a recommendation that they (Fine Arts) pay the going rate of $1,000 a day after long discussions with an advisory committee. One of the things we did discuss in great detail was alternative sites for students' productions. Often, the crowds are not large enough to necessitate the 2,600 seats available in the Flint Center," Doty said.

Community groups that will also be affected by the increase are the Schola Cantorum and the Peninsula Symphony. Both groups were already struggling with the former rent rates, raised after Proposition 13 passed.

SHORT COURSES (SLS 90), which is presently using Flint for its "Distinguished Lecture Platform Series," pays the regular rental rate, and is "generating income," according to Doty.

Candidates Fair on October 30

An opportunity to meet ballot candidates face-to-face on campus is forthcoming.

The League of Women Voters (LWV) and the De Anza Evening and Extension Students Association (DEESA), are among six associations sponsoring a "Candidates Fair" on Thursday, Oct. 30 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Campus Center.

At the fair, Santa Clara County's November ballot candidates will be on hand to meet prospective voters and answer questions.

Candidates in contention for the U.S. House of Representatives, State Senate, State Assembly, County Supervisor (runoff), and Superior Court (runoff) are scheduled to attend.

Incumbents Pefe McCloskey, Norman Mineta, and John Vasconcellos are among 34 candidates that were invited to the fair.

Free coffee will be provided by DEESA.

The LWV also invites concerned citizens to hear the proceedings and cons of the ballot propositions explained by non-partisan voters at either of two meetings to be held next week.

The first meeting will be Wednesday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. Northern California Savings and Loan, located on Rodriguez Avenue at South De Anza Boulevard in Cupertino.

The second meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 23, 9:30 a.m. at West Coast Federal Savings and Loan, Remington and El Camino, Sunnyvale. For additional voter information call 446-3200.

Opportunity for Scholarships now

Computers have come to the financial aid of students in the forms of a scholarship data bank. But, like everything else, it costs money.

Scholarship Bank, a Los Angeles based organization, maintains information on scholarships, loans, grants and work sources available, according to director Steve Danz.

Students interested in the service must fill out a questionnaire and submit a $35 fee. In return, the service will send a computer print-out for all available sources of financial aid, tailored to the applicant's aptitudes, interests and field of study.

According to Danz, the listings are thorough and updated daily with new information.

The service also offers listings of graduate and post-graduate scholarships.

For more information, write to Scholarship Bank, 10100 Santa Monica #750, Los Angeles, Calif. 90067. For an application, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and the $35 fee. Scholarship Bank has a toll free number; (800) 327-9191, extension 397.

Grants available for the applying

Are you planning on continuing on in school, but don't have the money to do so? If you fall into that category, you may be interested in applying for a youthgrant. Applications are due no later than Nov. 15, 1980. Applications are available in the Staff Development Office.

Youthgrants are given out by the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington D.C. Grants have been known to go as high as $15,000, but most grants run between $2,500 and $3,000.

Grants are given to college students throughout the United States in the fields of art, social sciences and language arts. They do not give grants for physical education.

In order to be considered for a youthgrant you must do some work outside of the classroom, which the National Endowment for the Humanities calls a project. Your project must consist of research, development and a written proposal.

For more information on youthgrants go to the De Anza Campus Placement Office.

Last year no one on the De Anza College Campus took advantage of youthgrants. Hopefully this year that will change. Don't forget applications are due no later than Nov. 15, 1980.

Limping runners shape up to face Diablo Valley

By KEN JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The De Anza men's and women's cross country teams will travel to San Francisco this Friday for individual tri-meets in Golden Gate Park.

The men's meet, which begins at 2:30 p.m., will pit the Dons against Diablo Valley College and the Community College of San Francisco. The women's team will run against West Valley College and San Jose City College. Their meet will begin at 3:30 p.m.

THE MEN'S TEAM who are 0-2 in the conference are hoping to put to notch in their win column this week. "We haven't been as competitive as we would like to be," remarked Jim Linthicum, the teams head coach. Linthicum does not feel the team was in shape after returning from the summer, however, he has been pleased with the way the team has been shaping up this past week. "We've been working hard lately and the results of it should show this week."

The twelve-man team has also been hurt by injuries. Mike Sapp, one of the team's top runners, has missed all of the conference meets, but hopes to return this week. Dave Westwood, the number two runner last week, has developed tendonitis and will not be able to compete this week.

Scott Kinzy has been the team's top runner the last two weeks and Linthicum is hoping for another strong showing this week. Blaine Brown, Curtis Booker, and Rob Brandt have also put in strong performances for the team. Eron Flory has been a "very pleasant surprise" for Linthicum.

THE WOMEN'S TEAM,

whom Linthicum terms the "magnificent five," are 1-1 in conference meets. The team is lead by Ammelli Dablin and Nancy Brooks. Brooks has been training for marathons and according to the coach, she has been an inspiration to the other women.

Cessy Medcalf, Yvetee Cotel, and Hesty Bull, the remaining members of the team, have all been improving and running well.

Next Wednesday the women's and men's teams will travel to Crystal Springs. The women will run against Diablo Valley College and Foothill and the men will face San Jose City College and the College of San Mateo.

Wheelchair netters win

Congratulations to Ron Moffett and his partner, Victor Escomitta, who won first place at the Fountain Valley National Wheelchair tennis championships in the open class (the class with the highest level of difficulty) Sept. 13.

Moffett is a special education major, who last year was an ASDAC council member and student representative to the board of trustees.

Although there's a tennis tournament in Chico, Oct. 25, Ron won't resume his play until Nov. 1 and 2 in a tournament in Saddleback, California.

Moffett says the September tournament was one of the toughest matches he has ever played. "All of our matches went three sets and we probably played close to seventy-five games that afternoon."

Moffett said he first became interested in playing wheelchair tennis, which he considers his best sport, in April of 1977 when a friend invited him to a tournament in Bakersfield. He thought it would be fun so they practiced twice and he ended up winning first and third place in the novice class.

After his first win he took a tennis class at De Anza and has been winning ever since. Moffett says De Anza has never come away from a tournament without a trophy and probably never will.

1st loss to SJCC Dons' polo dunked

By STEVE SMITH
News Editor

"Frustrating," is how Coach Bob Wegeman summed it up after his water polo team lost their first game ever in De Anza history to San Jose City College.

"We're getting pushed around out there," said the coach, "and in order for us to win we've got to be more aggressive."

The Dons will try to do just that as they take on a relatively weak Diablo Valley team today. Also up the road for the Dons is the prestigious NORCAL tournament in November, if they can qualify.

In The San Jose game last Friday, the Dons gave up 6 goals in the first seven-minute quarter. For such a defensive-minded team as De Anza, 6 goals is a lot to surrender, however they did manage to net 5 to leave the score 6-5 at the end of the first quarter.

For a nine-minute period in the second and the third quarters, the Dons were held scoreless, as San Jose rolled to a 12-8 lead. When the buzzer sounded at the end of the game, the Dons crawled out of the pool with a disappointing 12-10 loss.

"We need to work more on strength" accessed Wegeman.

Despite the loss, there were a few bright spots for the Dons. Drew Henry, who is considered by many as one of the best polo players in the state, scored a game-leading five goals.

For San Jose, it may have been a sign of things to come. Rob Lyons scored four goals in pacing the surging Jaguars to a hard-fought win.

De Anza will take on San Jose once more this year on Oct. 29.

Also ahead for the Dons is probably the toughest game of the year against former NCAA champs, Stanford. A consistent scoring threat, the Cardinals may give De Anza a few dunkings.

If the Dons do make it past the NORCAL meet, the state finals are still ahead.

De Anza defense good, Foothill's a little better

By MARK FAYLOR
Sports Editor

Last Friday night it seemed to be the same old story once again. The troubled Dons couldn't get their offensive effort together with their defensive. The defense dominated the entire first quarter of play by shutting down the Foothill offense for no first downs.

The 13-3 loss was the Dons' third consecutive effort to get into the win column, leaving them 0-2 in league and 0-3 overall. But don't count the Don's out yet. With 7 games still remaining, the Dons are far from being eliminated.

The first score came on a 16-play, 77 yard scoring splurge and was capped off by a 1-yard plunge by Foothill's quarterback John Conners.

De Anza's score was set up with an interception by Chet Barraclough to Foothill's 32-yard line. When the Dons failed to penetrate on three consecutive tries inside the five, Walsh came on to drill a 19-yard field goal. De Anza's only other threat in the second half came to a halt when Evans threw an interception.

In fourth quarter action, Foothill put a lid on the game with a 18-yard touchdown pass from Conners to Garner. When the gun sounded, the scoreboard read Foothill 13, De Anza 3.

Defensive standouts included nose guard Jack White, free-safety Scott Rittig. Offensively, tight-end John Fisher, running-back Rich Ryies and left-tackle Dave Cauchi, who suffered an ankle injury. He is expected to be back for the upcoming revenge at Cabrillo this Friday night at 7:30.

Soccer faces strong league

By KEN JOHNSON

"We have, without a question, the toughest conference in the state," stated Bill Walker, De Anza's head soccer coach. "I have never seen the league so well matched."

The Dons, who were 1-2 as of press time, are scheduled to battle a tough Foothill team this Friday at 3:15 on the De Anza field. The following Tuesday, Oct. 21, the team will travel to Diablo Valley College to continue conference play. Game time is again scheduled for 3:15.

Walker feels this year's team is much more rounded than the teams of the past. "Team-wise we have as much talent as we've ever had. The only thing we lack is the extra two or three key players."

The Dons are very familiar with successful season. For the past three years the soccer team has been conference champions. Because the league is so tight this year, Walker does not count out his team's hope for another conference title. "Even with two losses, we are not out of it," insured Walker. "We have won the championship with one loss and a Scott Rettig hauls in an intercept during De Anza's dissapointing loss to Foothill 13-3 last Friday.

tie in previous years, and I think this year's champ is going to have at least two losses."

De Anza came into the league with a 6-0 record. The Dons won their first conference game 1-0 over West Valley College. Walker felt the game could have gone either way but that, "we happened to get the goal." In their second conference game the Dons fell prey to Chabot 2-1. "We actually out-played them," remarked Walker, whose team could not pull out the victory.

The team's third game was last Friday against Canada. Canada, who is undefeated in conference play, defeated the Dons 3-1. Canada scored first, but De Anza battled back and tied the game on a Mike Whitlatch goal. Canada scored later in the first half and again in the second on a "defensive error," to insure the victory. "It was the best performance we have had. We just didn't finish the ball off on offense," said Walker. "We dominated the second half but lost the game on two crucial mistakes by our defensive unit."

Big test for the undefeated Dons

by JOHN LOIACONO
City Editor

Next week's showdown against Chabot, at De Anza, looks to be an exciting match, as the Don volleyball squad retained their unblemished record. Chabot is also undefeated, and next Wednesday's battle of the unbeaten will conclude the first half of this season.

The Dons took awhile to get on track, but ended up containing West Valley College, 15-13, 15-3, 15-6 Wednesday. Coach Debi Schafer said, "West Valley played real well. We got off to a slow start, and we weren't up for it." In spite of a dismal start Cara Patten and Kathy Sparks turned in excellent games.

THIS PAST WEEK the Dons destroyed San Francisco City College, as usual, in three straight games, 15-1, 15-3, 15-0. The Dons had to rearrange their line up, because of an injury to freshman middle-hitter-blocker Jacki Walker, but still controlled the middle attack. Sophomore Captain, Kathy Sparks and Freshman Jennifer Dunn teamed up to control the middle and net action, as Kathy Daws and Cara Patten controlled the back court. Freshman Gazell Black came into the line up for the first time this season. She served eight aces in fifteen serves, and did some excellent passing in the back row.

The alert Don defense surprised San Francisco's off-speed attack, mixed with dinks and soft hits. With great passing from Cara Patten, Kathy Daws, and Barb Lutz the Dons consistantly put away point after point, showing outstanding transition.

'Best Bets'; stations begin 'price war'

By KEN JOHNSON
Staff Writer

If you don't want to be left empty in your wallet and your gas tank, then read on. Believe it or not, the prices outside of gas stations have actually been going down. Due to the "gas shortage" and extremely high prices earlier this year, Americans have become less dependent on their cars.

Because of this, dealers are forced to lower prices on gasoline, and by doing such, a "gas war" among dealers has begun to develop.

Listed below are stations located near De Anza which have the lowest prices as of now. Prices are subject to change, as we all know, but for the most part, you can be sure they are close.

If your car uses regular gasoline, and you pump your own gas, then you can make the biggest savings available.

The GEMCO SERVICE STATION--DIGAS, located on Stevens Creek, sells regular for $1.12.9 per gallon.

FILL 'EM FAST, located on the corner of Homestead and Hollenbeck, sells self-service regular at a cost of $1.13.9 a gallon.

G & G SHELL, located directly across the street on Hollenbeck has regular for $1.14.

COLLEGE SHELL, located across the street from De Anza on the corner of Stevens Creek and Stelling, has regular for $1.14.9 a gallon.

U.S.A. gas station on Stevens Creek and Blaney is open 24 hours and offers regular for $1.15 a gallon.

If you drive a newer car and it uses unleaded, you too can find some fairly good prices if you pump your own gas. FILL 'EM FAST and GEMCO are the cheapest at $1.19.9 a gallon. The U.S.A. station and the TEXACO STAR AND BAR on the corner of Fallenleaf and De Anza Boulevard just south of K-Mart, offers unleaded at $1.23.9 per gallon. GAS-N-SAVE, located just north of Prospect on De Anza Boulevard, sells unleaded for $1.25 a gallon.

If your car runs on nothing but the best, you can expect to pay a little more than everyone else at the pumps. The savings again comes when you pump your own gas. GEMCO is again the lowest priced with super at a cost of $1.23.9 a gallon. You can get super for $1.24.9 at the U.S.A. station. GAS-N-SAVE and G & G SHELL on Homestead and Hollenbeck, both have super for $1.26 a gallon. COLLEGE SHELL has super for $1.26.8 and DE ANZA SERVICE CENTER, which sell Mobil gasoline, has it at $1.27.9. The DE ANZA SERVICE MOBIL is also located across from campus on the corner of Stevens Creek and Stelling. If your car uses diesel instead of gasoline, there are so many savings for you too. The U.S.A. station sell diesel for $1.09 a gallon. If that is out of your wallet then the TEXACO STAR AND BAR has diesel for $1.11.

If you do not like to pump your own gas, then the best price for full-service can be found at SLATE'S SERVICE MOBILE on the corner of De Anza Boulevard and McClellan Road. Full-Service is also fairly inexpensive at KEN EXXON, directly across the street from Slate's.

All of the major service stations mentioned above will accept their respective gas cards, purchases, and some will accept checks and bank-cards. Most of the self-service stations will take Visa and Master-Charge. To be sure though, it is probably safe to phone ahead and find out. The prices are still not what we would like to be paying before the "crunch," but they are still cheaper and seem to be going down even more.

WHAT COULD THE ARMY POSSIBLY OFFER A BRIGHT PERSON LIKE YOU?

Drop your guard for a minute.

Even though you're in a two-year college right now, there are many aspects of the Army you might find very attractive. Maybe even irresistible.

See for yourself.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS

If you're thinking of eventually going to a four-year college, it's not too early to start thinking about an ROTC scholarship.

There are 2-year and even 1-year ROTC scholarships available.

They cover tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus $100 a month living allowance. Naturally, they're very competitive. Because besides helping you towards your bachelor's degree, an ROTC scholarship helps you towards the gold bars of an Army Officer. It's worth looking into.

WINGS & A CHOPPER

With two years of college under your belt, you can get preferential consideration for Warrant Officer Flight Training.

If you pass all the tests and qualify, you'll go through 40 weeks of rigorous and valuable training.

You'll earn the distinctive bars of a warrant officer and the silver wings of an Army aviator. You'll have at least 175 hours of flight instruction, 40 hours with a flight simulator, 4 weeks night qualification, and enough classroom work in aerodynamics, meteorology and aerial navigation to last a lifetime.

The result is a rewarding, responsible and prestigious position as an Army helicopter pilot.

STRIPES FROM THE START

What you've learned in college has already earned you a promotion in the Army.

It's true. If you join the Army with two years of college, you can start two pay grades higher. Instead of being an E-1 with an empty sleeve, you can come in as E-3 with stripes.

It means about $60 more a month in your paycheck. And a lot more opportunity in the long run. Since you'll be literally wearing your education on your sleeve, your talents won't go unnoticed by your superiors.

And starting out right can really help you make the most of the Army.

A BONUS FOR PART-TIME WORK

You can get a $1,500 bonus just for enlisting in some Army Reserve units. Or up to $2,000 in educational benefits.

You also get paid for your Reserve duty. It comes out to about $1,000 a year for 16 hours a month and two weeks annual training.

And there's a special program that lets you fit your Army Reserve active duty around your school schedule.

It's something to consider. Because even if you went to a two-year college because it was less expensive than a four-year college, you know by now that it still isn't cheap.

A CHANCE TO GO ON WITH COLLEGE

If you're thinking you might even go further with your college education, the Army can help there, too.

A few years in the Army can help you get not only the money for tuition, but also the maturity to use it wisely.

The Army has a program in which money you save for college is matched two-for-one by the government. Then, if you qualify, generous bonuses are added to that.

So 2 years of service can get you up to $7,400 for college, 3 years up to $12,100, and 4 years up to $14,100. In addition, bonuses up to $3,000 are available for certain 4-year enlistments in selected skills.

Add in all the experience and maturity you can get, and you can see how the Army can send you back to college a richer person in more ways than one.

We hope these Army opportunities have intrigued you as well as surprised you.

Because there is indeed a lot the Army can offer a bright person like you.

Illiac IV - Largest computer in the world

by Mike Smith

Located at Ames Research in Moffett Field Naval Base, the Illiac IV was designed by the University of Illinois in 1960 and manufactured by Burroughs Corp. Its primary functions are fluid-dynamics, image processing (Landstat), sizemics simulation and weather forecasting.

Housed in its cabinet are 64 processors linked together electronically which makes it about the size of a diesel locomotive. Under maximum conditions it is capable of processing approximately two million instructions per processor in one sec. to make it one of the fastest array computers.

During exile, Cleaver disillusioned about revolution

latter part of their exile was spent in Paris.

AT ONE POINT, Cleaver was part of a delegation of journalists travelling throughout Asia under Communist auspices. Cleaver said these visits disillusioned him about his goals for a revolution.

"I was among a whole network of revolutionaries, and all of a sudden we didn't agree anymore," he said. "It was in the way people were treated if they disagreed with the government.

"It began to be clear to me that the attitude we (the Panthers) had been expressing--the approach to change in an overthrow of the government--was ill-advised."

HE BEGAN to understand that people in many countries are still struggling for the basic rights and civil liberties that most Americans take for granted. "All sharp contrasts," he stressed, "to what I knew existed in the United States."

In 1975, Cleaver began to get homesick. "I had left," he said, "because I didn't want to go to prison, not because I wanted to go away. Our children were forgetting English even though we tried to keep it alive. We were afraid they were becoming a cultural hodge-podge."

He had a religious revelation on night as he sat on a balcony seriously considering suicide. He woke the next morning and decided to surrender. He was confident that everything was going to be all right.

Cleaver was aware that more black politicians had come into power during his absence and he felt the political climate might be such that "would allow me to have my case adjudicated in a fair, calm manner."

SURRENDERING WASN'T easy, but finally the Cleavers got through the red tape. He was imprisoned for nine months in the Alameda County Jail until August, 1976, when a $100,000 bond set him free to await trial. The trial was delayed for four years while Cleaver's attorneys successfully sued for government documents on the Black Panthers. Cleaver made lucrative use of this time on the celebrity speakers' circuit, earning up to $5,000 per lecture, and by publishing his second book, "Soul on Fire," which tells of his childhood experiences, his escape from the United States, and his being born again.

Judge Winton McKibben of the Alameda County Superior Court, who sentenced Cleaver last January, said, "I believe people should have a chance to rehabilitate themselves. I feel you have changed for the better and I feel it would be highly vindictive to send you to jail."

CLEAVER WAS referred to the College through the Oakland Volunteer Bureau and has been working part-time here since June.

The following queries were answered by Mr. Cleaver for La Voz during this October 15 interview:

LA VOZ: Mr. Cleaver, in your "Aside to Ronald Reagan" of 1968, you said that Reagan was a cowardly craven-hearted wretch, not a man, a punk. Yet you have been quoted lately as saying you were going to vote for him. With this in mind, what is your view of his 1980 Presidential campaign, versus those of Carter and Anderson?

CLEAVER: Anderson I dismiss: he has no serious chance. However, by garnering as much publicity as he has, he has contributed greatly to giving credence to third party efforts for the Presidency. I expect him to help Carter to lose.

I voted for Jimmy Carter in 1976, and I am very disappointed by him. He was the first Southern man in the White House since the Civil War; he wasn't a product of the Eastern Establishment or, like Nixon, of the coalitions. He was unknown, a new force. After he was elected, I watched him carefully, and I became very alarmed. Although Carter had publicly acknowledged and thanked black support as a key winning factor in 1976, he did not live up to his campaign promises; he treated the blacks very callously.

There seemed to a vacuum in the White House; Carter wasn't in control. This lack of leadership created bad problems for the U.S. Domestically, he showed no imagination as to what group would bear the brunt of inflation.

Carter also has a dismal international record. He and his top men, especially Zbigniew Brzezinski, are a disaster for American interests. They see by the strategy that Marxist Communism is the wave of the future, and the best step forwards is to accommodate Soviet and Third World expansion in an orderly way. This can be seen in the Canal, in the Mid-Eastern situation, and China in relation to the Taiwanese mismanagement. The Soviet Union and Third World countries are becoming more aggressive--they think the U.S. will always give in, which, of course, it can't. This is a situation that can break into war.

I am not willing to help Carter to get re-elected. I campaigned and voted for Ted Kennedy in the primaries. When he lost, he threw his support behind Carter, which left me in a dilemma. At a meeting of black politicians recently in Oakland, they felt that Carter was a s.o.b. but that they would throw their support behind him because he was the lesser of two evils.

However, I felt this kind of thinking was nullifying my power of choice. So, I stepped back from my old prejudices against Ronald Reagan, and, after a careful evaluation, I decided Ronald Reagan is not that bad. He was a capable and imaginative administrator, able to carry out his duties. I did not like the way he ran California, but then, at the time I was very narrowly motivated by the black cause and the war in Vietnam. I feel he is my only choice this election year.

LA VOZ: In the relative anonymity of your current life, do you find that you miss the publicity, the activity of your old life, when you were involved with the Panthers, or even when you were more active on the lecture circuit?

CLEAVER: Well, definitely not the Panther publicity. That was a very dangerous situation, we were living from day to day. Many of us were killed--I was shot. Peace is better than war. I have no nostalgia for the sixties. You know, I meet college students today, and they want to do what we did then. They have no idea what it was like.

About the lecture circuit--the truth is that the more lectures I gave, the more planes I had to catch--and the more afraid I became of flying. I spoke to around 86 colleges, and by the time I hit the eighty-sixth, I didn't care if I ever gave another lecture. I really just want to be home more; I have only a small number of speaking engagements planned for the future.

LA VOZ: On the night of April 6, 1968, you were in a three-car convoy of 14 Panthers that met with a cruising police car. In your own words, your group opened fire first, severely wounding Officer Richard Jensen and, to a lesser extent Sergeant Nolan Darnell. Of your sentence for this Darnell said "It's lousy. They tried to kill themselves two police officers." What is your reaction to this, and what is your relationship now with the police?

CLEAVER: This particular officer is very one-sided. He disregards the fact that our side was in much worse shape and that one of us was killed. He neglects to point out that, at that point in time, the Oakland Police Department behaved in a criminal way towards black people. Police departments in general admit that they treated blacks wrongly during that time. Blacks were rebelling against the status quo, and the police were acting with the perspective and mind-set of that day.

Police departments are a necessary and positive instrument of society. It's the duty of the police to enforce laws, fairly and impartially. It's the duty of citizens to uphold the law and respect police officers.

LA VOZ: When you returned to the United States from Paris in 1975, you had experienced a religious revelation, which you described in your latest book, "Soul On Fire." How does this experience affect you and your family life now?

CLEAVER: It's difficult to say. Families are subject to the tensions of society and mine is no exception. Religion gives a general overall context to our life. In the past, Maceo and Joju have attended Christian school. It has instilled in them a different category of respect for parents and elders. Our religion is a help but not a cure-all.

LA VOZ: Mr. Cleaver, you have said that you are in favor of disciplining women and you say that you beat your wife. To quote: "To remove the power of a husband to discipline his wife and children is like making a man the head of a corporation with no power to administer to the affairs of that corporation." Have you ever met any woman that made you change your mind?

CLEAVER: Sure! I didn't say that women, as a gender, should be beaten. I meant that the principle of disciplining is structured into the institution of marriage. Wives obey their husbands.

LA VOZ: Mr. Cleaver, you are working here at De Anza, and you are taking classes at Foothill; what is your impression of this college district?

CLEAVER: First of all, both campuses are physically appealing--beautifully landscaped. One thinks of all the learning and free thought flourishing here. I am impressed by how easy it is to enroll. I mean, the learning is practically here for the taking. However, I wish that the administration and staff were a little more humble and would take more notice of the human being who are their charges. They're too much in a hurry.

LA VOZ: Out of all the articles on you and all the interviews you have participated in, what percentage of these do you think have been accurate and true to what you said?

CLEAVER: Very, very few.

ASDAC wants more publicity, art foundry, and better dance bands

Ron Moffett, last year's director of activities, who now acts as a deliberator for the Associated Students of De Anza College (ASDAC) Council, addressed last week's meeting by declaring it the first time this quarter that council members showed interest and participation.

"These people proved their potential today in getting things done," Ron relayed.

Added to the potentiality list were three new members. Gary Craig was appointed director of student activities, and pledged to be "responsive to the need of the students."

Elected as co-director of publicity was Cherye Fichter. She believes some of the "bigger events" hosted by De Anza should be advertised in city newspapers, as well as La Voz, in hopes of attracting more people.

MARK PARRISH WAS elected as director of publicity. Mark said he wanted to work closely with the rest of the council, devoting a lot of time.

Earlier in the meeting, the council approved a $600 request made by Joyce Hendry of the Fine Arts Division. Initially, the Art Department, had been granted $1600, which serves approximately 460 students a year, for the fiscal school year. The extra money will be allocated specifically for the purchase of an art foundry.

DESPITE THE VICTORY, Bill Cleveland, dean of Fine Arts, was irked by statements made by state Senator Al Alquist at a meeting that member Carmen Garcia had attended earlier. Garcia relayed that the senator accused school districts of wrongly giving the teachers 6-year contracts. Senator Alquist allegedly went on to say that these type of contracts make it almost impossible to get rid of the "bad" teachers.

Cleveland sternly negated the senator's allegations by claiming that only one-tenth of one percent of the total number of teachers get 6-year contracts and the rest are given only 1 or 2-year contracts.

Another topic discussed was the "cheap" bands that played at De Anza's dances last year, resulting in poor attendance and audiences consisting of mostly high school kids. Member Tina King plans to listen to a tape of the rock band "Star Wars," a band that will hopefully attract a larger De Anza crowd.

Counselors support College Day

On Tuesday, Oct. 21, De Anza College's counseling department will sponsor "California College and University Day." 1:30 p.m. in the main dining room of the Marjorie Hinson Campus Center.

Representatives from over 35 four-year colleges and universities will be available to answer questions and furnish information about transfer programs, admission requirements, financial aid and housing. The event will be from 9:30 a.m. to

Representatives from Cal Poly and San Jose State will be among the twelve state colleges and universities present. Seven University of California Schools will be represented, including UC Berkeley and UCLA. Eighteen independent colleges and universities will also be present.

Masquerade for Anderson

The Los Gatos Chapter of the Anderson For President Committee is sponsoring a fund raising costume dance Friday, Oct. 25 from 8 p.m. until midnight.

The ticket contribution cost is $15 for singles and $25 for couples. "However, half of the ticket price can be refunded through tax credit if you file for it," pointed out Rich Shaw, committee member.

The dance will be held at the Los Gatos Woods Recreation Center, located at 99 Summerwood Drive in Los Gatos. Music will be provided by Mogie Jones; beer, wine and champagne-punch will be served at no
