"THE VOICE OF DE ANZA"

FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1976

CUPERTINO, CALIFORNIA

VOL. 9 NO. 25

Former Cupertino Mayor Reed Sparks presses the all-systems-go button, signifying his support for Proposition 4. On Spark's right is Dr. Howard Diesner, Foothill-De Anza Community College District Trustee.

Board pushes Prop 4: De Anza stands to gain

De Anza and Foothill Colleges will gain nearly $4.5 million in construction money over the next three years if efforts to pass Proposition 4 are successful at the June 8 primary election.

The Foothill-De Anza Community College District Board of Trustees Monday night kicked off local efforts to get voter approval of the 1976 Community College Bond Act.

Reed Sparks, former De Anza student body president and ex-mayor of Cupertino, has been named to coordinate media and campaign activities for this area. He was introduced to the district board of trustees at a Monday dinner meeting.

SPARKS NOTED that California's two-year colleges already enroll the "single largest collection of students in higher education institutions in the free world." Moreover, the community colleges are expected to grow by another 180,000 students in the next three years.

"As enrollment continues to grow, it's not hard to see that we will be forced to limit enrollment if we don't have funds for new construction and the replacement of unsafe facilities," Sparks said.

PROPOSITION 4 authorizes the sale of state general obligation bonds, and permits the state to continue to provide a 50 per cent share of community college construction costs.

Proponents of Proposition 4 say passage of the measure will protect homeowners from excessive increases in local property taxes. These would be necessary to pay for needed construction, they say, with the alternative being to slam the door in the faces of students of the future.

Opponents claim voter approval of Proposition 4 would indeed result in a tax increase because if local property taxes aren't increased, some other tax will be. If the bonds are sold, the state must pay the interest on them--and those interest payments will have to come from state taxes, they say.

THE PROPOSITION is supported by a variety of teaching and educational organizations, as well as by the California Chamber of Commerce, the educational arm of AFL-CIO and Governor Jerry Brown.

Specifically benefiting from successful passage of the measure are these De Anza projects: Physical Fitness Laboratory, a new classroom building, site acquisitions for off-campus centers and preliminary work, construction and equipment for the Learning Center.

Foothill would benefit by acquisition of a Mountain View Center site and library construction and equipment.

Elections chairman Myllenbeck dismissed

Paul Severino was confirmed last Tuesday to fill the vacancy created when former elections chairman Richard Myllenbeck was relieved of his duties by ASDAC president Richard Mannina.

Mannina asked Myllenbeck to "turn in his key because he had missed two of the six house meetings."

He also charged that Myllenbeck, who had never been confirmed by the house of representatives "had only one election poll and that was understaffed," during the representative election last March.

Myllenbeck responded by saying, "I had attended all the council meetings but none of the house meetings. I wasn't required to attend the house meetings."

He also said that he had maintained an adequate election booth and that in between elections he had been organizing an election board committee.

Trustees confer: discuss cap, alternatives

Budgetary development problems this year under the "cap" have indicated a need for the board to closely evaluate future programs. The budget, William Lambert, district controller, said, needs direction and that is the purpose of the workshop.

AT THE board of trustees meeting Monday a donation of $1,000 from A.R. Jennings to the De Anza Auto Tech Department was unanimously approved. "The donation has been given to the department for several years," Ed Hank, vice president of the Auto Tech Club, said.

Under the direction of the Educational Employees Relations Board (EERB) the trustees rejected petitions of two school employee associations that were hoping to represent the district's classified staff (non-teaching employees).

Trustee Norman Shaskey, opposed the decision because he thought the board should have responded to the employee associations to indicate who the board officially supported. "The response of the board should have been to have an election between the two groups," Shaskey said.

ONE OF THE reasons for the decision, Dr. John Dunn, district chancellor, said, is that out of 34 signatures on one of the petitions, 17 of the same signatures appeared on the other petition.

The board determined by unanimous consent that the restoration of the Trianon be exempt from environmental impact regulations. There was no response from the public concerning the negative declaration of the environmental impact of DAC's Child Development Center. The board reaffirmed its response at the meeting and recommended that the Center not be exempt from environmental regulations.

Program, services upped 50 per cent

De Anza will receive $118,563 if the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges approves the money for the Extended Opportunity Program and Services (EOPS).

Governor Brown included $11.5 million for Community College EOP in the legislature's budget, calling for approximately a 50 per cent increase over the current amount spent on EOPS.

EOPS AWARD recommendations were based on the institution's need and a review of the school's financial aid operations. Each school can advocate their request for funds through the EOPS Advisory Committee and the Board of Governors.

The recommendations call for no school to receive less than 85 per cent of what it receives this year.

Money for tutoring, special counseling, books, lunch card programs, transportation, subsistence grants and services to students by the colleges has been awarded to 100 two-year schools in the state.

Of the neighboring colleges, Foothill will receive $81,326, San Jose City, $118,628, and West Valley, $78,800.

Elections put off

ASDAC elections committee has postponed Spring elections until May 25 and 26 because of a lack of candidates.

The deadline for candidacy petitions has been extended twice, and is now noon May 11. Only four petitions had been received by the elections committee by the previous deadline.

No previous experience is necessary for candidacy, however, applicants need a 2.0 GPA and must carry at least eight units during term of office. Division Representatives must be majoring in the field that they represent.

All applications are subject to approval by the elections committee. Candidates approved will meet Wed. May 12 at 11:30 in the Don Bautista Room.

There will be an open candidates forum in the El Camino Room on May 19.

'Voz wrongs Shaskey

La Voz regrets that two inaccuracies appeared in the page one Shaskey, Harris debate story, Friday, April 30. The first error is located in the fifth paragraph. The paragraph is attributed to Harris; it was actually Shaskey who said, "100,000 barrels of oil a day could be saved" by recycling bottles, as is being done in Oregon.

The seventh paragraph falsely said that in the last year the United States added 236 and only abolished 21 government commissions. The paragraph should have said that in the last 15 years the United States added 236 government commissions and abolished 21.

Hubbard warns audience about nuclear hazards

By Mary Mabey

Former General Electric nuclear engineer Richard Hubbard warned a De Anza audience Monday with his concern about "the survival of mankind, not the survival of an industry.

Hubbard's specific areas of concern are: waste, safety, emergency evacuation plans and insurance limitations. Two other nuclear engineers who resigned from GE's nuclear division in San Jose share Hubbard's views.

"The nuclear industry has become an industry of narrow specialists with little comprehension of the total impact of collective actions," Hubbard said. "The number of human errors is the weakest factor in nuclear plants," he declared, citing all phases of design, construction and operations.

RECORDS INDICATE SAFE storage of waste material to be unsatisfactory. Liquid radioactive material is stored in metal tanks, Hubbard said. "Some have migrated a half mile through the ground as in Maxi Flats, Kentucky."

With 30 years experience behind the industry, "They ought to figure out how to keep this waste from people.

"Many plants are operating under 'grandfather' type systems and don't meet today's standards. Further, the capitol building is being brought up to earthquake standards — "Why aren't they bringing nuclear plants up to those standards?," he demanded.

PLUTONIUM MUST BE kept out of the environment for 480-500 thousand years. Whether it is 10 or 500 years, it's too long," Hubbard declared, adding, "Even low amounts of radioactive material is harmful."

Hubbard related a near-disaster that occurred at Browns Ferry, Alabama in which a nuclear reactor had a near core meltdown and could have released toxic material into the environment through air and water.

"Breathing only one millionth of a grain of plutonium causes lung cancer, 85 per cent of the time," Hubbard disclosed.

DURING THE BROWNS Ferry fire, confusion resulted in internal procedures and notification of authorities. Hubbard contends emergency evacuation plans are not readily available for the public or within the industry.

Hubbard also questions why liability insurance is limited by the Price Anderson Act to $560 million dollars.

In the event of a nuclear disaster, "This would pay the public three cents on the dollar," claimed Hubbard. "We should have unlimited liability, if not, the output of nuclear plants should be decreased to 60 per cent power."

Letter Stereotypes unfair

I'm writing this letter in response to an article that appeared in your latest issue of La Voz. It was the article concerning the Indian Football game.

The author of the article quoted Steve McLemore (instructor of De Anza's Native American Studies program) as calling the female participants "squaws" and the male participants "braves."

It's been confirmed that these were not the terms used by Steve. Both "squaw" and "brave" are typical stereotypes of Native Americans.

It is my understanding as well as the understandings of others that the purpose and objective of Ethnic Studies courses is to reduce and possibly eliminate the stereotypes that are placed upon ethnic groups.

Articles such as the one that appeared in La Voz do nothing but reinforce these false stereotypes.

The feeling of concern over this article has not been limited to just myself but also to others.

Steve McLemore has done an outstanding job in presenting his student with a realistic view of the American Indian. A misquote of this severity seems to ridicule all that he believes in.

Those students that know Steve realize the obvious mistake, but do others? Please be more accurate in your articles in the future!

Speaker recalls America

Dr. John Higham, professor of history at John Hopkins University, will speak in Flint Center next Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Higham's presentation is entitled, "Remembering America: where has it gone?" and is a part of the SLS 90 series.

History instructor Sandra Herman did graduate work under Dr. Higham. "He has tremendous clarity — an ability to communicate with the public in a meaningful, easy-to-understand fashion and yet with scientific precision in a very scholarly fashion."

Herman said she did not want to second guess Dr. Higham but she thought he would probably deal with the loss of a sense of community in America, with emphasis on our attitudes toward immigration and racial relationships.

Dr. Higham is the winner of the American Historical Society's Dunning prize and has written several books including, "Strangers in the Land," "Patterns in American Nativism," and "Send These to Me: Jews and Other Immigrants."

Tickets for students not enrolled in the course will be available at the door for $1.50.

Registration date nears

Citizens must register on or before May 9 to vote in the June primary.

Voting qualifications are that a person must be 18 years old, a U.S. citizen and must register at least 30 days before the election. Re-registration is necessary if there has been a change of address, change of name, or change of party affiliation. Failure to vote in a general election.

Change of address cards are available, according to Nancy Hertert of the League of Women Voters, at main post offices and may be used for Santa Clara County changes. The Cards must reach the registrar's office by May 7.

Perspective voters may register at the voter's office at 1555 Berger Drive, San Jose, the Sunnyvale Public Safety Building, the Cupertino fire stations from 4 to 6 p.m. and Cupertino or Sunnyvale city offices or may phone the League of Women Voters. Absentee voting may be applied for in person or by mail at the voter's office.

The address of a voter's polling place and precinct number will be attached to the sample ballot and sent by mail. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. till 8 p.m.

Disabled persons who are unable to get to the polling place because of physical barriers may vote outside the poles. Elections officials are authorized to go outside with the ballots to the person's car if necessary. A person needing physical assistance in the voter's booth may have the help of two people.

WOC doles out dough

Four hundred dollars will be awarded in scholarships from the Women's Opportunity Center this year.

A committee including students representing the Women's Re-entry program and the Women in Transition program created the scholarships.

The WOC is placing its earnings from De Anza Day and the Christmas Craft Faire into four $100 scholarships. Two will be awarded to women studying at De Anza, one goes to a woman transferring to a four year school and the fourth goes to a woman in the DACPE program.

Women from all divisions are encouraged to apply by May 20 and submit a transcript and letter of recommendation from a faculty member. Applications can be picked up in the Financial Aid Office and the Women's Opportunity Center.

Six individuals will walk away with $100 each untested, unless more division scholarship applications are turned in.

Every year $100 is given to a student from each division in the day and evening college and to a student in Integrative Studies (day only).

So far 25 applications have been turned in for the $1,900. Physical Science and mathematical, Biological and Health Science, Language Arts, Engineering Technology, Integrative Studies and Physical Education divisions.

The deadline for turning in the application, letter of recommendation and personal statement has been extended once already.

The requirements for the scholarship are a 2.5 GPA and a current student body card.

Assortment dances through Flint

By Jan Barker

When one attends a debut of a new dance-theater company, especially a student group, the usual reaction is to cross the fingers and hope the mistakes aren't too obvious.

However, in the case of De Anza's new resident company, The Assortment, pre-nerves were unnecessary. Much to the delight of the Flint Center audience last Friday, the group created an interesting display of talent and energy.

The Assortment dancers are Jose' Alvarado, Phyllis Bugglin, David Calicchio, Woods Johnson, Deborah Jones, Irene Kimura, Shannon McEntee, others include Mary Perez, Peggy Phillips, Ricardo Romero, Judith Ryan and Yvonne Marie Sanchez.

The 12-member group, directed by Dr. W. Grant Gray, coordinator of the College's dance department, began with a lyric work by Antonio Vivaldi entitled "Vivaldi." The number premiered in California in 1965 and was one of the most energetic dances in the concert. Synchronization was slightly off in various leaps but space and energy were used to such an effective degree that slips appeared to be a mere expression of individuality. The group, throughout the performance, remained poised and in total control.

An effective portion of the concert was a pre-recorded film of several members of the group acting out movements to Paul Simon's "Fifty Ways to Leave Your Lover." The film, humorously intended to break up scenery changes, was a brilliant idea but unfortunately was over-used. Perhaps if the theme or tune was altered, the concept would be more refreshing.

In "What I Saw In the Parade" the group blended its theatrical talent with dance to create satires featuring characterizations of ex-president Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, and others. The dancers and the dance itself appeared to accelerate during the number. An excellent use of space, leaps, stunts and slides contributed to the humorous performances by the entire company.

A major portion of the concert centered around "Stuffed Dates and Viette Vignettes!" which consisted of 17 silhouetted numbers. The choreographer, Dr. Gray, with the help of the late Robert A. Pawlikowski, created the work

CESDAC circles star

Reduced ticket prices to the May 16 performances of The Fifth Dimension and Johnny Rivers show at Circle Star Theater, are available in the Student Activities Office for $5.85.

Only newly issued tickets will be accepted because of the discovery on April 6 of 36 missing tickets.

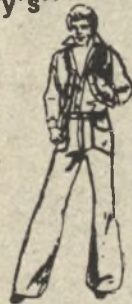

The incident was unfortunate, Allison Thompson, activities staff assistant said.

"CESDAC," Thompson explained, "had to absorb the expense of replacement." She stressed that none of the original tickets are redeemable.

for a production already entitled "Oasis."

The dances were humorous but once again the idea was over-used throughout the performance. Fewer dances in this satire would make it a more concise number.

The best number of the evening was "Castles, Dunes and Zabaleta" which showed a sharp contrast to the company's previous dances. This number changes the entire pace of the performance and pointed out the technical ability of the dancers.

If the debut performance of The Assortment is an indication of the future of this company, sensational is too mild a term.

No losers at

Over 600 athletes, some from as far away as Pennsylvania, participated in the California Wheelchair Games hosted by De Anza College Sunday.

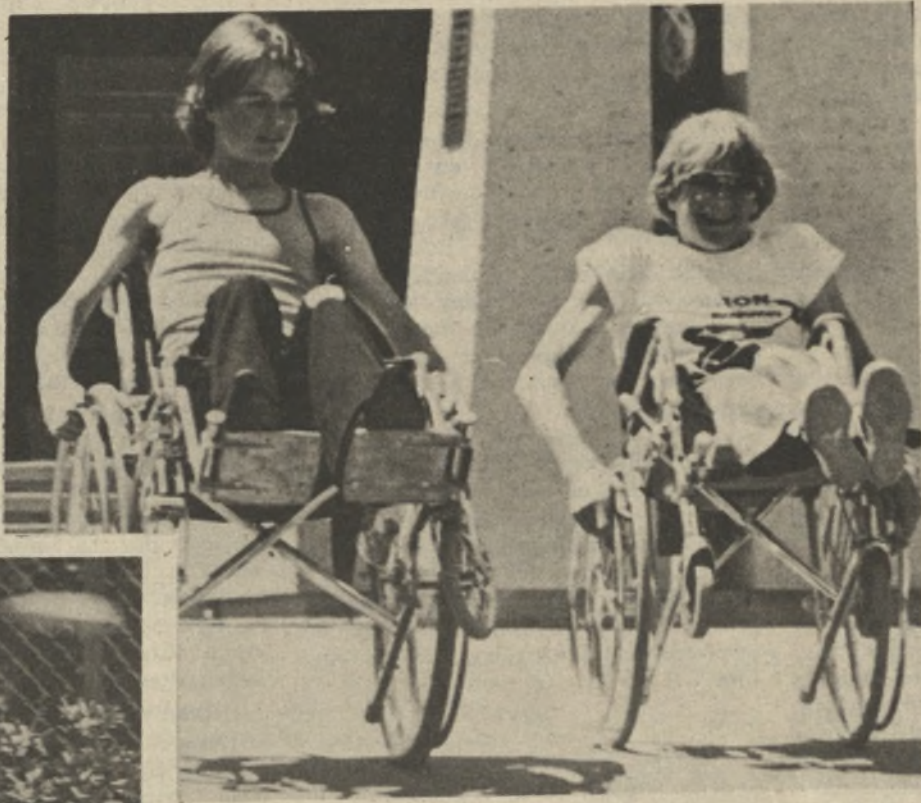

Ranging in age from 12 to 70, they are serious competitors in track and field, swimming, archery, weightlifting, slalom and table tennis on both national and international levels.

Jon Brown, for example, set a new bench press record of 565 pounds, breaking his old record of 562 pounds which he set in Mexico City.

For some, success here means the chance to compete in the wheelchair olympics in Toronto, Canada this August.

California wheelchair games

Student loans harder in future

College students could be facing a more difficult time obtaining loans from California banks because of the federal government's slow repayment of defaulted loans.

San Jose's student relations officer at Bank of America, Bob Stackhouse said, Bank of America has had the most liberal policy for student loans but will probably have to change standards, anticipating a heavier burden of loans.

"The controversy is over the government taking too long to pay back the loans we are unable to collect. When the money is tied up, the banks lose money. We will no longer be just handing out loans," Stackhouse explained, "but will be issuing them to students who really need them."

THE STATE'S SECOND largest bank, Security Pacific National, has announced that it will not offer new loans to students who are not already bank customers. United California Bank and Crocker National Bank have followed similar procedures because of the government's slow repayment method.

Since the program was started by Congress in 1965, California students have received 679,650 loans totaling $735, 332,000. The San Jose B of A branch has given approximately 6,000 loans since the program started, Stackhouse said.

Stackhouse suggested that since B of A handles well over 50 per cent of student loans, the main implication will be that the alternatives for students to take will be cut.

JOSE ROBLEDO, financial aid coordinator at DAC said Friday, that in the past students not eligible for a college-based financial aid programs would seek a bank loan for assistance because of its extra flexibility.

Now, however, Robledo suggests, students will find loans harder to obtain. "The alternatives for veterans are not as limited as for regular students. If a vet can prove that he has been turned down by a bank than the Veteran's Affairs office will grant him a loan. But regular students not involved with this are going to have a tough time."

Students currently involved in the Federal Student Loan Program are cautioned to inform their banks of changes in address or other information that might alter loan status. "If students keep in contact with the bank they are doing business with, there is no problem."

Sturm takes over in Tutorial Center

De Anza's Tutorial Center has acquired the services of J. Bruce Sturm as new center coordinator. Sturm, who resigned as an instructor at Homestead High School to take the position, has a B.A. from Villanova and a M.A. from Stanford.

He was an advanced composition and humanities instructor at Homestead before coming to De Anza. Most of his time was spent with college-bound students.

"A teacher must make a conscious effort to grow," Sturm said. In this process, he became interested in students who had learning problems. Consequently he is studying at the University of Santa Clara, working toward a degree in learning handicaps.

It was partially this interest in learning problems that attracted him to the position of tutorial center coordinator, Sturm said. He feels that this interest will help him meet the challenges of his new position.

Sturm said that different students learn in different ways. Some learn best by visual means, while others may learn best by hearing.

HOWEVER, IN MOST of our learning institutions, if a student has trouble learning by the method used, "he is dead." What we must learn to do, he said, is to adapt to the student's needs.

Sturm is 37 years old. He is married and the father of two children. He lives in Los Altos, but is originally from New York. He first came to the area in 1960 while in the Navy.

De Anza nine challenge CCSF in crucial test

By Tom Stava

The De Anza baseball team faces a must win situation in their battle against San Francisco City College this Saturday if they are to qualify for the playoffs.

The Dons carry an 11-12 mark into the affair although they are currently mired in a five game losing streak. They're a half game behind the fourth place CCSF nine who met second place College of San Mateo yesterday. CCSF's record at press time was 11-11.

De Anza's collapse began two weeks ago when they were riding high in third place with an 11-7 record. The roof seemed to cave in after the Dons suffered a disappointing defeat at the hands of league-leading Chabot, 5-4 in ten innings. From that point on their offense has been little more than anemic.

A lowly Diablo Valley club handed them a 6-3 upset on the Dons' home diamond, San Jose City smashed the error-ridden De Anza club 14-2, Laney shut them out 1-0 and in action at CSM last Tuesday they were handed a 6-1 setback.

Despite their play during the last two weeks, Coach Ed Bressoud remains confident that the Dons will regain their form for the CCSF contest which will be held at Skyline College at 11 a.m. due to the strike.

Bressoud said that he would make changes in the Dons starting lineup for the CCSF contest in the hope of producing more support for the pitching staff. He wouldn't elaborate until he had spoken with the team about the changes.

Bressoud will start five game winner Mike Brunnett on the hill against CCSF. Brunnett has defeated the San Francisco nine twice this season, 9-1 and 5-1, but most recently was set back by Laney 1-0.

He echoed Bressoud's confidence when he said, "I've got confidence in our chances against San Francisco. We've beat them twice already."

But Brunnett also added that "if we don't beat them now it just shows how much we've choked in the clutch."

The De Anza nine would advance to the playoffs next week against Chabot with a victory over CCSF even though their records might be identical.

Bressoud pointed out that their victories over San Francisco in their previous two meetings gave them the edge in the season series and if a tie were to result the Dons would advance.

In last Tuesday's contest San Mateo put together two base hits, two stolen bases and two more base hits in the fifth to score two runs and put the game beyond De Anza's reach.

The Dons retaliated in the fifth when they put together five straight hits but managed to score only one run. Catcher Jim Corstorphine led off by singling to center, and he was replaced by Rick Armer who pinchran for him.

Jim Coyne followed with another single and advanced to second on Bill Freeman's bunt single. Armer moved to third on the play and scored on the next when Brian Stuckey rapped a single to center. But Coyne was gunned down at the plate by CSM's centerfielder and although shortstop Dave Wickersham singled to left on the next play it was to no avail.

Burts a behind the scene star

The person behind the scene in team athletics is Leonard Burts, who takes care of De Anza's athletic equipment.

Working at De Anza since '67, Burts came here from his own business, a janitorial service he ran for nine years. A native of the area, Burts graduated from Mountain View High, enlisted in the Navy and worked in the Santa Clara Valley.

HE SAYS IT is much easier working for someone else than fighting the competition and government when he ran his own business.

The cleaning, sewing and inventory of school athletic equipment are his responsibility. Though Burts spends his days inside the men's locker room, he also takes care of women's athletic equipment.

Burts restrings tennis rackets and issues shoes and uniforms to basketball, baseball, track and football teams and to the women's track team. When a piece of equipment wears out or breaks, he deletes it from the inventory, and a replacement is purchased.

BURTS HELPED Campus Security investigate the theft of $1,000 worth of equipment in 1969. Since then security is tighter, and only coaches have access to the equipment.

In spite of the routine, Burts said he is not bored by the job. "I attend the games, and I'm always in there pulling for the team." Knowing the team members makes it more fun and "the kids are great" said Burts.

Typos lose miserably

The La Voz Typos softball team was soundly defeated 27-21 last Sunday despite a late inning rally which produced 13 runs.

The team from the print shop led by Dave Vellaquette and Greg Eger spent most of the afternoon jogging around the bases as the Typos' fielders raced futilely after the ball.

The Typos will confront the Foothill Sentinel in a crucial match next weekend.

Swimmers place 6th in state finals

De Anza swimming Coach Bob Wegman returned this weekend with six members of his team from the state championships amid mixed feelings. The meet, held at Cypress College in southern California, was won by Diablo Valley. De Anza placed sixth.

Wegman said, "We were a little disappointed. There was a mixup on the scoring. We were in fourth place until the meet was nearly over." The technicality concerned the way in which scratches on the scoring took place, dropping DAC to sixth.

Joe Quinby had the best individual performance of all the Dons with a first place timing of 4:36.48 in the 500 freestyle race. Wegman lauded Tim Elson for his fine performances

Despite breaking a national record, the 800 freestyle team (Doug Demerelli, Elson, Quinby and freshman Bill Hoenie) could manage only a second place showing to Diablo Valley's first.

Coach Wegman was satisfied with the overall performances of his team members. More than 90 per cent of DAC school records were broken at the meet.

Softballers bury MPC

De Anza's women's softball team remained in a three-way tie for first place by defeating a weak Monterey Peninsula College team 24-0.

MPC managed only 3 hits off starting De Anza pitcher Cindy Kirchoff. Kirchoff pitched five near-flawless innings, walking 2 and striking out 5 and had a fine day at the plat, collecting three hits in five attempts.

Other hitting stars for De Anza were centerfielder Debbie Calcaney, 3-6; first baseman Marnel King, 4-5; leftfielder Lori Hoffman, 3-4; third baseman Vicki Ascue, 3-4; and catcher Laura Hutto, 2-3. Overall the team went 24-43, and got on base also via two errors and six walks.

Starting pitcher Kirchoff traded positions with second baseman Debbie Gudis for the final two innings Gudis allowed one hit and struck out one.

The only real scoring threat from MPC came with one out in the fifth inning when first baseman Linda Cassara walked and third baseman Lora Jacobus hit a fly ball past DAC centerfielder Calcaney. However, Calcaney tracked the ball down and relayed it to second baseman Gudis who fired to catcher Hutto. Hutto tagged Cassara for the out. Jacobus wound up at third, but the next two MPC batters popped up and grounded out, respectively, and the inning was ended.

Historic building restored to former elegance

A group of concerned students are preparing the Trianon for restoration to its original (1895) beauty for use as a museum and classrooms. Group members are Naval personnel attending De Anza under the Navy's ADCOP program.

The Trianon, located on the west side of the De Anza campus, is a building of historical importance, as it was the entrance house to the main mansion on the grounds.

The ADCOP's are removing paneling, door frames, moldings, trims, and tearing plaster from the interior and exterior. "We are removing everything in the interior, intact," said Chuck Markusich, director of the restoration. "There is some very fancy paneling and frames inside, and we are cataloguing everything so when the contractor comes in he can replace everything in its original place."

The contractor will bring the building up to current earthquake standards and install plumbing and electrical wiring. He will also make a waterproof shell," commented ADCOP Larry Smith. "This will stop leaks so the interior will stay dry."

Smith added that volunteers were needed to help with the interior reconstruction restoration.

"Several years ago," Markusich said, "it would have cost $100,000 to restore the building, but the administrators fought against it and now it is going to cost five times that much."

"There have been numerous small fires and the vandalism inflicted on the building has been great. There is little security," Markusich added. "I wish we could build an eight-foot fence around the building to keep the vandals out."

Markusich was inspired to start on the Trianon restoration project by a plea for help issued in a History 10 class he was attending. "I had the abilities as a carpenter, so does every other ADCOP here, and because of our Navy training we all decided to apply our skills and learn while helping the college and community. We studied the architecture of old buildings, how they're constructed and what the builders of the Trianon were thinking when they were building it," Markusich said.

On May 5 the ADCOPs will be done with their phase of the restoration, then the contractor will finish up. The building should be open January 1, 1977.

Student dental plan projected to save students big money

A new student dental plan is projecting savings to students of 10 to 60 per cent on their dental bills. The plan is being offered by Denticare, a non-profit dental organization, in cooperation with ASDAC, CESDAC and the Health Office.

Students enrolled in one unit or more, and their dependents can be covered by the plan.

Individual membership dues are $33.50 annually. $58.50 covers two members for a year, and a family of three members or more can be covered by $83.50.

Examinations, X-RAYS, diagnoses, and two cleanings per year are all included as benefits of the program. Special discount rates on other dental services are also available to members.

To have a cavity filled which involves one tooth surface, a member pays a surcharge of $7, whereas the work would ordinarily cost $12 to $24.

The care of a cavity involving three surfaces, usually about a $36 proposition, costs members $18.

"Each tooth has five surfaces--the four sides and the top," explained Bob Shannon, co-initiator of the program, "and dentists charge for the number of surfaces a cavity involves."

Shannon and his partner Ed Galet, consultants on dental insurance programs, were first approached last year by officials at San Jose State University to find out if such a plan was available that was suited to the needs of the college.

WHAT MAKES THIS program attractive to dentists, said Shannon, is that it "fills the chairs which formerly sat empty 30 per cent of the time the office door was open."

Phil Plymale had the matter tabled. ASDAC agreed, after a time, that the student body would appropriate the necessary $200.

The money was used for the labels and postage on the pamphlets sent to every De Anza Student.

"I'm really pleased with it," said Foy, "and the students seem to be too. A lot of people have been calling and asking."

Few vets may extend benefits

Disabled veterans among the veterans whose benefits terminate May 31, 1976 may be eligible for continued schooling under the vocational rehabilitation program.

On the job training, flight training and vocational rehabilitation are the only ways benefits can possibly be extended past the May 31, 1976 cut-off date for veterans having service credit to May 31, 1966.

The number of veterans who will qualify for vocational rehabilitation after the regular GI Bill benefits terminate on May 31, 1976 are few.

The normal ending of vocational rehabilitation for the 1966 service date was October 1971. A five year extension can be granted under some conditions. Seriously disabled veterans who could not begin training during a period four years and nine months to five years after May 31, 1966 can be evaluated for training eligibility under the vocational rehabilitation program.

There are other factors that may cause consideration for extended training. Some rules have been changed since December 1975 and veterans that are or have been seriously disabled should inquire if they are now eligible for vocational rehabilitation training.

The application request is a simple one page form.

THE NORMAL PROCEDURE is for VA to review the application and if they find the veteran is eligible he will be given an appointment with a rehabilitation counselor at the VA Regional Office in San Francisco for further processing.

Petitions deadline set

Petitions for June 1976 graduation must be submitted by May 14.

Reinea Goldseger, counselor, said Monday.

"Some students assume that their degrees will be granted automatically upon completion of graduation requirements. However, it can not be over-emphasized that a petition must first be filed."

THE FORM to complete is "De Anza College Petition for Graduation." The assistance of a counselor is necessary and generally requires a half-hour interview.

DAC jazz wins again

The De Anza Jazz Ensemble garnered another honor last Sunday night when it was awarded the $300 first prize in the Santa Clara County Music Merchant's Association Jazz Faire IV.

Two finalist bands were selected from the junior high, high school and college level competitors which appeared on April 9.

The finals were held in the San Jose Center for the Performing Arts.

The band also placed third behind Cal State Northridge and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas in the Pacific Coast Collegiate Jazz Festival on April 24. The final event marked the end of two full days of competition between 250 jazz bands from all over the West Coast.
