CONE offers help in housing

A Community of New Environment, or "CONE" as they prefer to be called, is a new organization whose members are citizens, ranging in age from 17 to 50 years who are concerned about the housing problem in the United States today.

Foothill shows Stein collection

A small collection of items belonging to the late Stein family is currently on display in the Foothill College Library.

Included in the collection are works by writer Gertrude Stein, a still life done by Sarah Stein, an autographed book by Henri Matisse, and various photos of the Stein family.

The exhibit was loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Wilson of Los Altos Hills. They are longtime friends of Danny Stein of Menlo Park, whose grandparents were Michael and Sarah Stein and whose great-aunt was Gertrude Stein.

The exhibit has been supplemented by an additional display of Gertrude Steins' works, lent by periodicals librarian Richard Sutherland.

It will run through Nov. 24. The Foothill library is open from 8 a.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Library books ripped-off

De Anza's library has been losing more than 800 books annually for the last two years. So far, the library staff has not been sending the police after the students who have been taking the books.

Librarian Gary Peterson said the 850 books lost in the 1970-71 school year are worth about $6,000, and with an annual budget of $8,000, the loss hardly signifies any progress as far as the financial aspect of the library is concerned. The library presently has 41,000 volumes.

Books are lost by students either taking them from the library, or checking them out and then failing to return them on the due date. In the latter case, most of the students end up paying for the books. However, in some cases the students check out a number of books and simply forget about ever returning them.

One student managed to take out 22 books. They were never returned, and after she moved from her apartment, the landlady called to report that 13 of the 22

"We feel that the housing that exists today isolates not only the people of different cultural, social and economic groups but isolates each generation from the other," stated Philip Rafalow, founder and executive director of CONE.

"Therefore the community we wish to build will break down all of these areas of isolation and create an environment of communication between all people," he continued. "In a sense we'll be practicing the old concept that you 'break bread together.'"

Rafalow, who has spoken on CONE in sociology, mass media, ethnic studies and U.S. History classes at De Anza and U.C. Berkeley, hopes to see CONE take an existing 22-unit apartment complex and "re-do" its facilities to create a 100-unit community within an urban community.

THE LIVING that is usually done in the privacy of one's own home, such as eating or watching television, can be done communally. There will be a large dining area. "The cost of building a commercial kitchen with maximum efficiency will be substantially less than providing a fully equipped kitchen in each apartment," said Rafalow.

A library and recreation room will be provided as places to relax, listen to music, watch television and do other activities relating to small or medium sized groups of people.

The tenants will pay $100 a month rent. This will pay for all the services and facilities. The services include that of a 24-hour child care program.

ALL THE tenants will contribute to a joint-learning process. "We will learn new skills to rule and maintain ourselves, so we'll end up with plumbers and painters within the community. Everyone will pass on their knowledge to others," explained Rafalow.

CONE raises money through contributions. For example, all proceeds from The Cellar at De Anza on the evening of Friday, Nov. 20, will go to CONE.

CONE, which was organized two months ago, now has almost 40 members and is in need of more. Anyone interested is asked to phone Philip Rafalow at 257-4507.

Accreditation team evaluates De Anza

De Anza College will be visited by an accreditation team November 16-18. The team is from the Accreditation Commission for Junior Colleges of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

The Accreditation team is headed by Walter M. Garcia, Superintendent-President of Rio Hondo College in Whittier. The team is composed of instructors, administrators, consultants and trustees from western colleges. De Anza received the maximum three-year accreditation in the Spring of 1969, the longest possible accreditation period for a new college. De Anza was dedicated in May, 1968. Now, De Anza College is submitting its application for a full five-year accreditation period.

Dean of Instruction and chairman of the Accreditation Steering Committee at the college, Donald Fraser, cites three purposes of accreditation. The first is the self-study performed by the college through the application for accreditation, the second is the recognition by other colleges and universities that courses taken at De Anza are transferrable, and the third is the value of an evaluation by an outside group.

A 152-page report, copies which are sent to members of the team, has been in the process of preparation for more than a year. The report covers action taken on recommendations made by the previous team, aims and purposes of the college, curriculum, actions taken on meeting the needs of disadvantaged persons, instruction, student personnel services, community services and administration.

The team will confer with De Anza president A. Robert De Hart, deans, division chairmen, students, faculty, and classified staff in their study. Team members include Beverly Andre, consultant on nursing education with the Board of Nursing Education and Nursing Registration; Leland Baldwin, Assistant Chancellor for Vocational Education; Basil Clark, trustee of the Los Rios Joint College District in Sacramento; Leadie Clark, President of Los Angeles Southwest College; Marvin Dillon, Associate Dean of Students at Sonoma State College; Dorothy Edwards, on the faculty at American River College; Richard Glenn, Dean of Instruction at Ventura College; Dennis Paterson, on the faculty at Napa College; John M. Smith, on the faculty at Grays Harbor College, Aberdeen, Washington; in addition to team leader Walter M. Garcia.

Women's defense tactics one of new ideas in PE

Teaching women to defend themselves is one of the new ideas in the Physical Education Division.

The course is called Women's Defensive Tactics (PE 12) and is taught by Bill Walker, De Anza College soccer coach and PE instructor. The class meets Mondays and Wednesdays at 11. Walker explained that the purpose of the course is to teach women self-defense tactics. He noted the great need nowadays for such a course and pointed out how women today are unprepared when it comes to defending themselves.

The course introduces the students to combative activities. Although Walker admitted that the ten weeks in which the course runs is not a long time to pick up many skills, he did point out that the student can learn the basic fundamentals of self-defense.

THE CLASS employs a small amount of jujitsu, karate, wrestling, boxing, and tumbling. The students wear judo ghis (white cotton robes with a sash) and tennis shoes or ballet slippers.

The class, according to Walker, is currently working on the correct ways of falling, and has already covered hip throws, breaking choke holds and other techniques. Skill tests are also given in which the student demonstrates his knowledge and mastery of various techniques. No prerequisites are required for the course. The class has a capacity of 32 students but currently there are 37 students in the course. Walker says he added a few extra students because of high student interest in the course.

Walker added that he felt the women really enjoyed the class, and he anticipates an increase in student interest. I think it will be a very popular course next quarter, he said, stressing that the course is an "ideal opportunity" for women to be exposed to combative tactics.

Expenditures questioned

The responsibility for the allocation and expending of more than $120,000 for the school year rests with Student Council. Roughly 65 per cent of this income results from the sale of student body cards.

The validity of the Council's wisdom in expending these monies, in some cases, raises a question.

By far the largest item in the budget is the school's athletic program, which shows expenses of $25,805 and income of $4,486, or a deficit of $21,319.

On Monday, the College's Chairman of the Athletic Division appeared before the Council with a request for $1,378.78 to pay a bill he had seemingly overlooked. A motion to grant the money was quickly passed.

Later in the meeting, a motion was made by one of the Council members to donate $100 to the Courtney Curry Defense Fund. After a discussion, most of which condemned the idea, the motion was withdrawn.

Possibly the Council did not know that provisions have been made for the establishment of a permanent defense fund for students or ex-students who may suffer the same plight as Courtney Curry. Any money remaining in the Curry Fund will be used for setting this up.

Let us hope that the Council reconsiders and takes favorable action in its next meeting.

Front support unwanted

A group, calling itself De Anza Liberation Front, has formed on campus with the purpose, it says, "to bring political issues to the attention of the De Anza community."

It plans to seek ratification of a charter by Inter Club Council (ICC).

On the surface, the aims of the group reflect some of the pressing social needs of today, such as ending the draft and the war in Southeast Asia, the need for ecological reformation and equality for women.

The group is made up, however, of several avowed Communists and at least one member of Venceremos, a spin-off of the Revolutionary Union.

It has chosen as one of its rallying points the Courtney Curry Defense Fund.

The Fund was established through the combined efforts of the BSU, La Voz and friends of Courtney Curry. The purpose, as stated in our last issue, is to raise money for attorney fees, for bail bond money and for incidental expenses. The Fund will be perpetuated for use of any students or ex-students in the future who may be placed in the same predicament as Courtney.

La Voz and the BSU would like to go on record, at this point, to state that we have never solicited nor do we welcome any help from the Liberation Front in the Courtney Curry Fund.

Letters to the Editor

Appreciation noted

Dear People,

It's somehow sad to realize how unusual it is to write a letter of appreciation; however strange, I want to communicate the esteem I feel for De Anza especially now that I have left.

I am a De Anza alumna since last spring, and this is what separation and comparison has shown me:

THE MAJOR difference between De Anza and the large university is quite definitely the teachers. My experience at De Anza was full of warm, enthusiastic, sincere, personally involved, and yes, inspiring teachers (as opposed to a large number of pompous, over-intellectual, research and publishing oriented scholars who just don't happen to be able to teach). De Anza teachers, for the most part, are into people and teaching, not research and prestige.

Primarily as a result of these fine teachers, De Anza has developed a much more personal atmosphere. I found that questions were always welcome in class, group discussion was emphasized and visits to teacher's offices warmly received (as opposed to the sometimes-stifling atmosphere and don't give a damn attitude of many university classes and teachers).

ONE MORE thing--the registration procedure at De Anza is to be commended. I found the procedure here confused (the schedules weren't even out till a couple of days before the quarter started) and unnecessarily time-consuming (two days of solid waiting).

So especially to all those lovely souls in last year's Minicollege, who fill us with the joy of discovering ourselves as well as ideas -- Jim Luotto, Jim Edwards, Phyllis Wiedman, Bill Sauer, Bob Bernasconi, Sandy Hay, Gaylord Forbes; and to all the exciting people in the Language Arts Department who turned us on to so much; and to all the friendly people working in the offices, library, audio-visual center; to the entire De Anza staff I send my thanks and my hopes that those lucky enough to be there will appreciate what they've got while they're still there.

I HOPE this letter is not taken as a put-down of Stanford, because of course this is an exciting and wonderful place, offering many opportunities which De Anza cannot; all this letter was meant to be was a put-up of De Anza.

Love,
Mary Munter
Stanford University

Commie take-over?

Editor:

I attended a meeting of several people who want to initiate a new club - De Anza Liberation Front.

Two of these members are Venceremos, an off-shoot of the Revolutionary Union started by Bruce Franklin at Stanford - Mr. Franklin being at present suspended from school activity.

It is this revolutionary group that stoned Nixon's car (last year in San Jose).

Although the club will platform all good things - still at least two members are self-avowed Communist and advocate the violent overthrow of our government.

Mr. John Milton is the club sponsor and remarked in the meeting that, because of campus apathy, the club could become strong enough to take over student government and control the spending of $130,000 annually.

Restoring of the Trianon needed

Le Petit Trianon, the old building located behind the library, was once a beautiful French chateau owned by Rear Admiral Charles S. Baldwin. Its history dates back 75 years, and the Trianon Foundation hopes to extend its history through restoration.

The building was named by Baldwin after the summer palace, Trianon, built in France by Louis XIV for his beloved Marie Antoinette. It was a magnificent showplace at the turn of the century, sitting amidst local farms and ranches.

The dedicated membership of the Foundation has been trying to obtain funds to bring the building back to life by making it a museum and the home of the California History Center.

The building was bought by the Foundation for $1. They lease the land the building is on for $1 per year from the Foothill Community College District. Because the Foundation does not own the land, they cannot obtain a bank loan for the $250,000 they feel is necessary for the restoration work.

The Foundation's funds are obtained from three main sources: membership dues and donations, money raising projects and a very few private subscriptions.

Readers who would like to contribute to this fund may send donations to the Trianon Foundation, De Anza College, Cupertino.

A $5 student membership fee entitles the member to free admission to all lectures sponsored by the Foundation, discount prices at all their other special events and the Foundation's quarterly newspaper, which deals in depth with local historical sites.

P.E. department returns funds at last student council meeting

The P.E. department was returned $1,378.75 from ASDAC at last Monday's student council meeting.

The funds were a reimbursement to P.E. for transportation costs of last year, which were paid through this year's P.E. budget. The money according to coach Chuck Crampton was sent back to ASDAC at the end of last year through a clerical mistake. Crampton said this year's budget has come to the point where it needs those funds returned.

The motion to give back the money (to be taken out of last year's reserves) was passed by a significant majority.

THE COUNCIL also gave permission to the BSU to set up tables on campus to collect donations for former De Anza student Courtney Curry, currently being held in Santa Clara County jail on an assault on a peace officer charge at $10,000 bail. The money collected will go into a Curry defense fund to raise the bail, according to BSU chairman Charles Hayes.

A motion to donate $100 of ASDAC funds to the Curry defense fund was raised by election chairman Mike Hoppin, but during the debate, he retracted his motion saying that if ASDAC was to do this for one individual, then a precedent would be established where all students in need of aid, would come to the student council for help. Representative Susie Kato Miller accused Hayes of coming to the meeting to solicit funds, at which Hayes pointed out to her that he had come there only to get permission to set up tables for donations, and that it was solely Hoppin's idea that ASDAC contribute any money to the defense fund.

FURTHER DISCUSSION on the effort of ASDAC to hire the New Shakespeare Company to play De Anza in January were continued at Monday's meeting. Mike Hoppin reported that since the cost to bring them to the Flint Center would be $2,170, it would be best to use the Forum 1 at a cost of only $1,200.

Costs would break down to $900 for two nights hire, $150 to feed the company and $150 for publicity to be spent promoting the event. Ticket prices would be $3 for the public and $2 for students. Estimated profit for the two shows, said Hoppin, would be between $300 and $500. Plays tentatively scheduled are Macbeth and the Merchant of Venice. A vote to commit the $1,200 is expected at the council meeting next Monday.

THE CURRENT problem of dogs on campus was again brought up in dialogue during the meeting. Ralph Laurie, social science representative, reported that Maurice Galipeaux, plant service manager, is making up a report on the costs of creating dog pens on campus, which could be set up in parking lot G at the west edge of campus.

Chief Silva, present at the council, pointed out that the Santa Clara Health Dept. would not come on campus to pick up the dogs unless the dogs were already confined. This is because of harassment of Animal Shelter officials in the past, during attempts to round up stray dogs. Silva warned the council that a special attendant would have to be hired to watch the pens and gather stray dogs as in the Foothill system, and that they would also have to purchase a unique insurance plan to cover the paid student attendant.

An estimate of the cost will probably be available Monday.

AFTER SEVERE criticism of the ineffectiveness of the CCC-SGA (Calif. Community College Student Govt. Assoc.) by ASDAC president Vickie McElroy, the council approved her motion to withdraw its membership from that body. Mrs. McElroy complained that little if anything was ever accomplished by belonging and that the $227 required for De Anza just to vote in the upcoming conference of CCCSGA could better be spent creatively here at school. She also brought to light the possible idea of ASDAC joining the NSL (National Student Lobby) of which a guest speaker could be brought free of charge to speak to the student council. Mrs. McElroy also noted that yearly dues for NSL would only be $50.

Maron Dale, a representative from a special Stanford group organizing a voter-registration and dump-Nixon rally to be held on the Stanford campus Nov. 18, appeared before the council, to request De Anza add their names to a list of 20 student body presidents of Bay Area colleges, on a petition that will be sent to the Democratic and Republican Party chairmen in Wash., D.C.

THE PETITION is a request that the major political parties pay serious attention to the young people and students of this nation, in their selection of convention delegates. The student council delayed a decision on signing the petition, but appointed Mick Hernandez as a temporary liaison officer between De Anza and the rally group at Stanford.

The council approved a $591 no-interest loan be made to the Cellar, concerning the equipment loss of rock band Green Catherine over a month ago from the Cellar. John Buettler, representing the Cellar, pointed out that profit from future shows would easily pay back the loan, at $75 per week payments.

Flint Center to host CYS show

The Flint Center of De Anza College will host the California Youth Symphony, conducted by Aaron Sten, in its first concert of the season on Nov. 14, at 2:30 p.m.

The featured guest will be Don Schläffer, the 16-year-old CYS audition winner. A student of San Francisco Symphony concertmaster Stuart Canin, Schläffer will perform the Max Bruch Violin Concerto No. 1.

Also scheduled for the performance will be the Symphony No. 4 by Carl Nielsen and "A Night on Bald Mountain" by Modest Moussorgsky.

The California Youth Symphony, which is made up of 110 young Bay Area musicians ranging from 10 to 18 years old, has gained international fame. During the summer, the group traveled to Europe, where it participated in the International Festival of Youth Orchestras in Lausanne, Switzerland.

The group was the first to be invited to perform in Czechoslovakia by that country's Ministry of Culture.

Tickets for the performance are available from members of the Symphony and at the De Anza box office, prior to the concert.

Williams' "Streetcar," play opens at Foothill

By CORT STANLEY
La Voz Feature Editor

The Foothill drama department kicks its season off this weekend with the presentation of Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," at the College Theater tonight and tomorrow at 8:15 and a Sunday matinee at 2:00.

The production features Pamela Rose in the lead role of Blanche DuBois, a character who lives in her own world, unable to face reality. Also in the show are Stephen Lockhart Fryer and Nadiene Horst, both who've had lead parts in past Foothill drama productions. Tickets for this emotional drama of the South are available from the Foothill College Box Office, at $1.50 for the general public and $1 for students and senior citizens.

Tonight at Winterland in the City, the controversial rock group Ten Years After headlines the bill supported by Big Brother and the Holding Company and the local band Gold. The show starts at 8 p.m. with tickets $4 at the door.

ACROSS THE bay in Berkeley at the Community Theater, the Joy of Cooking and 12 string guitarist John Fahey are on tap for a mere $2.50 (cheap!). Action begins at 8 p.m.

The Circle Star Theater in San Carlos brings an all jazz show to the area for three days only. Featured will be Sarah Vaughn, Ramsey Lewis, Eddie Harris and Joe Williams. Shows are nightly through Sunday with tickets ranging from $2-$5.

The acclaimed musical Cabaret starts off the 1971 San Jose Music Season at the Montgomery Theater, Civic Auditorium in San Jose. Shows start at 8:30 tonight and tomorrow and all Fridays and Saturdays through Nov. 27.

Famed Indian Sitarist Ravi

Shankar and the great Alla Rakha on tabla, honor the U.C. Santa Cruz campus with a special once only concert at the College Five Dining Hall tomorrow night at 8:30. Can you afford to miss this one?!!

The University of Santa Clara drama department opens their theater season this Sunday at 7:30 at the Lifeboat Theater with Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. The production continues with two more shows next Thursday-Saturday starting at 8:30.

IF YOU'RE going to be in Berkeley this weekend plan on seeing the great Impressions at Harmon Gym on the University campus Sunday at 8 p.m. Also on the bill is Brenda and the Tabulations (how's that for a name!).

Car buffs have a double treat this weekend with the Import Car Show at Civic Auditorium and Brooks Hall in San Francisco and the first International Rod and Custom Car Show at the Cow Palace. Both shows last through 11 p.m. Sunday.

A MUSICAL version of "Dracula," with the title character seen as a 1930's night club owner, will be staged Tuesday Nov. 16 through Saturday Nov. 20 at Stanford University's Dinkelspiel Auditorium. The show is part of the Big Game Gaieties activities on campus and promises to be a real happening so to speak. A crazy plot combined with new lyrics put to old melodies, promises to make "Dracula" a show to reckon with (if you know what I mean...).

Movies in the area worthy of special note include the original uncut version of King Kong, unseen for over 35 years, playing at the Camera One Theater on South First Street in San Jose. Co-featured is Room Service with the Marx Brothers.

Don Ellis plays Flint

By MARK WILHELM
La Voz News Editor

By rights, the Don Ellis Show, held this past Nov. 5 in the Flint Center, should have been a sell-out.

Ellis and his 20-piece band put on one of the most electric performances that the center has ever seen, and their level of enthusiasm for their act and material will be a hard one for following acts to beat.

ACCORDING TO ELLIS, the band hadn't performed for a while, and was really in good form to play last Friday night.

Their show consisted mainly of numbers from their latest album, "Tears of Joy," (which, incidently, is also an excellent performance).

"Everything we do is just exactly what we want to do," said Ellis after the show in his dressing room when I asked him about their material. He also said each of their albums is different, as the band is always going through changes, making their material dependent on "where my head is at and where the band's heads are at."

THE FLINT CENTER show started right on time, and the band did a full three hours, with a ten-minute intermission.

Some of the songs featured in the show were: "Euphoric Acid," "Bulgarian Bulge," "Strawberry Soup," "5-4 Getaway," and a very slow, easy-going version of "Loss."

Their keyboard man, Milcho Leviev, who came to the United States not too long ago to play jazz, really brought the house down with his keyboard solo on his composition, "Bulgarian Bulge." Supposedly every time the band performs the number, he does a different solo, but his solo on "Tears of Joy" was almost as great as his bit in concert.

The Flint Center date was the first night of a north-western tour for the band. If they do as well for the rest of the tour, they should build up quite an array of followers.

Students offer opinions on campus police role

Do you think the campus police are serving a purpose?

No. I don't see them ever doing anything. They just walk around with nightclubs. The other day I saw 50 of them walking around with nightsticks - they were snarling.
Michael Stillman

No, I don't think they have a purpose because ideally we should not have to work with police, and the campus is a good place to start.
Nancy Raymond

No. I've been harassed by the police on campus. DAC police are the ones who are framing Angela Davis. (Oh, right)! They come on too strong.
Sean Welch

I've seen them around. When I first noticed them on campus I didn't really see a need for them.
Lauri Yessick

What they're doing is protecting us from ourselves.
Noel Riddle

I'm sure they are but what that purpose is, I'm not sure. They give tickets for parking crooked.
Christina Bickelmann

Yes, they're a great deterrent to crime. But often they pick on the wrong people. Once some friends and I were sitting near the fountain and they came racing up and said (over their walkie-talkies), "A possible 10-4." They thought we had put soap in the fountain.
Chris Swanson

Probably. Someone stole my motorcycle, so I reported the theft to the campus police and they said they would find it.

Half hour for Europe

Exchange one half hour of your spare time for one hour of fabulous vacation time in Europe. For further information about this unique opportunity, call Mr. Roger W. Lee, supervisor of the student program of Merchandising International Company, Incorporated, at 247-6257.

Mr. Lee will explain how, after one hour of training, you can be on your way towards earning this summer's vacation in Europe. Imagine, 15 days in Europe, and your own ten-speed bicycle for transportation. Fly to Amsterdam in Holland, pick up your bicycle and be on your own until arriving in Paris, France for the return flight home.

This opportunity is available for the De Anza student, and contains no gimmicks. Everything you earn will be yours, even if for some reason you leave the program. The trip is planned for this June, but dates are not yet available. Mr. Lee will have this information in the near future.

But, why wait? Start earning your vacation now. Call Mr. Lee today.

De Anza wide receiver Kevin Ferguson grabs a pass in a recent game against the College of Marin. Ferguson, a 6'1", 185-pound freshman will be in the De Anza line-up tomorrow night when it plays host to West Valley College at Foothill Stadium. Game time is 8 o'clock. Veteran quarterback Sonny Brasile leads the potent West Valley attack.

CNC spikefest on tap tomorrow

The De Anza cross country team culminated its regular meet season with a loss to West Valley last Friday, but the team's attitude is optimistic as they enter the Camino Norte Conference championships tomorrow.

The Don tracksters will be putting everything on the line in an attempt to pull off a victory tomorrow at the College of Marin course. The meet will start at 11:00 and will pit De Anza against the eight conference teams including the threatening strength of Santa Rosa, West Valley at the College of Marin.

Coach Jim Linthicum revealed his hopes to surprise those three teams, saying, "We've been working hard all season for this meet and we'll be going out there to upset a few teams." Coach Linthicum is hoping to have all of his runners ready for tomorrow's confrontation and is relying on his team's being "both mentally and physically prepared."

Unfortunately the De Anza squad won't have the momentum of winning after last week's loss to West Valley. Linthicum noted the combination of the Vikings having one of the best teams in NorCal competition and the hinderance of Bob Smith's knee injury in the De Anza loss of 21 to 36.

The Vikings ran away with the title as their top man Dan Schaecher set a new course record for the 4-mile West Valley run at 20:43. John Marshall, the first De Anza man in, was third overall with a 21:17 time.

Jan Remak, Ken Anthony, and Mark Lima placed second, third and fourth for De Anza respectively and rounded out the overall placing for De Anza's top four to a 3-5-7-9 grouping. The numbers denote the strong team depth in the top four, but unfortunately, it takes five to win. The fifth Don in was 16th and nearly a full minute and a half behind.

Coach Linthicum admitted his frustration in having a good grouping in four runners but losing it all in their fifth man. "This fifth man business has held us up all season and we have quite a few runners who should be placing for us but just haven't got it together yet."

If the De Anza runners can "get it all together" tomorrow, they will definitely have a chance at the top rung of the conference ladder.

Title on line, Vikes here

Being the owners of a 3-1 league record, the De Anza football team goes after the Camino Norte title tomorrow night when they host West Valley College at Foothill Stadium. Kick-off is slated for 8 o'clock.

In what can only be described as complicated, the run for the league title is even between the Dons, West Valley and the Santa Rosa City Bearcubs.

ALL THREE are at 3-1 by virtue of Santa Rosa's 19-18 win over the Vikings and the Dons convincing 28-6 thrumping of Solano. Santa Rosa is in action tomorrow night against College of Marin, whose is winless on the league trial.

For De Anza to be the sole owner of the championship, they will have to beat West Valley while Marin takes the measure of Santa Rosa.

In the Dons conquest of Solano last week, the offensive and defensive units put it all together for the second straight week.

DE ANZA took the opening kick-off and marched 70-yards for a touchdown with Paul Fong picking up the last three yards.

Fong added excitement in the second quarter as he took a Solano punt and rambled 77-yards for a score.

The remainder of the De Anza scoring came via John Maselli's 5-yard plunge in the third quarter and by a 30-yard pass from quarterback Matt Hurley to Jess Pifferini. Pifferini also booted two extra points and ran for a two point conversion.

THE WIN may have been a costly one for the Dons as defensive standout Del Lorimer sustained a leg injury and is a doubtful performer tomorrow night.

On the bright side however, will be the return of middle linkebacker Fred Khazaly who has been out for the last two weeks with a thigh injury.

West Valley denied the Dons a piece of the title last year when they pulled off a 20-18 win. You can be sure the Dons will remember last year as they try for revenge on the Sonny Brasile lead - Vikes.

Poloists host Jags

The De Anza water polo team will be entering their last league match of the season with mixed momentum due to a win and a loss last week with the University of the Pacific and the Stanford junior varsity.

Tomorrow's match with the San Jose City College Jaguars will culminate the league season for the Dons and will start at 11:00 in the De Anza pool.

Water polo Coach Art Lambert is looking forward to meeting with the Jaguars. Coach Lambert was wary of stating the Jags' strength but said he was looking forward to his own team's continued improvement.

In games played last week, De Anz started out with a loss to the Stanford Indian junior varsity squad. The match was a re-schedule from October 14th and proved to be unprofitable for De Anza. Stanford went ahead from the beginning outscoring De Anza one to nothing the first quarter.

The Dons came back in the second quarter to tie the score at 4-4 under the scoring efforts of Rick Rider and Doug Healy (each with two scores).

The JV Indians came back in the third quarter to forge ahead again, and wrapped it up in the fourth quarter by blanking De Anza while adding four more to their total. Jim Parker, Jeff Taylor and Scott Haines all scored once in the third quarter but were unable to match the strong Stanford offense. The final tally was 13-7.

De Anza rebounded their loss on Wednesday to Stanford by beating the University of Pacific last Friday. Jeff Taylor and Doug Healy went on the rampage against the UOP squad, each scoring a total of five points.

Girls polo forming

A girls water polo team is currently being formed at De Anza College.

Marsha Cope, a student at DAC and one of the organizers of the group, says they are seeking out girls who are strong swimmers and who have endurance. She stressed the importance of endurance, noting that water polo is a strenuous game. She also mentioned that there would probably have to be some weeding out of the bad swimmers from the good.

The team will meet and practice on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1:00 p.m. The team will consist of 10 girls along with substitutes who will rotate in. They will follow basically the same rules as the boys water polo team. At first, said Miss Cope, the team will just be practicing among themselves. Later on they hope to enter competitively.

She also added that the reason the team is being formed is for the enjoyment of girls interested in swimming. "Mainly, we want to do it for fun," she said.

The team is still in the early stages of formation, and as Miss Cope pointed out, "can only start if enough girls are interested."
