VOL. 14, NO. 16 Foothill College, Los Altos Hills, Calif. 94022 Feb. 25, 1972

"MAJIA DES NUDIA"

The new film "Goya," part of Universal Studios' Museum Without Walls series on art now at the Palo Alto Children's Theatre on Mon. Feb. 28 at 2:30 and 7:30 with a third showing on Tuesday at 7:30. Traces the artist's life through his creations. The eleven-film series lasts five weeks.

KFJC has new format

By RICHARD HUNT

Has anyone noticed a change in KFJC this quarter? There certainly has been one. Under the supervision of Jack Hasling, program director Ross Forbes is now operating KFJC on a rock-jazz format.

KFJC station manager Bill Lethridge, in cooperation with Forbes, invites any item of community interest or public service you would like to extend to the public, bring it by M-1 or telephone it in at 948-9870.

An attraction coming this Friday morning from 10-10:30 a.m. is a tape of Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers Party candidate for President of the United States. Also, there will be a rebuttal from Foothill student and former Naval Academy student Steve O'Connor.

The length of shows have been extended from two to three hours, and in some cases four hours. Another attraction away from the normal format is Sunday evenings from 6 p.m.-8 p.m. During this time, special shows are played.

For example, Elvis Presley and many other stars have had the entire time dedicated to them. Coming March 19 will be a feature on Neil Young.

Daily, once at noon and again at 5 p.m., concise and up to the minute news coverage is available. Educational programs are provided daily during the morning from 10-12 and again Sunday evening, immediately before the specials.

KFJC is on the air seven days a week from 7:30 a.m.-midnight, and operates on a frequency of 89.7 FM. Fel Mo' has a soul show Monday night at 6-9 p.m. Late Monday night brings big Bill's jazz corner, 9-12 p.m. and Friday night is Kerry Lorricks show, music for the people 6-9 p.m.

What's happening on campus?

Student Faculty Forum with host Jack Hasling will be presented Sunday at 5:30 p.m. Hasling, general manager of KFJC, interviews various faculty members of Foothill College. This Sunday, there will be a discussion with the Broadcasting 76 class on the potential of radio.

MECHA produces a half hour on Thursday, 5:30-6 p.m. and Sunday, 5-5:30 p.m.

KFJC welcomes information on items of community interest to air in the form of Public Service Announcements. Contact Rick Corrigan, Continuity Director, if anyone has an announcement they would like aired.

Child-care Center denied funds

By CATHERINE HUBBARD

Funds for setting up a more efficient child care center at Foothill was discussed at the Board of Trustees meeting held at De Anza Jan. 19.

The Board of Trustees requested that the Foothill Child Care Center summarize the activities that took place at the center for the Fall Quarter.

Although no future plans were made, the Board suggested to Sharon Stevens, President of the Child Care Center, that she look into the possible funds available, either state, federal, welfare, or private, that could be used to expand the present operation.

Sue Schaefer pointed out to the Board that the various funds available all have different stipulations as to the regulations that have to be met to be eligible to receive funds. The principle problem being that no children under two years old would be allowed to use the Child Care Center.

The Board suggested that the present Child Care Center could be kept in operation and another center could be opened by using the available funds.

It was then decided that Mrs. Stevens, with the help of faculty member Fred Critchfield, should look into all the possible areas of funding and make their recommendations to the Board in the future.

Some of the current problems at the Child Care Center were brought up by Mrs. Stevens. The fire marshall made certain recommendations for the improvement of the safety of the building which has not yet been met.

The district said they would be putting in a fire alarm very soon. The Board suggested that members of the Child Care Center should take care of all the work themselves.

It was pointed out to the Board that the Child Care Center didn't have the money to do much of that work and the Board said that they had made no arrangements to do more work than was already completed.

Instead of having an eight-page issue of the SENTINEL today, we will be having a four-page paper today and another four-page paper Monday, so we can include full coverage of the ASFC election.

Foothill College professors Glen Moffet and David Roderick, and Dr. Herbert Williams of San Francisco State College are leading a tour to East Africa beginning June 25 and returning Aug. 5. The tour will include Kenya, Uganda, and Tanzania.

Highlights of this six-week trip will include the wildlife of most of the major parks and game reserves of East Africa, such as Aberdene, Murchison falls, Queen Elizabeth, Ngorongoro Crater, and Salvo National Park, which has world-famous Mzima Springs.

The rift country of Tanzania has Olduvai Gorge where Dr. Louis Leakey discovered many valuable fossils of prehistoric man. For the hearty, climbs of Mt. Kenya (17,058 feet) and Mr. Kilimanjaro (19,340 feet) are scheduled.

Photography buffs will enjoy Treetops Hotel, Thomson Falls, and the Serengeti National Park, where bountiful wildlife will be seen.

Cafeteria food rated 'terrific'

By DAN MARCHANT

Foothill's cafeteria is a non-profit organization which operates for the benefit of students, teachers, and school employees. The cafeteria is open from 10:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The meals usually consist of either two or three meals a day, and a good deal of work goes into setting them up. Items such as canned tamale pies and canned beef stews are not used, contrary to some students' beliefs. Most of the food is prepared right in the cafeteria's kitchen, and no outside operation or catering service is connected with the cafeteria itself.

The general opinion of most students is that the food is acceptable and good for the price paid. Some comments about the food and service, however, ranged from unprintable quotes to "plain lousy."

One student said, "It isn't the kind of food you would rave about, but it beats McDonalds." But the kitchen employees stated they know they aren't going to please all the people all the time. The employees claim they receive more compliments than complaints.

The cafeteria's 75 cent meal has remained at that price for eight years. Prices have generally remained the same for the past five or six years except for the prices of pies and cakes, which are brought in.

When asked to compare the food they had eaten at other cafeterias to Foothill's, those that answered generally agreed that Foothill's food was better.

Common complaints consisted mainly of not getting enough food for the amount paid, or were narrowed down to personal tastes such as the chicken being too greasy, or the pizza tasting like cardboard.

Some students wanted to know why the organic meals served last spring were no longer being served. To this, the head cook said, "During the first week everything went fine. But after that it fizzled down to almost nothing."

She said the main reason was due to the fact that the cafeteria had to charge more for the meals and the people who had wanted them found they couldn't afford it.

She cited the fact that a loaf of organic bread costs somewhere around 80 cents. When the meals did not sell, a great deal of waste naturally occurred.

The cafeteria is now selling three different types of organic muffins, with and without fruits and nuts, for 20, 25, and 30 cents. They are also selling organic apple juice for 30 cents.

Schofield is the man

By DIANE LUNDGREN

Most students at Foothill College who use the Foothill library know Tom Schofield, but not by name. He is the man who checks students' books as students leave the library to be sure that all books belonging to the Foothill library have been checked out and aren't overdue.

Describing his feelings about the job, Schofield says, "I enjoy the job because I get to meet people. I often see students about six times a day so I know a lot of the students quite well, even though I can't talk to any of them too much while I'm working." The reason for this is because too many distractions keep him from being able to be sure all books leaving the library are checked.

"Some of the students get a little teed-off when I have to keep checking their books," Schofield continued. But, generally, he finds that people are friendly.

Commenting further about his job, Schofield says, "The job can be a little boring because I'm put in one spot and I can't leave. But most jobs have their disadvantages."

The purpose of checking the books as students leave is to try to prevent library thefts, which has become a major problem. Schofield says, "I find quite a few students, about five or six per day, leaving the library with overdue books, but I don't catch people too often with books that haven't been checked out."

"There have been about six people in the past month, but it's hard to tell whether they meant to steal the book or not. They may have just been in a hurry and forgot to check the book out."

Besides checking books, Schofield also handles all of the loan cards for the acquisition department of the library, which is the department that deals with the circulation of all of the books and periodicals.

The loan cards are the cards that are stamped and kept by the library when a book is checked out.

Schofield is responsible for putting all of these cards in Library of Congress order (anywhere from about 200 to 500 cards per day), tabulating them on daily activity tabulation cards, recording them on a master tabulation sheet, and then filing them according to month and other categories. This procedure helps to keep track of the average of 10,000 books that leave the library each month.

Schofield also makes all of the signs seen in the library which announce such things as the dates the library will be closed during a particular holiday.

Before working at Foothill, Schofield worked for the Motor Vehicle Department in Santa Clara for ten years. In 1968, he retired, and then on Nov. 28, 1970, he started work at Foothill at his present job.

"Foothill is a beautiful place to work," says Schofield, "because I can look out and see the trees from where I work."

If English 1A students want

Advanced writing course offered more workshop experience in writing while they read material of personnel interest, English 2, advanced composition, may make them feel more secure about their ability to write.

English 2 will provide practice in advanced techniques of expository writing. Students will be reading journals in their areas of specialization and then writing for those fields. Business majors will be able to read business journals, Inhalation Therapy students will be able to read in their field, and then write on their research.

English 2 is being offered for the first time this spring. According to Jackie Carr, who will be instructing the class, "Having a prerequisite of English 1A does not mean that the class will be made up of advanced students, 'excellent writers', or English majors.

"Many students say they want to learn how to write papers for all classes, not just for English. Since writing is such an important part of getting through college, learning how to write for other classes seems to be essential to getting a degree."

The class is worth four units, and will meet Monday through Thursday at 2 p.m. English 2 will satisfy the advanced composition requirement for California elementary and secondary teaching credentials.

St. Joan rock opera

By SUSAN HALE
Arts Editor

To the left of the Old Town shops where crafts are displayed on the walks, sits the Centerplayers-at-Old-Town Theatre in Los Gatos. The non-profit theatre opened the West Coast Premiere of the rock opera THE SURVIVAL OF SAINT JOAN last Friday, Feb. 18, and plans to run the show on week-ends through March 12.

"Survival" is based on a legend that Joan was given the chance to have her life spared (prompted out of fear by the Bishop of Beauvais), by having another girl, similar in appearance, burned in her place. Joan summons her "voices" for approval, and though the saints give her no answer, she lets the girl burn and goes into the protective custody of a shepherd and his young son.

In time, she grows restless, flees the farm, and the shepherd in hopes of returning to the battlefield. On her journey, she encounters a wounded soldier, a blind man, is persecuted by a mob of people, and eventually is rediscovered and betrayed by the shepherd.

There is violence in the play, burnings at the stake, and knifings, but the skillful use of it communicates a strong message of peace and anti-violence. Heaven, says Joan, may not be as good as fighting, but "then again it's not too bad."

The band, called "Maxwell," is a fine group; they really enjoyed their sets and received very positive audience response.

in Berkeley. Reservations may be made by calling 845-4700.

The Ramirez Tijuana Brass Band Concert will be given at San Jose City College on Saturday, Feb. 26. The band was organized by Ernesto Ramirez in 1968, and is composed of the four Ramirez brothers and two colleagues, playing brass, organ, drums, and guitar. The program will be at 8 p.m. in the men's gym, 2100 Moorpark Avenue. Tickets will be available at the door. For more information, contact: 298-5064.

The critically-acclaimed film concert series, "Museum Without Walls," will be offered for community viewing by the Palo Alto Community players on Monday, Feb. 28. The series comprises 11 films to be offered in five separate weekly programs. The films include, "Picasso: War, Peace and Love,"

Magicians at DeAnza

"The Wondrous World of Magic" is scheduled to appear at Flint Center on Feb. 29, at 8 p.m. Children and adults alike will enjoy seeing rabbits pulled out of hats and other feats of magic performed by three professional magicians.

Mentalist William Wizard will also appear with specialized acts involving extra-sensory perception, while Count Cesare will perform acts using rope illusion. He is also knowledgeable about Eastern magic, especially sword acts.

Tickets are available at the door and priced at $1 general admission, 50 cents for senior citizens over 65, student body card holders, and children under 12.

Flint Center is located on the De Anza College campus at Stevens Creek Boulevard and Stelling Road in Cupertino, near Highway 85 and Interstate 280.

They occasionally became carried away, drowning out the soloists, although Tom Ribordy, who played St. Michael, has an unusually strong voice which did come through.

St. Joan was played by Debby Hamouris. As Joan, she did well, but her voice lacked projection when she sang, even during the softer sets, which is too bad, as there is much potential in it.

Cauchon, the politically corrupt Bishop of Beauvais, was given an absolutely beautiful "bitchy" performance by Timothy Kelleher, while Death, played by John Gilbert, was appropriately obnoxious.

Some of the songs are exciting and fresh, such as, "Love Me," "Survival," and "Jesus is My Darling."

Since this was the first showing of the play out here, it is expected that the sticky little problems will be ironed out. "The Survival of Saint Joan" will go far once it tightens up.

The use of incense, candles, and blacklight, increased the excitement of the play. Seeing it is an experience that will stay with you for many moons.

The address is 50 University Ave., Los Gatos. Phone is 354-8415.

"Goya," and "The Cubist Epoch," among others. All showings will be at the Lucie Stern Community Center, Middlefield and Melville in Palo Alto, in the Children's Theatre Auditorium. Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for students. Series prices are $8 and $6, adults and students respectively.

The works of Grafton Tyler Brown, lithographer, printer, and landscape printer, will appear in the Oakland Museum exhibition, "Grafton Tyler Brown: Black Artist in the West," now through April 22 in the Special Gallery of Cowell Hall in the Oakland Museum. Brown's work covers views of California towns between the 1860's and 1880's. Admission is free.

Alan Watts will speak on "Psychological Aspects of Mystical Experiments," on Friday, March 3, at 8 p.m. in the College Union Ballroom at San Jose State. The speaking engagement is sponsored by the Speech and Learning Center at San Jose. Tickets are $3 general, and $2 students.

Lily Tomlin will appear at Flint Center on Saturday, March 4, at 8 p.m., sponsored by the Associated Students at De Anza. According to Ms. Tomlin, in reference to her characters, "If the characters are true, they ought to make some kind of statement about the culture." She will be doing Earnestine, Edith Ann, and other characters. Tickets are $4 general; $3 for senior citizens over 65 and students. For more information call: 257-9555.

Charity basketball

Indians face Niners

The San Francisco 49er football team's basketball squad will play a charity basketball game against a team of former Stanford football players mostly tonight at 8 p.m. in the Foothill gym.

The game will be a benefit for the Peninsula Children's Center in Palo Alto.

Tickets are available at Jerry's Store for Men at 628 Santa Cruz Avenue, Menlo Park, and Palo Alto Sport Shop, 526 Waverly Street, Palo Alto, as well as Alhouse Realty, 2450 El Camino Real, Palo Alto.

The ex-Stanford players are playing under the name of Alhouse Realty, and they include Rose Bowl stars Don Bunce, Pete Lazetich, Ron Kadziel, Jack Lasater, Bob Moore, Dave Tipton, and Randy Vataha. Heismann Trophy Winner of 1970 Jim Plunkett may be there if business obligations do not interfere.

Also playing for Alhouse Realty are former Stanford shortstop Frank Duffy, and USF middle linebacker Dave Olerich, now with the Houston Oilers.

Another former Stanford football star will be playing for the opposition, Gene Washington, because he is a member of the 49ers. His basketball playing teammates will be defensive tackle Earl Edwards, safety Johnny Fuller, kicker Bruce Gossett, safety Mel Phillips, tackle Len Rhode, and fullback Ken Willard.

Bunce, wearing his old number 11 for the game, was drafted by the Washington Redskins, but the 6'11" 195-pound quarterback may go to Canada.

Duffy, 6'1" shortstop for the Cleveland Indians, played for the San Francisco Giants last season. He will wear number 14.

Kadziel was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys, but now is with the New England Patriots. He is 6'4", 225 pounds and his number is 87.

Lasater, 6'2", 190, was a split end for Stanford. He will wear 43.

Number 78, Lazetich, drafted this season by the San Diego Chargers, has good mobility for a 6'4" 240-pound defensive lineman.

Bob Moore, wearing 86, is now a tight end for the Oakland Raiders. He is 6'3", 225, and is extremely fast and quick.

Olerich, number 37, is 6'2" and weighs 220.

Number 16 is Plunkett, if he makes it, the 6'3" 220-pound quarterback for the New England Patriots.

Tipton, a starter with the New York Giants is 6'6" and weighs 235 pounds. He will wear number 71.

Vataha was drafted in the last round of the 1971 draft by the Los Angeles Rams, because of his 5'9" 175 pound size.

But number 18, after being cut by the Rams, made it with the Patriots.

For the 49ers, Edwards is 6'6", weighs 262, and wears number 74. Wearing 23 will be Fuller, 6', 185. Gossett, number 30, is 6' and 228.

Phillips is 6'2", weighs 194, and wears 32. Rhode, a 6'4" 248-pound tackle, wears number 76; Washington, 6'1", 188, wears number 18, and was named all-pro receiver for the past two years. Number 40, Willard, is 6'2" and weighs in at 216.

Getting ready for a new sport are former Stanford Indian football players Ron Kadziel, Don Bunce, and Jack Lasater, as they prepare for tonight's game against the 49er basketball team in a charity game for the Peninsula Childrens Center, in the Foothill gym. Their game will be preceded by a game between the San Francisco Playboy Bunnies against the waitresses from The Winery.

All school carnival today

An all-campus Carnival will be held today from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. in the physical education area.

Activities will begin at 2 with six sky divers jumping from 5,000 feet onto the football field led by Skydiving Club member Ken "Pop" Goodman, an ex-paratrooper.

There will be several rides, including a rock-o-plane, swinging gym, moon bounce, scrambler, and micro-mini-bikes. There is a possibility that there will be a ferris wheel, pony rides, and a baby elephant.

Other activities will include weight-lifting, swinging a hammer and attempting to ring the bell, a ring toss, a ping pong ball toss, a pie throw, dunking pretty girls in hot soapy water, knocking down Snoopy dolls. Knocking down the correct Snoopy doll will net tickets for Foothill's performance of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" at the auditorium this weekend.

Also in line for dunkings will be several faculty members.

There will be various games of chance and skill, including a marriage booth and a kissing booth.

The snack bar nearby will sell hot drinks, cakes, candied apples, snow cones, and cotton candy.

Pinkowski is hoping that all clubs on campus will participate in the carnival. "I hope the students and club members will use their creative abilities in the making of the booths," said Pinkowski.

The carnival, in conjunction with Pinkowski and faculty advisor Gene Hawley, is sponsored by the Intramural Council.

There will be no admission charge, but there will be a small charge for each of the booths.

"The carnival committee guarantees a good time for everyone," said Pinkowski. "The public is welcome."

Big upset win for cagers

The Foothill Owls basketball team came to Merritt's new gym last Friday night to play, as they pulled off a surprise upset by the score of 49-48 to extend their winning streak to three games.

Tuesday night, however, they lost to Chabot 82-68 despite K.C. Jackson's 29 points. Jackson scored 13 against Merritt, while Dick Supan with 12, Scott McLean with 10, and Ed Rutherford with seven, helped the balanced attack.

The teams were tied at 29-all at halftime, as neither team could build more than a four-point lead, until the second half.

Jackson hit a pair of free throws to tie the game at 45-all, and then Merritt began to stall. After a couple of unsuccessful steal tries, Jackson stole the ball from Don Williams and drove for the breakaway layup.

They missed a pair of free throws with 23 seconds left, and within three seconds, the Owls called timeout. The ball was inbounded, and McLean took a pass and drove for the layup with only eight second left.

Baseballers hurt by lack of hits

The baseball team has had D-minus hitting so far, and they have an 0-4 record to show for it, according to Owl Coach Al Talboy.

The Owls lost three straight in the Alan Hancock Tournament, with, "B-minus pitching, C-minus defense, and D-minus hitting," said Talboy. The hitting did not improve, as the Owls only got four in their 3-2 loss to De Anza Tuesday.

In the tourney, the Owls lost

6-2 to Los Angeles Pierce College, 4-0 to Santa Barbara City College, and 7-3 to Golden West College.

The only bright spot so far has been the pitching of Roy Hadden, who has given up only two earned runs in 16-1/3 innings.

He has lost a pair of games however, as two unearned runs were given up behind him against De Anza. He has struck out 15 batters.

Golfers start year Showing promise

The Foothill golf team started their Golden Gate Conference season yesterday against one of the contenders for the conference title, College of San Mateo, and tee off against Merritt this afternoon at Lake Chabot Golf Course.

The Owls entered league play with a 4-1 record as a result of victories over Monterey 48-6 and 40-14, De Anza 54-0, and Cabrillo, whom coach Jim Fairchild considers a very good team, 32-22.

"The three biggest competitors in the league are CSM, San Jose, and Chabot," said Fairchild. "CCSF could surprise."

Fairchild hopes to have five golfers shooting in the 70's. The averages start over when league play begins.

Netters win first match

The Foothill tennis team finally won a match after two disappointing matches against the Cal and Stanford JV's, the Owls beat San Jose State's JV's 5-4 at San Jose.

"I split up the doubles teams, and that was one of the keys to our win," commented Owl Net Coach Tom Chivington.

Rich Andrews played with Greg Norris, while his usual partner Pete Hultgren teamed with Norm Scott, and both of the teams won.

Andrews beat Dave Smith in singles, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2. Hultgren beat Bruce Antal 6-2, 6-4, in what the coach termed a "really good match for Pete."

Marty Lambrecht lost 6-3, 6-0 to Greg Jasonides. Scott won a close match over Carl Hanson 7-6, 6-4. Norris lost to Bob Klyce 6-4, 6-2, and Dave Rogers was beaten 6-3, 7-5 by Dan Chadbourne.

Andrews and Norris beat Terry Rodgers and Chadbourne 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, while Hultgren and Scott beat Antal and Klyce 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Lambrecht and Bruce Sommerville lost to Jasonides and Hanson 6-3, 6-3, to close out the match.

Divers win relays

Owls host Nor Cal Relays

By PETER SNYDER

Foothill College's swim team will open their 1972 season tomorrow when they host the NorCal junior college swimming relays at the pool. The trials start at 9:30 a.m.

This past Saturday, Foothill won the NorCal diving relays held at Diablo Valley College pool. The Owls placed first with a total of 122 points, followed by host Diablo Valley with 94, and Monterey Peninsula College with 54.

Foothill swept all four of the events; the one and three-meter compulsory boards, the two-man diving relay, and the optional team diving.

Wayne Fazzino led all divers with 489.90 points, a narrow margin over second-place Diablo Valley rival Dennis Ehmke with 488.15, and third-place Monterey Peninsula Bob Horn with 434.45.

The Owls took the top two places in two out of the four events. In the one-meter compulsory Steve Lange was first with 125.40 points, followed closely by Marty Cullenward with 122.35.

In the two-man diving relay Foothill again placed one-two. The combination of Fazzino and Lange placed first with 241.45 points and second place going to the Steve Lee-Cullenward pair with 202 points.

Fazzino won the three-meter compulsory diving beating Ehmke of DVC, 171.60 points to 150.60. And finally, in the optional team diving, Foothill again took first with the team of Fazzino and Lange, besting the DVC team, 303 points to 284.

In tomorrow's meet, a record number of 23 teams have entered. It is hoped that Foothill's swimming success will match that of their divers. The meet should serve as a good indication as to what kind of talent the rest of the teams in the various leagues have, as well as being a showcase for the Owl swimmers.
