Foothill flea market affected by unreliable clubs

By NORTON SCOTT

There could be an end to student participation and a chance to earn up to $1,000 at Foothill's monthly flea market due to the lack of support from Foothill clubs. This is according to Annette Boyenga, who is the flea market coordinator and who also works as a fine arts assistant at Foothill.

Boyenga said the flea market has been running smoothly with the exception of the student clubs. "If they [the clubs] say they are going to come out here and run the food concessions, I expect them to be here. A flea market cannot survive without food."

She added that the vendors come to Foothill from as far away as Chico, and expect something to eat when they get here.

"We try to have coffee and doughnuts ready for purchase," said Boyenga. "That's where the students come in. If there is no food here for the vendors or the customers, then they won't bother coming any more; and there goes your flea market."

According to Boyenga the problem started at a recent flea market. The Progressive Black Student Association (PBSA) neglected to show up and run the food concession. Only the club's advisor, John Bostic, was there.

Bostic ran the concession by himself until 1 p.m. when he had to leave for a prior commitment. Boyenga said that this has been happening frequently, and that the customers' demands for food have not been fulfilled.

Boyenga said this action forced her to inquire about outside vendors to sell food. This, in turn, prompted Klaus Dehn, who runs the Foothill cafeteria for Food Service, Inc. and supplies the food the clubs sell at the flea market, to question Boyenga's authority to hire outside vendors.

"Annette [Boyenga]," said Dehn, "does not have the right to hire outside vendors without my authorization and that of the ASFC."

Dehn cites a clause in the flea market contract signed by Boyenga, "All food and beverage arrangements are to be made by the ASFC via the Campus Center (Food Service Inc.)."

This means, said Dehn, that Boyenga cannot engage outside food vendors for the flea market if he and the ASFC disapprove.

Boyenga added, "We will always have a flea market and we will always have food. This flea market is not at the mercy of the students."

The Foothill Democrats will be running the food concession at the Nov. 17 flea market. Rick Cramer, OBD representative for the Foothill Democrats, said that the club intends to live up to its obligation, adding that "It's a make or break situation."

The Foothill Democrats, continued Cramer, have never reneged on an agreement before and "We will not let down the entire student body of Foothill College now."

Career Center offers job opportunities

By KENNARD GRAY

If you are interested in a career in the trades, part-time employment with Apple Computers, a full time job at Intel, or modeling, Foothill can help.

Recruiting for these respective agencies will take place in the Campus Center during the last two weeks of November.

On Nov. 15, a recruiting program for women and minorities will be held from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Sponsored by CalTrans/Pic and funded by the Chinese for Affirmative Action, the program will give orientation for minorities and women who seek careers in the trades.

"This is an excellent program," said Career Center Assistant Coordinator Vicki Taketa. "It offers a variety of workshops and also fitness preparation for women in order to help with trade careers." Taketa also added that the CalTrans/Pic program offers a great deal of support once you have made your career choice. Sign-ups for the program are in the Career Center, located in the administration building. Taketa urged that students should have their resume prepared beforehand and that the Career Center can help with resume writing.

A representative of Apple Computers will recruit men and women from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Nov. 20, in the Campus Center. "This is for part-time temporary help only," said Taketa. "A resume is also needed and students should sign up in the Career Center."

On Nov. 29, a representative of the Intel Corporation will scout for full-time electronic technicians. Taketa urges electronics majors to apply.

"A precise resume is vitally important here, so I urge students to prepare it well and/or receive assistance from the Career Center." Recruitment will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center.

If modeling is your aspiration, the L' Agence modeling firm will recruit women and men on Nov. 29 from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. Sign ups are in the Career Center.

Foothill Jazz Festival Saturday

Phil Mattson, former Foothill jazz instructor, returns to Foothill College at 8 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 17, for the 9th Annual Invitational Jazz Festival. Mattson and Terry Summa, who is the Foothill director of bands, began the award-winning festival almost a decade ago.

Mattson's group, the P.M. Singers, from Spokane, Washington, will feature several former Foothill students, and will perform many of Mattson's original compositions.

Also on the evening program will be Ashley Alexander, "Superbone" trombone recording artist from southern California. Nominated for two Grammy Awards in 1980 for the recording "Ashley Alexander and His Alumni Band," he is a veteran of the Stan Kenton Band and directs the jazz program at Mt. San Antonio College.

Making his ninth appearance with the Festival, Alexander will join forces with the Foothill College Evening Jazz Ensemble to perform "How Deep is the Ocean," "Take the A Train," and "Hello Young Lovers."

Rounding out the bill, the Foothill Fanfairs will present "Here's That Rainy Day," "Small Fry," "Rockin' Chair," and "Trickle, Trickle."

Preceding the evening concert will be a full day of performances and clinics, featuring vocal ensembles from high schools and colleges all over California. They will receive taped and written comments on their performances, after which they will attend clinics to work on specific choral or vocal techniques. Serving as adjudicators and clinicians will be Perla Warren, American River College; Mike West, San Jose State University; Roger Letson, De Anza College; Phil Mattson; and Michi Wier, former Foothill student and teacher, now with the Phil Mattson School.

In 1980, the National Association of Jazz Educators named the Foothill event the Outstanding Festival of the Year among college-sponsored festivals nationwide. The Festival is coordinated by Summa and Nile Norton, director of Foothill choirs.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. concert, to be held in the Foothill College Theatre, are $6 ($4 students and seniors). For information, call the Foothill Box Office at 415/948-4444, Mondays through Thursdays, 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Abortion foes on Planning Board

Women of Foothill be aware! Your family planning rights may be harder to obtain in the future.

Yes ladies, right here in the beautiful and free state of California, abortion foes are now in charge of the Family Planning Advisory Board. They were picked to replace all 22 members of the previous board by Governor Deukmejian's administration just a few days after Reagan's election victory. Great timing, huh?

The new board, consisting of 11 members, includes such notable anti-abortionists as: The Rev. Royal D. Blue, the California state chairman for Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority; Helen Davis McCullough, the head of "I'm a Woman," an anti-abortion group, and Dr. Carl Bengs, one of a number of San Diego physicians who refuse to perform abortions.

Now I'm not knocking these people for their opinions; in our society everyone is entitled to her own opinion, but putting these people on this board is like putting dog-haters in charge of the humane society. It is a conflict of interest.

According to Planned Parenthood officials, members of the new board have no family planning experience and yet, their purpose is to offer advice to the state health and welfare secretary, David Swoap. Swoap is another long-time abortion foe. Obviously, they weren't chosen for their experience, but rather, for their views on abortion.

Planned Parenthood is also concerned the board will make attempts to restrict services to minors. Now we're not just talking abortion here, we're talking about birth control. Many of these board members feel that easy access to birth control contributes to teenage promiscuity, and that fear of pregnancy will keep kids from having sex. We all know that's not true.

Family planning is an important issue that requires the hard work and dedication of experts who are committed to seeing that this service is available to all who need and want it. There is no room for those who want to use their position as a springboard to push their narrow views on a population.

Remember, it's not rich people who go to Planned Parenthood and other family planning clinics. Rich people can afford to go to their own doctors for birth control information, and they can pay for their own private abortions. The ones who will be affected by this board's views are the poor, young wives and students like me and you.

There are people who want to make decisions about how you live your life. Don't let them.

—Teresa Evans

SENTINEL Survey

The SENTINEL is conducting a survey about how students perceive the roles of men and women in today's society. We want to know about your educational, family and career goals and what has influenced your decision.

Please answer the following questionnaire by number on a separate sheet and return to the SENTINEL office, M-24. Names are not required.

Foothill College sells women

Homecoming is for the birds.

Reinstituted this year at Foothill, after a quiet pause in the devaluation of "a woman's place," Foothill once again condones the selling of images to reinforce the sexist overtones in our community.

The majority of students could not care less if there was a homecoming at all, but the fact remains that Foothill students have funded the celebration.

Through the purchase of student body cards which fund co-curricular events, students paid $500 to Sports Information Director Bill Musick to promote Foothill through the election of a homecoming king

Growing TV impact on elections

The general election of Nov. 6 has once again raised the question of the major television network's right to broadcast eastern election results or predict election outcomes, before the polls are closed on the West Coast.

This is the second time the networks have televised early election results to West Coast viewers while the polls remained open.

In 1980, the networks had predicted that challenger Ronald Reagan had defeated incumbent Jimmy Carter, by 5 p.m. Pacific Standard Time (PST). And within the hour, Carter delivered his concession speech to Reagan — a full two hours before the California polls were closed.

At the time, questions were raised as to the effect these broadcasts had on the outcome of the election. With Carter conceding early, many voters may have stayed away from the polls in the western time zones, influencing the final election tally.

In defense of that, it could be said that it didn't really matter and queen. Two hundred dollars of the $500 was used to pay for a homecoming advertising supplement which was inserted in last week's SENTINEL (Nov. 9).

We paid to have a centerfold layout of 10 young women who would be interviewed, judged, and weeded out before one was crowned "Homecoming Queen" at one of the few victorious football games.

Since there was also a homecoming king, doesn't this dissolve the sexist argument? No. Neither of the two male candidates was available for photos, thus were never displayed before the critical eyes of students, staff and faculty.

How many people eyed the photos and said, "This one's got to win," or "No way, she's a dog," or "She looks good, but she's probably either a bitch or really dumb."?

It comes down to the fact that women are still being asked to sell their traditional images as "pretty," "smart," "sexy," and "sassy" so people will buy them.

And, women are still answering the call while trying to look good doing it.

—Jennefer Pittman

because Reagan had already won. What if the election had been close, with the western states deciding the outcome?

This situation would put a certain amount of control in the hands of the networks. As a hypothetical example, say that Reagan was slightly ahead of Carter in electoral votes. A network could exert influence in favor of Carter by making a major story about his being behind and needing votes, or it could aid Reagan by downplaying this fact. If this scenario sounds unprofessional, it is. Although nothing like this has happened, there is the possibility it could happen in the future. A close election is not unforeseeable.

This last election was decided by a landslide, with Reagan taking 49 states. Again, everyone with a television on the West Coast knew who had won by 4:30 p.m. PST. CBS said they were going to televise early returns and make predictions, and they did. NBC said they might, and of course, did. And ABC said they most certainly would not, and did anyway.

The broadcasting of early returns, even in a landslide presidential election, influences voter turnout, which in turn affects the number of people voting on state and local issues. These local election issues are of equal importance. They directly affect voters, and when it is predicted in the middle of the afternoon who the president will be, many people are discouraged from voting.

This year, both the United States Senate and House passed non-binding legislation asking the networks to refrain from broadcasting results or predictions until polls are closed throughout all 50 states.

The networks do not seem to give a hoot as to what the Congress thinks and should not have totally ignored this request. Since the networks do not wish to voluntarily cooperate, it will be necessary for Congress to make its legislation binding.

25 NIGHTS BANDS !

Since Oct. 25, five days after its official birthdate, Foothill's radio station KFJC (89.7 FM) has been celebrating its quarter-century existence with a very special program entitled "Late Night Live." Each night a different band has performed live over the airwaves from KFJC's recently rebuilt studios.

Intended as an event to boost the Bay Area music scene, 25 bands were scheduled by Buddy Awreetus, aka Paul Korntheuer, who describes the event as "an exercise in madness beyond the realm of my mother's wildest dreams."

Bands located from Chico to Los Angeles have agreed to perform on the radio station. Performances are from 10 to 11 p.m., Monday through Saturday and on Sunday from 6 to 7 p.m.

FRIGHTWIG's performance on KFJC marks the return of this San Francisco band after an extended tour in New York.

THE ROMANS were originally called KELLY BROCK's ROMANS, but changed their name at the last moment. San Francisco residents, their energetic set inspired dancing in the lobby.

FUN HOUSE, a South Bay band, brought forth a sound not unlike Joy Division or the Cure.

Mark Russell

Satirist looks at the elections

By JENNEFER PITTMAN

No one got off scot-free in last Thursday night's performance by political satirist Mark Russell at De Anza's Flint Center.

After an amusingly "sleezy" introduction by Foothill's Community Services Director Dr. Richard Henning, Russell launched into a 90-minute comedy routine sparked with musical skits and his own piano accompaniment.

Although the main thrust of his insults were directed toward our newly re-elected president, Russell also conjured up comical images of other politicians.

Russell said that the campaign for president seemed to last 14 years and he was glad it was over. "Things can get back to normal now. Geraldine Ferraro is taking her Mercedes out of the garage and George Bush is rummaging around looking for his original opinions."

Analyzing the debates in a new light, Russell said that Mondale could have avoided the "wimp factor" by changing his style of dress to accommodate a black, silver-studded leather jacket with a dead bat wrapped around his neck. "Reagan wasn't having problems during the first debate," said Russell. "He's an actor and was just acting his age. Actually," Russell concluded, "the Reagan team was pretty sure that as long as Reagan remembered to put on his pants that night, he'd be re-elected. The Kansas City debate was a draw because Mondale didn't whine and Reagan didn't stammer."

Explaining the reason the media was not allowed into Grenada to cover the invasion, Russell noted that the only maps of the island available to the U.S. government were tourist maps. "They didn't want the media taking pictures of U.S. war tanks pulling into gas stations to ask for directions."

Referring to Democratic candidate Jessie Jackson's analogy of his grandmother's quilt made of all colors and sewn together representing all the minorities of the United States, Russell described a Republican quilt, "It would have white, off-white, ivory, bone, . . ."

In a parody about the Federal Deficit, Russell conjured up Master of Ceremonies Rod Serling introducing a late night television episode of "The Twilight Zone." He intoned: "Tonight, we're going to meet a man named Ron. Ron believes in a balanced budget. Ron lives in a world that is galaxies and galaxies away from our own. Here [on earth] he can't balance his budget, but there, he can. How can this be? Ronnie, through the ancient art of acting he learned as a young man, actually believes he's done it. If we try really hard too, we can believe it also."

Scholarships deadline

The deadline to apply for the 1984 Foothill-De Anza Faculty Association Scholarships is Dec. 3. Four $500 awards will be presented to continuing students in recognition for outstanding academic achievement; two awards will go to De Anza students and two to Foothill students.

Eligible students must have completed a minimum of 45 quarter units at De Anza-Foothill College by the end of the summer quarter. The student must also be enrolled full time for a minimum of 12 units during the 1984-85 fall quarter. Grade point average must be 3.75 or higher.

For further information and application forms, contact the Financial Aid office at De Anza or Foothill or any one of the following faculty members on the scholarship committee: De Anza, John Freemuth, counseling, x4663; Foothill, Richard Gonzales, counseling, 415-948-8590, x212.

All applications will be processed through the Faculty Association Scholarship Committee. Awardees will be notified shortly after selections are completed, and all awardees will be requested to appear in person for formal presentations of the certificates and monetary awards at a Foothill-De Anza Community College Board of Trustees' meeting.

Electronic signs replace print

By ANSHU NAGPAL

The two new Lighted Electronic Displays (LED) located above the Student Activities Center stairwell and outside the bookstore are here to stay, according to Raul Felix, associate dean of students. The electronic signs were installed because the school was concerned with printed events calendars that littered the campus. In addition, the cost of printed calendars was too high.

The LEDs are being used to display messages like the club meeting dates, new classes, and even to send birthday greetings.

Each board can hold up to 46,000 characters at a time and are operated through a control box by Student Activities Advisor Jean Thacher. The LEDs can display messages for 16 hours after a power failure.

The purchase and the installation of the LEDs was approved by the Student Activities Council, which provided the money for them.

According to Felix, they are better than the board used previously. He said the big board that used to be in front of the Campus Center was hard to put the words on. "The wind blew the ugly pastic signs down and some of the women refused to climb up a ladder and put the letters up," Felix said.

LEDs also have disadvantages, according to some students on campus. It is very hard to read in daylight and the smaller LED takes a long time to display the full message. The school is considering moving the big LED from Hyde Park to the library or the bookstore where it can be seen clearly.

To display a message on one of the LEDs, contact Thacher's office in the Student Government Office, located in the Campus Center. "As long as it is in good taste it will go in," says Felix.

ASFC Council organizes Women speak out for peace Foothill talent show

By KENNARD GRAY

"Students and faculty should prepare for the ASFC Talent Show," said President Leslie Faye, following a meeting on Thursday, Nov. 8.

The show will take place during College Hour with preliminaries on Nov. 27 and 29. The final contests are Dec. 4 and 6. "Anybody associated with Foothill in any way can and should try out," said Faye. "We're especially encouraging faculty to strut their stuff."

Prizes for the show are: $100 for first place, $50 for second, $40 for third, $35 for fourth, $20 for fifth and $15 for sixth. "It should be a lot of fun," said Faye. The show will take place in the Campus Center's main dining room.

Clubs to rally on Nov. 26

Foothill Organizations Board of Directors plans to have a Club Rally all day Monday, Nov. 26 in Hyde Park (in front of the Foothill Bookstore).

The purpose of the all-day event is for each club to set up tables to publicize their own activities to the students, answer questions and recruit new club members.

In other council news, the ASFC approved a proposal for a peer counseling program. The program, proposed by Foothill students Kirsten Westgard and Helen Gwosden, is designed to "aid in getting feedback about how to improve our school's atmosphere in regards to cliques and stereotypes. We will serve as a backboard for various school improvement plans."

By ISABELLE KARCHER

A slide show on the "Women's International League of Peace and Freedom" based upon interviews with living old-timer peace activists was presented on Nov. 6 at the Bechtel International Center. Judy Addams, director of Stanford Center for Innovation and Research in Education (SCIRE), coordinated the show.

The lecture was featured by Peace Education at Stanford (PEAS), a group of students who meet weekly to discuss peace-related topics.

Addams explained that she had instigated an oral history project six years ago when she realized that there was little record on the women's struggle for peace and justice.

In order for these women's experiences to continue living, Addams conducted 41 interviews with the help of students from Stanford and San Jose State, both universities where she teaches. The slide show accounted for only 12 of these contemporary history witnesses.

According to Addams, most of the women she talked to were Caucasian, middle-class, and were immigrants or daughters of immigrants from Eastern Europe, who saw the world agitated by both world wars, the Spanish Civil War, and the Vietnam War.

For many of these women, the loss of close relatives and friends triggered their involvement in groups to alleviate suffering and injustice.

Initially, the group's objective was to advocate world peace, but with the advent of nuclear weapons the purpose altered to accommodate technology. They now support a nuclear freeze.

To her, it was no different from what Nazis had done to Jews in Europe.

For others, concern for pacifism arose from the prospects of the great extents to which war can be harmful.

One of them recalled the fear and anger she was overwhelmed with when she found herself, along with other civilians, caught under the first exchanged by opposite sides during the Spanish Civil War. From then on she sought to prevent such a "string of profanity" from happening again.

Another said she became conscious of the evils of war when America sent its Japanese settlers into labor camps after Pearl Harbor. To her, it was no different from what Nazis had done to Jews in Europe. "We could do just as bad . . . it was possible," she said.

"Once my three-year-old child found a book on Hiroshima and asked me what it was all about," a woman said. It suddenly was clear to her that humans had to make sure it would never happen again.

Even though these women had families and sometimes a career, they made time to defend their ideology. Their pursuit may be idealistic, utopic, they conceded, but no jail sentence, threat or harassment could stop them. One even claimed that when she is burned out, she just gets up early and rides a computer train to pass out leaflets.

Addams' oral history project will be compiled in a book with photos entitled "Piecework," to be published next spring.

Price is right as Foothill wins

By BILL MUSICK

Wide receiver Wayne Price caught six passes for 150 yards and three touchdowns in the Owls' 28-6 homecoming victory over West Valley, Friday night at Foothill.

Price, a sophomore from Jasper, Alabama, caught touchdown passes of 67 and six yards in the first quarter and connected with quarterback Mike Pritchard again in the second quarter on a 13 yard pass for the Owls' third touchdown of the first half. Bob Brockly kicked the point after touchdown following each of Price's scores to give the Owls a 21-0 lead.

Pritchard finished the night with 18 completions in 33 pass attempts for 264 yards and the three touchdown passes to Price. Two of Pritchard's passes were intercepted by West Valley.

Running back Stuart Higgenbotham scored the Owls' final touchdown in the fourth quarter on a 30 yard run from scrimmage. Higgenbotham, along with Rod Green and Jim Sherman, led the Owls to their best rushing total of the season as the Owls gained 121 yards on the ground.

Foothill's defensive unit, coached by Rich Ryerson, played their best game of the season, limiting the Vikings to 35 yards rushing and intercepting four West Valley passes.

The Owl defense held the Vikings to a total offense of 221 yards and refused to allow an opponent a touchdown pass for the first time this season.

Clarence Hamel, Marty Parsons, Jay Coito and Shawn Cheadle each intercepted West Valley passes to lead the defensive effort.

Pritchard continues to lead the GGC in passing and ranks in the top 10 nationally as well as in California. Pritchard has completed 175 passes for 1,984 yards and 10 touchdowns. Price, Green, Ted Barrett and Kevon Wade are among the leaders in the conference in pass receiving and Wade and Green are near the top in all purpose yardage.

Musick Notes

Foothill and AGS Homecoming winners

By BILL MUSICK

Last week was one that the Foothill sports community can well be proud of as they swept the competition in football, soccer and women's cross country.

Pride is that added ingredient that sometimes transforms a person into a winner. In sports, pride can be an evasive ally, evident in victory and fleeting in defeat.

At the homecoming ceremonies during the halftime of Friday's football game, I witnessed another type of pride. The pride of the academic student at Foothill College took center stage as Alpha Gamma Sigma Society honor students Beth Swanson and Neal Brock were named "Homecoming 1984" queen and king.

After reading the introductions of the 12 candidates, announcer Keith Crawford then announced the selection of Brock as the king. This was followed by the reading of the queen's essay before revealing her identity.

Swanson's pride was evident as she beamed happily when she recognized her essay that Crawford was reading over the public address system.

Brock, a former member of the Marine Corps and a current member of the Navy Reserve, wore his crown proudly as he sat in the crowd of spectators during the second half of the game.

Football coach Jim Fairchild is proud of his team. The Owls are a good football team and they finally put it all together in Friday's homecoming game against West Valley. The Owls defeated the Vikings 28-6 for their second victory of the season.

Wayne Price, in pursuit of the school record for pass receptions (53), caught all three of Pritchard's touchdown passes and totaled six receptions for 150 yards. After nine games, Price has 50 receptions and needs at least four against San Mateo on Thanksgiving to set a new record.

As a team the Owls are one of the top five ranked passing teams in the nation, a fact that the whole team can be proud of this season.

Foothill honor students Beth Swanson and Neal Brock were named homecoming queen and king during halftime ceremonies at Friday night's football game against West Valley.

IF YOU'VE JUST GRADUATED INTO DEBT, HERE'S HOW TO GET OUT.

If you've gone to college on a National Direct Student Loan, a Guaranteed Student Loan or a Federally Insured Student Loan made after October 1, 1975, and your loan is not in default, here's a way to get your loan repaid.

Use the Army's Loan Repayment program. Each year you serve on active duty reduces your indebtedness by one-third or $1,500, whichever amount is greater. In a three-year enlistment, you eliminate your debt.

Additionally, you could learn a valuable skill and take advantage of many other Army opportunities. If you have the time, we have the money.

Check it out with your Army Recruiter.

Foothill Nor-Cal champions

By JOHN ROACH

Foothill's women's cross-country team won the Northern California regional cross-country championship this past Saturday at Crystal Springs. The Owls won the race with a team score total of 39 (lowest score wins), West Valley was second with 83, and American River was third with 118.

Foothill, West Valley and American River teams all qualified to run in the California state cross-country championship race this Saturday, Nov. 17, in Fresno.

Anne Kendrick led the Owls to victory by finishing second in the women's division with a time of 17:43 for the muddy 2.9 mile course. Linda Mantynen was not far behind Kendrick's shoelaces. Mantynen finished fourth with a time of 18:12. Sue Bryan crossed the finish line in 14th place with a time of 18:39. Heather Rezowalli followed Bryan with a finishing time of 19:00. Rezowalli finished in 21st place. Not far behind, in 27th place, Becky Van Zant crossed the finish line with a time of 19:21.

"I thought I could catch Monterey Peninsula's lead runner on the hill around the one mile mark," said Kendrick. "I was wrong though because once we got to the top of the hill, Monterey's runner took off and I just couldn't stick to her like I wanted to."

Foothill's two male runners, Paul Hoover and Mike Mathews, did better than expected, according to Foothill coach Dwayne "Peanut" Harms. Hoover finished eighth overall in the 4.2 mile race with a time of 21:36. Mathews finished in 27th place with a time of 22:13. According to race officials and Harms, Mathews was the last runner to qualify for the California state championship race.

"Paul is very consistent and even in his running style. He never gets tired like so many runners," said Harms. "He's got the perfect stride for cross-country. He's so steady that if you time his mile splits, I doubt you'd find any variation in times."

Foothill's women's team expects to face heavy competition at the state championships in Fresno from the Costa Mira team which beat the Owls earlier this year at the Golden Gate Cross-Country Invitational.

Foothill striker Beto Luna magically controls the ball in Foothill's 2-1 loss to De Anza Tuesday. Saturday's rematch will be aired on campus radio station KFJC (89.7 FM).

Dons win - Owls seek revenge

By DEAN STEPHANOS

The Foothill soccer team lost to the De Anza Dons 2-1, Tuesday afternoon. As a result, the Owls will host De Anza again Saturday at 1 p.m. for the Golden Gate Conference title and a trip to the NorCal playoffs.

Late in the first half with De Anza ahead 1-0, a Foothill corner kick was headed by Scott Hyver, which drew the De Anza goalkeeper off his line. The ball was then headed towards the empty net by teammate Kevin Wilcox. However, a De Anza defender batted the ball away with a slap heard all the way to the Foothill bench 50 yards away. The referee completely missed the call.

De Anza never really threatened in the match, but scored on their only first half opportunity. The Owls scored when Santiago Molano scored on a pass from Steve Robinson. The two teams played through double overtime without scoring, so the match was decided on penalty kicks.

Anne Kendrick charges up the hill to lead Foothill to the cross country team's championship.

ASFC Council candidates

BRUCE B. JETT

I view the current and future ASFC Campus Council as a progressively motivated group of intelligent and diversely minded individuals. This is very much in keeping with the past history of the ASFC as well. As president of this organization, I plan to blend my previous experiences of student activism with a role of facilitator to help guide the council on a steady course of action.

With quiet leadership, I will enable the council to continue as one of the best in the state of California. Of the utmost priority to me will be that the group functions as a cohesive unit, with all members participating, whether on a large or small scale, in every decision that effects the students of Foothill College.

I believe that the key to our successes in the upcoming quarters at Foothill lie in the understanding that in the end we all learn from each other. With this in mind, I look forward to this future as one of growth and learning for both myself and all parties involved.

RICK ROITINGER

My name is Rick Roitinger and I am running for Student Body Vice President of Administration. I am now completing my first term as a senator, and I've decided I'd like to take on more. The Foothill student government is a dedicated bunch of people, and, though some of you may feel a bit alienated from us, please understand that we certainly seek your support and participation in any and all of our projects.

You may not know it, but our Student Council has been actively involved in many decisions on the District and Campus level. We are respected by our teachers, counselors, and the administration. We care about you and we are working to make your life on Campus more complete and rewarding, both academically and socially, and I want to deepen further my commitment to this course.

I hope to be a hardworking leader for the students. To me, a leader is someone who will get things done, regardless of circumstances, and inspires others to do the same. I'll be working both at the forefront and behind the scenes. Thanks very much for reading this, and please VOTE on either Monday or Tuesday. That will make our elections more meaningful for everyone!

PAUL JORGEN JUNKER

The office of Vice President of Administration requires an individual willing to accept a heavy work load. One must also be well acquainted with the college and its personnel. During the past two years at Foothill, I have gained personal experience in many ways. As a full time student, I have been an active member in several clubs and involved in student council. Currently, I am in my third quarter as a senator. During the past year, I have worked on political campaigns, creation of student policy, and the resolution of many complex problems. For these reasons, I ask your support in the upcoming student elections.

JOHN SHAPIRO

I believe the ASFC is a strong and influential body in Foothill College that is doing a good job. I have come forth because I have something to offer the ASFC as well as the students and the College itself.

As a present member of the council, I feel myself to be qualified to become a senator. The ASFC is doing a great job and I'd like to contribute to keep the government in the best interests of the students.

JEFFERSON CURRY

Let's face it. Foothill College is a great community college, but it is severely lacking in spirit. Who's got time to go to a football game or an on-campus party? Most people have better things they'd rather do. They have jobs, friends, parties of their own. At a college such as this, activities simply don't hold priority for a lot of people. A large amount of students aren't even aware that there is a student council at all.

I will try to change all of this. I believe that if we had more interesting, off-beat activities, we could get many more people to participate. How about mud wrestling? Snowball fights? If we were to get some of the truly unique minds in this school together and brainstorm, I'm sure some great ideas would start to arise.

Innovation is the key to better activities. (Legalizing beer on campus might also help...)

I encourage everyone interested in a better Foothill College to vote in the upcoming elections. You can make a difference.

Kevin Kittila is a candidate for ASFC senator.

KEVIN KITTILA

Hi, my name is Kevin Kittila and I am running for ASFC senator. I think that I can give you smart, effective leadership. I guarantee that I will listen to your ideas and try my best to act on them.
