Flint Center, Affirmative Action advisory committees reactivated

By STUART GORDON

Two District-wide advisory committees, one applicable to affirmative action and the other to Flint Center, have been reactivated by the Foothill-De Anza Board of Trustees.

According to Nilo A. Sarmiento, District personnel service director, a new and reconstituted advisory committee will assist with the planning and implementation of the District Affirmative Action Program.

Such a committee is currently a requirement of the State Chancellor's Office, Sarmiento said, and reactivating the committee would be in compliance with this requirement.

Sarmiento said the committee would serve as an advisory body to the District chancellor and its functions would include assisting in determining what areas have become problematic regarding affirmative action; reviewing the courses of action that are recommended to alleviate these problem areas; evaluating the affirmative action program and recommending changes where required.

Part of the function and jurisdiction of the committee would be to study and make recommendations about the replacing of certificated staff positions that open up in the District, he said.

Although the advisory committee would have input on such decisions, Sarmiento said the respective college presidents at De Anza and Foothill along with a special ad hoc selection committee would still have final say.

Foothill's Multicultural Division has acted as the Affirmative Action Office's representatives in monitoring the selection process of certificated staff on this campus, Sarmiento explained.

He noted that the new committee would differ significantly from its predecessor in its relation to the District and in its membership. Meetings of the previous committee were discontinued because of lack of attendance by members, Sarmiento said.

"Although there hasn't been any formal Affirmative Action Committee for the past three years . . . there has been continued involvement of former com-

Draft counselor sets up shop

By DEBBIE FITCHEN

"I protest the draft because I have seen it ruin too many lives," said Jonathan Bell, a draft counselor. Bell was on the Foothill Campus last Tuesday to discuss the draft with students.

"The problem with the Vietnam war was that people began to become confused about what they were fighting for. That should be prevented. I'm here to inform students—not to convince them," said Bell.

Bell, a Quaker, spent one year in prison during the Vietnam war for resistance. The fine today is up to five years in jail and $10,000.

Deferments or exemptions from the draft do not include students, but do include persons who do not meet physical, mental or moral standards, full time ministers or ministerial students, veterans, persons whose dependants would suffer unusual hardship, some aliens, and a few elected officials.

"We are going back to the World War I procedure of draft. Keeping a full standby draft is too expensive, so instead names will be registered on a computer. This means that in the event of an emergency a person can be called having never been screened. The computer finds your name and you can be on your way in just 28 days," explained Bell.

Bell says that his primary purpose is to make students aware of the draft, especially those that are vulnerable. "There is so much misinformation about the draft that many individuals are confused and fearful," he said.

Bell's general advice is to understand that you are potentially vulnerable, and should your number be called, you will either have to qualify for an exemption, go into some branch of the military, or become a fugitive liable to imprisonment if found within this country. "There are no other choices," Bell said.

"I am shocked by Carter's call for draft registration. It's a permanent battle. An anti-draft counselor might as well set up a permanent shop," Bell said.

As for women in the draft, Bell said they can worry less. "The proposal made by Carter is very confusing and hard to understand. Neither Carter or the Congress seem straight on the issue of women," said Bell.

Anyone interested in advice can call the CCCO organization in San Francisco. The number is 566-0500.

Palo Alto to Foothill direct

Foothill College students who commute from the Palo Alto area will have more direct County Transit service starting April 7 when Bus Line 24 which goes from Palo Alto to San Jose is extended to include the Los Altos Hills campus.

Currently, students coming from Palo Alto have to take Line 23 from central areas of the town and then change to line 52 at Foothill Expressway and El Monte Road. The change often involves long delays and up to an hour in travel time.

Line 24 will take students all the way to the Foothill campus. After leaving Foothill, it will also stop at De Anza College in Cupertino.

Timetables will be available the first week of April at the Foothill Campus Center reception desk and at the College switchboard in the Administration Building.

Instructor calls Carter's war cry absurd

"Technologically we are much more advanced than the Russians," said Foothill history instructor Truman Cross in a recent interview.

Cross maintained that though the Russians have 4 million people in their armed forces to our 2.1 million men and women this does not mean we are weaker.

"We have anti-tank guns that when pointed in the right direction are almost 100 percent accurate," said Cross.

"This cry for more men and more weapons is ridiculous," he declared.

"Two of our submarines correctly positioned could launch missiles knocking out every Russian city with a population over 100,000," Cross claimed.

"We have 30 such submarines on patrol at all times.

"The bottom line is that if we all turned down our thermostats and drove our cars a lot less we wouldn't be dependent on the middle east for oil," he said.

Cross can be contacted by dropping a note in his Campus mailbox in the administration building. Other local groups working to prevent the draft are:

1) People Against the Draft (325-6785): Provides information, counselors, literature, speakers and other resources.

2) Stanford Against Conscriptio (327-9081 or 497-9544): Talk to John Bower about their 200 members and work collectives.

3) Women's International League for Peace and Freedom (323-3648).

4) American Friends Service Committee (752-7766 in San Francisco).

Vince Larkin

'Joke Off' winner wow's 'em

By ADRIENNE STEELE

Vince Larkin, currently a Theatre Arts Major, won first prize in the First Annual "Joke Off" Foothill College Comedy Competition on March 6 in the student lounge.

Larkin's winning performance consisted of imitations of Presidents Nixon and Carter, Oral Roberts, Jimmy Stewart, Howard Cosell and Ted Kennedy.

Larkin has been winning shows with his President Carter imitation since his high school days at Los Altos High when his talent earned for him an appearance with the Ink Spots at the Keyboard Theatre in San Francisco.

Larkin has also done roles in "My Fair Lady," "Carousel," "The Matchmaker," and "Jesus Christ Superstar." He appeared recently on two occasions at L'Omelette restaurant in Palo Alto, and has been a three time guest on the Al Collins show, "Jazzbeaux Open House" at television station KTSF, San Francisco.

Larkin is in his second year as a Theatre Arts major and also plays trumpet in Foothill's Concert Band.

New catalogue due out

The 1980-82 Foothill Course Catalogue will be out in mid-April according to Kathy Amir-dash, who is one of the people helping to put it together. The catalogue will "list all courses that Foothill can offer," she said.

Whether certain classes are offered every quarter depends on which division they are from and also on the amount of students interested in each class.

It is hoped that about 11,000 copies will be printed. Students will either be able to get the catalogue at cost or perhaps even below cost, though no price has been set.

Campus Briefs

Competition for disabled

More than 350 physically handicapped students from the San Mateo and Santa Clara County schools will compete in the 3rd Annual Special Games on Friday, March 28, at the Foothill College Stadium.

Co-sponsored by Division 34 of the Kiwanis Clubs and by Foothill College, the Games will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and will be open to the public free of charge.

The Special Games were developed as an inter-school competition for students aged six to eighteen who might not qualify for the Wheelchair Games or Special Olympics.

Bikers pedal for Foothill

Foothill's Bicycle Club will be the first to represent a Community College in intercollegiate racing and touring. The Bicycle Club is one of the newest clubs on Campus.

There are approximately five schools in California that are represented by Cycling Clubs. All of the schools are University or State Colleges such as Stanford and Berkeley, but Foothill will be the only Community College to date.

The club is hoping to host its first race sometime in March. Some of the money will be earned through fundraisers on Campus. The students will provide nearly two-thirds of the money for jerseys.

The Club came before the Student Council last Thursday requesting a 100 dollar grant for jerseys and a 50 dollar loan for the race. They were granted both.

Free jazz demo set

A special lecture-demonstration on the development of jazz literature is slated for Monday, March 17, at 1 p.m. in the Foothill Library, Room 8.

The free program will start with discussion of the James Baldwin short story "Sonny's Blues" and continue with brief performances to illustrate the evolution of jazz music by Denny Berthiaume (keyboards), Michael McGriff (drums), Gregg Kuljian (trumpet), John Morrow (bass), and Joe Gallo (clarinet). Both Berthiaume and Gallo are members of the Foothill language arts faculty as well as being musicians.

'Golden Age of Comedy' has final run

On Friday evening, March 14, the final program in the Foothill Film Society's "Golden Age of Movie Comedy" series presents the inimitable W.C. Fields in "The Bank Dick" (1941) and the two-reel short, "The Pharmacist" (1933).

A Warner Brothers cartoon,

"The Goofy Goobers" (1946) and a newsreel of the day complete the program.

There will be two complete shows at 7 and 9 p.m. in Appreciation Hall (A-61). Admission: $1.75 general, $1.00 with ASFC card, $1.25 under 18/over 60.

Work abroad and earn credits too

By CASSANDRA GUTIERREZ

"The personal growth that a student experiences through this program is enough to keep me involved," claimed Dr. Gunter Seefeldt, head of the International Cooperative Educational Agency. "This program," he explained at a recent Foothill press conference, "involves a concept of world understanding generated through a work experience."

Through this program, students from Foothill, as well as other universities and colleges, have a unique opportunity to spend ten weeks during the summer working in a foreign country.

Seefeldt emphasized that all students, to be considered for the program, must be at least 18 years of age at the time of employment, and must have had three quarters or two semesters of a foreign language.

According to Seefeldt there are stations available in Switzerland, Belgium, France, Germany, and the Canary Islands. He also stressed that due to the large number of available positions in Germany and Switzerland the program is always looking for students who are currently taking German.

Participants work at various jobs such as those found in department stores, resorts, hospitals and farms. "The monthly salary for these jobs," explained Seefeldt, "depends on the position and the country."

Seefeldt also cautioned that all students interested in the program must undergo a careful screening process, and after they are accepted into the program must take some preliminary courses involving eight written assignments, including a five page paper of intent.

"This paper," explained Seefeldt, "reveals what the student expects to gain in terms of learning through the anticipated work experience."

Seefeldt added that after the ten week work program is completed, the students are responsible for a final paper detailing their experience. "These papers," Seefeldt said, "are later used as introductory sources for future interested students."

Seefeldt elaborated that all students who successfully complete this program may receive 12 quarter units of transferable International Cooperative Education credits.

According to Seefeldt, each student is assured of a work contract and housing situation before they depart, although if a student is terminated due to unsatisfactory performance he/she must assume further responsibility and risk while in Europe.

Seefeldt concluded his interview by stating that the International Cooperative Education Program offers students the opportunity to combine classroom knowledge with a practical exposure to a foreign land. "This program," he said, gives students the chance to simultaneously become acquainted with the work, language, and culture of a foreign country while also earning college credit."

Students interested in the International Cooperative Education Program can get further information in the Foothill Administration Building.

Iranian student denounces taking of hostages

By RICK HOBBS

"If you understand yourself, you will understand society," said Nasi Hajjafari, a first-quarter political science student at Foothill. Hajjafari is from Iran.

"It was foolish to take hostages," she commented on the Iranian crisis. "I don't believe in that kind of tactic."

But she also noted that "Americans tend to be rigid in heart and mind in viewing the society and themselves."

Nineteen-year-old Hajjafari left Iran with her family one year ago after the revolution took place, but before Khomeini returned to Iran from exile in Paris.

"The revolution was a great time. Everyone participated—Moslems, Catholics, rich, poor—they all hated the shah." It was a time of great social unity.

Hajjafari saw some friends go to prison for ten years for reading a political book during the shah's regime. She saw many other acquaintances die in the streets, but like many of her countrymen was glad for the shah's departure from power.

Khomeini gained much political strength during the last three or four years before the revolution, according to Hajjafari. Students would secretly listen to cassettes of his revolutionary talks. However, to be caught with a tape in one's possession meant a certain prison sentence.

Seventy percent of Iranians are illiterate and uneducated, she said. Because of this, Hajjafari feels that now after riding the country of the shah's brutality, most people in her country don't know what they want.

The Iranian people found a hero in Khomeini, she said, although most educated people don't support him. "When people have heroes, they become lazy and don't think for themselves anymore."

But after one year in the U.S., Hajjafari sees that Americans "can use their minds but can't touch with their hearts." This tendency is the opposite in Iran.

While most Iranians struggle to know themselves and their social roles, people in the U.S. are too busy to do so, observed Hajjafari.

"In America most people are alien to themselves. Very few people go within themselves," she said.

The material wealth of the United States tends to distract its citizens from real human values, she noted. "Money isn't good or bad, it's an instrument to use, but don't let it use you," Hajjafari warned.

New weekly accepts challenges

By ADRIENNE STEELE

Bill Johnson, publisher of the Palo Alto Weekly, feels that one of the most important roles of a newspaper is to get a community talking to itself.

The first edition of the Palo Alto Weekly was Oct. 11, 1979. Johnson said that he hopes the Peninsula's newest newspaper will become a catalyst on issues affecting the Palo Alto area.

Johnson said, "The whole idea behind this paper is to develop local community awareness."

The paper plans to act as a vehicle for the expression of the divergent views within the community. The "role" of editorials will be to get people thinking and looking at problems in new ways.

An important page of the paper will be that of the guest opinion column and letters to the editor. Johnson said the paper is extending a challenge to the community to speak up and out.

The Palo Alto Weekly comes free to all residents of Palo Alto and is essentially dependent on advertising income.

However, said Johnson, the paper has received over $1,000 in voluntary $10 subscriptions.

Regular coverage of business news, all school activities and sports and environmental issues as well as Palo Alto and Stanford Cultural activities are planned.

The Palo Alto Weekly welcomes ideas for stories, interviews and editorials.

Correspondence should be sent to P.O. Box 575, Palo Alto, CA 94302. Deadline for correspondence is 10 a.m. Monday for that week's Thursday publication.

Editorial:

Let students and advisors decide advertising policy

By DEBBI HERATH

On March 7, the San Jose Mercury published an article headed "Clash looms at De Anza over student paper ad policy," thrusting an issue that had received little attention outside the Foothill-De Anza District into prominence.

The issue concerns La Voz's desire to advertise alcohol versus the District Council's fear that doing so would damage the college's image.

The original request was initiated almost nine months ago by La Voz editors and advisor Warren Mack. On Feb. 20, the District Council decided to table the request until next fall.

The SENTINEL Editorial Board and its advisor, Herman Scheiding, have unanimously decided to support the La Voz request to amend official board policy No. 5315.2 by deleting "There will be no liquor advertising," and adding "Each newspaper's Editorial Board shall have the right to review and reject any advertising." We would also delete "There will be no tobacco advertising" for consistency's sake.

We feel that the publishing of the SENTINEL should closely parallel the real life, working situation of a commercial newspaper. The decision of whether an advertisement of a legal product is of any value to readers should be left to the Editorial Boards of the SENTINEL and La Voz.

The SENTINEL Editorial Board believes that the present official policy forbidding advertising of alcohol and tobacco is a form of prior restraint and is in conflict with the First Amendment.

The SENTINEL Editorial Board currently screens all advertisement for its value to students' needs and wants and has rejected advertisements that were considered to be underhanded or misleading.

The present editorial board does not necessarily agree with the advertising of liquor and tobacco products, but future editorial boards may decide differently and that decision should be left open to them. A paraphrase of the time worn cliche applies here: "We don't agree with what they're selling, but we defend to the District Board their right to advertise it."

The additional revenue generated by the advertising of those products may become vital if Proposition 9 passes and college budgets are pared down even more.

What we are requesting is that Chancellor Fryer, the Board of Trustees and faculty realize that responsible journalism does not end with news items. We should not have to be restricted by policies that are definitely in conflict with the First Amendment and the free enterprise system. Let's not wait until next fall to revise and correct this policy.

We salute you, CHANCELLOR THOMAS FRYER. You are God's gift to womenkind. You care about us.

An hour after the SENTINEL hit the byways and pathways two plumbers showed up at the women's locker room to check-out the dribbling showers.

The plumbers showed up at a time when nobody was using the shower. It works fine, if, used one at a time. The problem arises when several of the women are using it at the same time.

Do I dare to even suggest to the all powerful, independent plumbers what to look for? Here goes—fellas. It won't do you any good to check the shower heads. I do believe the problem is with the pressure gauge.

Lamaze method earns kudos

By CASSANDRA GUTIERREZ

"You can't imagine the thrill I felt as the baby left my body," said Marcia Partch, a Foothill student, describing her experience with the Lamaze method of childbirth.

In 1973 Partch gave birth to her second child, Suzy, using the Lamaze method.

Partch presented a brief history of the Lamaze method, first introduced in France by Dr. Ferdinand Lamaze as "childbirth without pain."

Partch stressed that the whole idea is to "eliminate fear and thus alleviate pain." She said that a positive attitude is needed toward birth, and this must be reached through education and relaxation-breathing techniques."

Partch believes that natural childbirth is safer for the baby because under other methods the mother receives anesthesia to minimize pain. According to Partch, "This anesthesia might also slow the child's first reactions."

Partch said Lamaze emphasizes bringing the husband into the childbirth experience. She said that "The husband plays a very important role psychologically as well as physically." She said her own husband, Bart, was opposed to the idea at first and had to be "talked into it." She added that he did "feel more a part of the birth of their second child."

Partch notes that "people who consider the Lamaze method usually tend to be more aware and concerned about their babies."

"I recommend all prospective mothers to give it a try," Partch said. "Not only is it a peak experience, but it is less dehumanizing than conventional methods, and it also enables the husband to take a very special part in the birth of the child."

AS AN INSTRUCTOR OR ADMINISTRATOR AT FOOTHILL COLLEGE, WHAT IS YOUR REACTION TO PROPOSITION 9?

STAN ROSENBERY (Head of Language Arts Lab):

It will be a disaster if it passes, it will mean that they will dismantle a very fine educational system that sent a man to the moon. People forget that it was this system that enabled us to achieve all that we have.

LINDA HEINEKE (Instructor in printmaking and drawing):

I think that the proposition is most damaging to low income groups such as students and people on fixed incomes, i.e. retired people.

IREL LOWE (Registrar):

Proposition 9 will cause a lot more harm to every individual than good. What people are going to give up as a result of Proposition 9 will not be made up by the amount they save in their state income tax.

NAYAN McNEILL (Division chair, language arts):

Proposition 9 will mean tuition for community college students in California and will effectively undermine public services. Don't call it Jarvis II, and give it and him free advertising.

STUART ROE (Instructor in film and broadcasting):

Sequels are always disasters, Jaws II will hopefully bomb at the box office. People will lose more than they will gain from Proposition 9, however it demonstrates that there is a great deal of anger and frustration amongst the voters and Proposition 9 seems to them to be a natural way to strike back at city hall, when actually they are only hurting themselves.

Chorale festival at Foothill

By WILLIAM BURKE

The Foothill Music Department will host the first annual Foothill Competitive Chorale Festival on Friday and Saturday, March 14 and 15. The festival will feature several choirs and vocal jazz ensembles from colleges and high schools in the Northern California area.

The festival will be divided into parts, with the choir competition taking place on Friday and the vocal jazz on Saturday.

Also featured at the festival will be two evening concerts following the day competition. The choirs and vocal jazz ensembles will compete for places in the finals which will be held as part of the evening performances, where the winners in each event will be announced. The concerts will be highlighted by performances by the Foothill Choir on Friday night, and the Fanfairs on Saturday night.

As an added attraction, the festival will feature a special vocal jazz clinic by noted jazz vocalist Abby Lincoln on Saturday afternoon.

Admission for the morning and afternoon competitions is free. Tickets for the evenings concerts are $3 general and $1.50 for students and seniors.

Fanfair groups I and II will perform as part of the evening concert at the first annual Foothill competitive Chorale Festival on Saturday, March 15. The Fanfair II group is also planning a 10 day concert tour in the midwest from April 25 through May 4.

NASA films shown on campus

By DEBBI HERATH

"Space is the place" was the theme of two films shown March 6 by Foothill's Space Exploration Society. The two films, which were made available through NASA and were made in 1978, were "Space Shuttle" and "Earthspace-Our Environment."

"Space Shuttle" concerned the "Enterprise" and the "Columbia," two new types of space craft.

"Enterprise" is the first non-expendable shuttle that will replace the old type of expendable launch vehicles at about half the cost. "Columbia" is the first space-rated orbiter and would be launched from atop a 747.

FSES president Joakim Lindblom explained that although these two crafts were supposed to fly in the latter part of 1979, trouble has developed with the main engines and the crafts aren't expected to be commissioned until November or later of this year.

"Earthspace-Our Environment" examined the initial discovery and understanding of the magnetosphere which is located in the upper atmosphere of the earth. Scientists believe that the magnetosphere has a great effect on the weather and shields us from the sun's harmful radiation.

The space shuttle is expected to put man into the magnetosphere for long enough periods of time to measure and chart its movements.

David Ramadanoff, (above), associate conductor for the San Francisco Symphony, conducted the Foothill Master Sinfonia in a concert featuring works by Bach, Strauss, and Brahms last Sunday afternoon in the Foothill Theatre.

John Sevely, Foothill's no. 1 seeded tennis player, will be out to redeem himself against West Valley Thursday and De Anza Friday, as will the entire Owl squad. Sevely was upset last Friday by Canada's John Huebner, 6-2, 2-6, 5-7. Foothill lost the match to Canada, 5-4.

Swimmers, women netters continue to top opponents

By MICHELLE BALLINTINE

According to Coach Dennis Belli, City College of San Francisco is going to be a very easy win for the Foothill swim team this Friday.

"I was really pleased with the outcome of the meet against West Valley with the women winning 65-39. The men lost 66-44 but they made some important state qualifying times," said Belli.

"It would have been much closer for the women if the West Valley coach had planned their line up better," continued Belli. "We were neck and neck at half-time but we had an unexpected win in the 100 meter freestyle relay. We also had great diving results which really made a significant difference in the winning score."

"The men had some tough competition. Diver John Bace has definitely been the highlight for the men's team for the last few weeks. This week he also won both the one and three meter boards with Scott Marshall and Erik Taylor close behind."

"Chris Murphy won the 200 meter freestyle and Randy Armstrong made good times in the 50 and 100 meter freestyle," said Belli. "The most significant time was definitely the men's 200 meter medley relay where they qualified as fourth fastest for the state championships later this season."

Lisa Wisecavage won all three of her events. She is now second fastest in the state 100 meter breaststroke and 100 meter freestyle and third fastest in the 200 meter individual medley. Suzanne Cummins is second in the state for the 100 meter backstroke and first for the 50 meter freestyle with Sara Jennison second.

Ellen Hand won both the women's diving competitions against West Valley with Jody Benoit a close second on the one meter.

Foothill's women's softball team starts its Golden Gate Conference games this week. The Owl's meet San Jose City College on Tuesday, West Valley here on Thursday and travel to Chabot on Friday. Next Tuesday, Foothill meets Laney at Foothill.

"I have not really had a chance to see any of the other teams except for West Valley and De Anza," said Coach Joe Lee. "Those teams are going to be very tough games, especially since West Valley won the conference last year."

"I'm at a slight disadvantage because I wasn't around last year. Even if I had been, it would still be hard to compare teams from year to year on the collegiate level because they change so drastically."

Last week Foothill lost to Canada 9-4. "Our hitting is improving steadily," continued Lee. "We need more work on our fielding, but by working on the infield in particular I hope to tighten up our play to give us a better chance in the conference games."

The Foothill women's tennis team, after a heavy week of competition, will have a rest during the spring break before it plays Chabot.

"Chabot is one of the four best teams in our conference league. The other three contenders are West Valley, Diablo Valley and Foothill," said Coach Jeanne Tweed. "I hope to have a good match after a week of rest and practice."

Foothill whipped City College of San Francisco 9-0.

"This was a great match, even though it was really windy, because we won all of our doubles which is something we haven't done before," said Tweed.

Foothill also beat De Anza 8-1, losing only the No. 6 singles game.

"De Anza is a young team but they have a very good number one player and their doubles were a real challenge," Tweed said.

The next day Sunnyvale Tennis Club gave the Owls some hard competition and Foothill finally succumbed, 5-4, according to Tweed.

The Foothill women's track and field team will meet against Chabot College on Friday at Foothill.

"Chabot, one of the favorites for the conference title, is definitely the favorite on Friday," said Coach Jack Parks. "Our women have been practicing hard and have competed very successfully so far this season so there is no reason why they can't make an honest bid to win."

There were seven different colleges at the Golden Gate Relay meet held at Foothill last Friday. The women placed in ten out of the 12 events.

"Heidi Hansen displayed a variety of talent and endurance by participating in seven out of the 12 events. This is possible because there is no event limit at the collegiate level," said Parks.

In the field events Hansen, Jean Herceg and Kim Frieberg won the javelin; Peri Raboff, Karen Johnson and Frieberg placed second in the discus, Raboff and Johnson also placed second in the shot put. Hansen and Terri Bliss came in third in the long jump with Hansen also placing fourth in the high jump.

Netters upset by Canada, track sets four records

By BRAD ABLEY

They had all the praise, prestige and talent among junior college tennis teams and even some four-year schools. They even had the best JC player in the state last year — JOHN SEVELY. What the Foothill Owls may have lacked in last Friday's match against Canada, however, was the intensity they needed to overcome the Colts. The Owls may have been ripe for an upset.

"I felt it could be good for us in the long run, because it will show us we have to work harder," Foothill coach TOM CHIVINGTON said minutes after his team was upset by Canada, 5-4.

As a result, Canada holds the advantage over Foothill in the team's efforts to win the Golden Gate Conference team championship. And should both teams provide the expected — namely to win their remaining GGC contests — Foothill would have to beat Canada twice, both times at Canada, in the post-season playoffs to advance to the Nor Cal playoffs.

Dating back to last year's conference playoffs, Canada has now beaten Foothill in the last three matches. Ironically, the Owls beat the Colts in the only regular season match in 1979, but lost twice in the playoffs, both matches being held at Foothill.

Friday's match was decided in the doubles competition. Sevely was upset in the no. 1 singles by JOHN HUEBNER, 6-2, 2-6, 5-7, and both teams tied in singles, 3-3.

Huebner and MIKE CODIGA upset ED HEATH and ROBERT CONNELLY, 6-3, 7-6, in the no. 1 doubles, and DENNIS SANDKULLA and JOHN SWETKA lost to JEFF JACKLICH and MARK McNALLY as the Colts won two of the three doubles to win the match.

Foothill, which played University of San Francisco Tuesday and West Valley Thursday, faces De Anza Friday at 2 p.m. at Foothill.

The Owl track team continues to rewrite the record books, as it set two school records and two meet records last Saturday in the Golden Gate Conference relays at Chabot.

The Owls finished second in the 440 relay in 41.8 and took first in the 880 relay in 1:27.4 to set the Foothill marks.

CLEVE PRINCE ran a 46.8 leg in the mile relay, followed by IVAN COLEMAN'S 47.7, MALCOLM DIXON'S 48.3 and TOM DEENEY'S 50.2 to give Foothill a winning time of 3:13.3 and a meet record. The relay team is reportedly one of the best in the nation.

In addition, Dixon tied a meet record in the 110-meter high hurdles with a 14.1 effort. The Owls took four firsts and seven second places in the event.

Foothill opens its first conference meet against Chabot, Friday at 2:30 p.m. at Foothill.

Good hitting, defense and pitching were instrumental in the Owls' 4-0 record prior to its game against West Valley Monday.

But according to baseball coach AL TALBOY, "That's when everything caved in." The Vikings, thanks to a homer, a grand slam, and poor play from the Owls, whipped Foothill, 16-4.

"Everything fell apart," explained the second baseman DAVID AZCUETA. "Too many errors, walks, the grand-slam and the homer. It all added up to 16 runs for them and not enough for us."

SCOTT STEINDORF (3-0) received the pitching victory in the Owls' win over City College of San Francisco last Friday. IVAN WHITE was scheduled to pitch against Diablo Valley on Tuesday, Steindorf against De Anza on Thursday (at Foothill, 2:30 p.m.) and KRIS KREBS is scheduled to throw against College of San Mateo Saturday at 11 a.m. at San Mateo.

Hansen placed third in the 100 meter high hurdles while Jensen was fifth in the 100 meter dash.

In the mile, 440 and sprint medley relays Foothill came in third, fourth and fifth respectively, with Jensen, Alttrochi, Raboff, Bliss and Hansen making up the relay teams.

"Bliss, Jensen and Raboff also showed an ability to be versatile in up to four different events which will really add depth to the team," said Parks.

Advisory committees

mittee members and others in the selection of staff," he said.

The new committee will differ from the earlier one in that:

—there will be only one District-wide committee where before there were three independent committees.

—membership will be the same for both colleges (four from each college with four alternates) in terms of representation and the appointing process. Previously, membership was a campus decision, with each committee on campus having 12 to 15 members.

—the new committee will be officially recognized by the Board of Trustees as an advisory body to the chancellor where before it was not recognized nor was its role clearly defined.

—provisions will be made for the formation of subcommittees to meet the unique needs of each campus.

"Reconstituting the committee with the new features would make it more effective . . . more efficient and would improve communication between the colleges," Sarmiento said.

Committee membership would comprise four officially designated representatives and four alternates from each college respectively: one manager appointed by the college president, one faculty member appointed by the Faculty Senate, one classified staff person appointed by CSEA (California School Employees Association) and one student appointed by the Student Council. Term of office will be one year.

As District affirmative action officer, Sarmiento will chair the committee and represent the Chancellor.

"Care should be taken that there be a balance in the membership with respect to race, sex and the handicapped," advised Sarmiento, adding that "the committee will meet as the need arises and requires."

Jay Doty, executive director of Flint Center, requested that the Flint Center Advisory Committee be reactivated to "assist him in moving towards more effective planning and programming" for that facility.

The Board of Trustees approved that request at its Feb. 21 meeting.

The Committee will provide input on proposed guidelines and policy regarding scheduling, rental fees and programming.

Members of the committee will include two members of the Foothill-De Anza Board of Trustees, six community representatives, one representative from the Flint Center Foundation Board of Directors, Foothill and De Anza Fine Arts chairpersons, two faculty representatives nominated by the District's Faculty Senates, and two student representatives appointed by the Foothill and De Anza Student Councils. The executive director of Flint Center will chair the committees.

ASFC (Student Council) has begun accepting applications from students interested in applying for student representative on this committee. Those interested in the position should contact Mrs. Thacher or Brian Geary in C-31.

Career Day 'big success

By LESLIE LUTGE

Career Day, which was held last Wednesday, March 5, in the Campus Center, was a "big success," according to Lynn Stockwell, director of Veteran's Affairs at Foothill.

Career Day was sponsored by the Cooperative Work Experience and Placement Offices and was attended by representatives of approximately 40 Bay Area employers who were present to discuss career opportunities and set up job interviews with interested students.

"Although it is too early to tell if any students acquired jobs through Career Day," said Stockwell, "I know that many students were able to make excellent connections and arrange future interviews with various companies." Stockwell added, "The communication between the representatives and the students was the most beneficial part of the entire day."

Among the several letters of appreciation and commendation from the companies to the organizers of Career Day was an exceptionally appreciative note from Foothill's President, Dr. James S. Fitzgerald, stating how pleased he was with the outcome of Career Day.
