National junior college record-breaker Ken Webb tunes up for today's dual match with neighbor and underdog Stanford University in the Owl pool. Webb paced the Foothillers to an overwhelming win in the annual Pacific Association meet last weekend, and anchored the 400-yd. freestyle relay with a blistering 48.0. Foothill is a heavy favorite in today's match.

Owls vs. Stanford today

Foothill swam its way to the top of Northern California swimming ranks last weekend with an overwhelming win in the annual Pacific Association Championships at San Francisco State College.

Today, Foothill hosts neighbor and underdog Stanford in a dual match.

In grabbing their second title in four years, the Owls overpowered the Santa Clara Swim Club 133-70 in the two-day affair.

Entertaining the University of Oregon Ducks Friday, Foothill won, 63-32, while setting national junior college marks in the 400-yd. medley relay and 400-yd. freestyle relay events.

Ken Webb, leading off the Owls' medley relay, backstroked a nation JC record-breaking 56.3. His mark will not be submitted for recognition, however, because only two stop watches timed him.

Webb, on the other hand, will have three marks he set last week up for official recognition in the 500-yd. freestyle, 200-yd. medley and 200-yd. backstroke.

Both Owl relay marks against the Ducks bettered standards set by Foothill last year. The first, a 3:43.1 timing in the medley, was better by one-tenth of a second, and the second, a 3:16.6 freestyle, was better by three-tenths of a second.

Model United Nations

Foothill, Stanford compete

A friendly feud is developing between students of Foothill and Stanford as a result of the upcoming Model United Nations sessions.

Foothill will be representing the Syrian Arab Republic and the Stanford delegation is Israel. "So in keeping with current international feelings," explained Susan McClelland, student chairman, "we (Syria) don't recognize Israel."

The 15th annual Model U. N. will be held April 7-10 at Claremont College. In addition, the Foothill delegation is attending practice sessions at San Jose State, which is representing United Arab Republic.

Foothill's delegation consists of five students, including Miss McClelland, a sophomore majoring in Political Science, and a faculty advisor, E. Eugene Sutter, instructor of Political Science.

Other delegates include John Early, Allan Koehler, Wes Garcia and Richard Rubinstein.

"None of us have any particular background in the Syrian policy, so we're all having to do much research into the subject," said Miss McClelland.

Each delegate is assigned to a particular committee and must act for the country as they would in such circumstances. Some of the committees are political, security, social, humanitarian, and cultural.

To help obtain necessary information the group had Farouk Mawlawi, director of the Arab Information Center in San Francisco, as a speaker last week. His topic was the Jordan water problem. Also slated for an address here is the Israeli Consul General, Gideon Saguy, on March 23.

As a final "practice session," the Foothill delegation will meet with 25 other colleges at Stanford for the regional Model U. N. All participating colleges from Utah, Nevada, Hawaii, Colorado and Northern California, which make up the Central Division, will be there.

When asked what she thought the key issue of the Model U. N. would be, the student chairman replied, "The issue of Red China's admission to the U. N. will be a key one, but also I'm sure the situation in Viet Nam will be discussed at great length."

Sutter, commenting about the way Foothill will vote on the Red China issue, said, "The traditional position of Syria has been for Red China's admission." Hastily, he added, "But there is a possibility of international developments changing the situation."

Asked why there was such a poor interest in the Model U.N., Sutter replied that if there were a class in which to draw from there would be more student interest. Traditionally, this type of course is an upper division course in the Political Science Division. "However, this doesn't rule out any possibility of having it in a junior college," Sutter explained. "I know that College of San Mateo has such a course right now."

Miss McClelland described the M. U. N. as an opportunity for students to learn about foreign government, policy, etc. Sutter summarized it as "a learning experience for all."

Other colleges participating from the immediate area include San Francisco State, Chile; San Jose City College, Burundi; College of San Mateo, Cambodia; Santa Clara, Senegal; University of San Francisco, Sudan; and University of California at Berkeley, Ghana, in addition to the prementioned Stanford and San Jose State.

ASFC roundup

Council to investigate Foothill registration

In light of last week's Sentinel editorial, Student Council established a committee to investigate Foothill's registration procedure.

In other action, Frank Haber, commissioner of activities, gained the Council's support for the first "Friday Night Flicks."

According to Barry Russ, coordinator of public events, the registration investigative committee would "study the College's methods in a scientific manner."

The Sentinel editorial said Foothill's registration period was one of endless waiting, mass confusion and utter frustration for the students, while San Jose State's was more streamlined. It was the result of a Sentinel feature that revealed State's method of enrolling 21,000 students in a three-day period.

Russ said students at Foothill enjoy conveniences such as choice of teachers and time schedules, counseling aid and other special considerations in contrast to State's hurried "mechanical" method.

He said the committee hopes to find out whether Foothill's "personal" routine was effective enough to warrant the extra time needed to carry out registration.

Meanwhile the Sentinel announced it will feature Foothill's registration procedures in the Mar. 5 edition.

Set for the first "Friday Night Flicks," Mar. 19, will be "Experiment in Terror," three "Roadrunner" cartoons and a Rudolph Valentino "short," announced Haber.

Haber reported the cost would be $300 for the ASFC and would be recovered by a 25-cent admission charge.

The monthly affair will be held in the main dining room without the "Campus Dress Code" in effect.

The Council also voted to underwrite the expenses to have Countess Alexandra Tolstoy come to the College to be a guest speaker. The daughter of the famed author, Leo Tolstoy, would speak to several classes on campus.

Koski recovers, promotes FC sign

Al Koski, ASFC president, relaxes today at El Camino Hospital after undergoing minor surgery for a back injury.

Before leaving for a three-week absence last Friday, Koski took preliminary steps for having a sign placed on Bayshore Freeway at the Los Altos-San Antonio exit announcing "Foothill College."

Koski gained the interest of the Santa Clara County Public Works Department for obtaining the sign, then wrote to the California Public Works Department to investigate further procedures.

The letter to Allan Hart, district engineer, expressed a need for the sign because of the College's physical location and its hosting of cultural and athletic events.

Koski reported the College has become a center for cultural events such as art shows, plays, guest lecturers, symphonies and Olympic trials. He said the sign would make the school "easier to find."

While in the hospital, Koski — the only ASFC office holder to earn a 4.0 grade point average while in office — will continue his studies by taped lecture and note sheets.

The student body president, now in his second term, suffered a "ruptured disc" last summer while working at a summer job.

ASFC vice-president Jud Scott will act as president during Koski's absence.

In the March 4 Library Book Talk, Dr. Gale Engle, English and philosophy instructor, and Leslie Abbott, drama instructor, will discuss the controversial play, "The Deputy."

The play, by German playwright Rolf Hockhuth, concerns the supposedly lackadaisical attitude Pope Pius XII took toward Nazi persecution of the Jews during World War II. The 11 a.m. talk will be held in Library 8 and is open to the public.

Mary Lou Tillman, recently elected Freshman class secretary, resigned her post and dropped out of school last week due to an illness.

New petitions for the office were distributed Tuesday and the future secretary will be appointed by the Executive Council from the list of qualified candidates. All interested students are urged to obtain their petitions from Mrs. Thacher in C-31.

'Mickey Mouse' groups attacked

Rotten things are happening at Foothill again that, I think, call for some Dauntless Comment.

Leading the league in bush are the recent happenings in our so-called "political clubs." I won't mention any names, because that is what these people want, but these small-scale invasions and switches of allegiance are dumb enough to draw all the desired attention. If the "clubs" involved would devote some time to real politics instead of creating mickey mouse issues within themselves, they might gain some respect. As the situation now stands, they are laughing stocks, and deservedly so. Enough on these discredits to the College.

The parking is getting even more ridiculous, and the administration is still coming up with only the same tired "solutions."

Another problem in this vein is the overcrowding that soon will make the campus all but uninhabitable. The administration wants to hold earlier and Saturday classes to "help" the situation. Why hasn't anyone proposed limiting the enrollment? This is coming later, anyway, so why not do it now? It seems that a good education, in the tradition of Foothill, for five students would be eminently better than a mediocre one for ten. Quality should never be sacrificed for quantity, least of all at Foothill.

It has been pointed out that the surly crowd is growing at the top of the stairs in the Campus Center. I propose at this time a radical solution. This plan would eliminate the overcrowding and keep the atmosphere in tune with the rest of the campus. My plan is to bar all freshmen from the Center. No freshman males would be allowed to enter at all, and freshman females, who, by the way, are better looking than ever before, would only be allowed to enter when accompanied by a sophomore.

I am confident that this plan would be for the betterment of Foothill in general and the Campus Center in particular. The (Continued on page 4)

Councilprints; a waste?

Where does your ASFC dollar go? Eighty of the dollars, which come from the sale of ASFC cards, are being spent to continue publication of Councilprints.

After a two-week controversy, Student Council members voted to continue publishing this "C-31 Newsletter." Its purpose, according to government officials, is to communicate with the apathetic students on campus.

The idea is commendable. However, information of general interest contained in this publication is covered in the Sentinel and in Footprints. If these victims of apathy do not read the Sentinel or Footprints, why then do the champions of this costly cause feel that these students would bother to read Councilprints?

Chances are slim that they do bother.

Thus we feel that this $80 could be put to a more practical use. Consider how many needy students could be assisted in purchasing an ASFC card with this money.

Or it could be spent to bring a lecturer or entertainer to the campus. We are sure such a project would capture the interest of many more members of this apathetic audience.

Is this $80 being used foolishly?

Fortunately the Council didn't jump off the deep end with your $80. A committee was set up to investigate the financial feasibility of the endeavor. It will report its findings Apr. 11.

We hope it will report the spending is foolish.

Senn not in club

In a letter to the editor, which we are unable to print due to lack of space, Miss Suzanne Senn wished to correct a mistaken impression created in last Friday's Sentinel.

Miss Senn, who was pictured on page three, was not joining the Statesmen Club but was merely filling out a form regarding student government. She stated that she will have no connection with the club.

Students off the cuff

Is 'Councilprints' Worth it?

By JERRY MILLER
Sentinel Staff Writer

Question:

"Do you know what 'Councilprints' is? Have you read it before? Do you think it is worth $80.00 per semester to have it printed?" (Asked in the vicinity of the Campus Center.)

Mike Hammergren — Freshman

"No, I believe I don't. This school's pretty apathetic, as you probably know. I am, too, in a way, but I'm AOC representative for the Constitutionalists — the anarchists club here on campus — and I believe that something has to be done. Even though I haven't heard anything about this what'd you call it, 'Councilprints', I think it will be a good idea. 'Footprints' doesn't really enthruse me that much, but this 'Councilprints' might be a good deal. I think it would be worth a try."

Pat Randles — Sophomore

"Yes. It's a good summary of AOC and Student Council. I was in AOC last semester, and I think it's a good idea. I don't know how many people read it but if more people would, they would be more interested in government. If people would read it. I think it's worth $80."

Jerry Layton — Graduate Student

"I think that Council points are the points that a counselor gives you when you discuss your plans of college. Oh, Council PRINTS. Oh, yes, I'm familiar with that. I read it every day. Oh, it isn't printed every day? Oh well, I try to read it over and over again to try to get a full understanding of it. Actually, I have only just glanced at 'Councilprints', but I'm not really interested in what goes on in the Student Council because I'm just going to school here. Where does this $80.00 come from? As long as some of the money goes to school dances and parties, that is my prime concern. I wouldn't want to deprive students of the enjoyment of reading 'Councilprints.' Now if this money is money which is being taken away from the Music Council, I disapprove entirely. $80.00 in the Music Council would be very nice."

Is God a Liar?

A careful reading of the Gospel of John in the Word of God the Bible, will show that Jesus Christ claimed to be God. Furthermore, Jesus equates a man's attitude towards Himself with that person's attitude toward God.

To honor Jesus is to honor God, "... he who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who has sent Him." (John 5:23)

To hate Jesus is to hate God. "He who hates me hates my Father." (John 15:13)

To believe in Jesus is to believe in God. "... he who sees me sees Him who sent me." (John 12:45)

To know Jesus is to know God. "... if you had known me, you would have known my Father also." (John 14:7)

To accept Jesus Christ into your life as your Lord and your Savior is to have eternal life. "And we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding, to know Him who is true; and we are in Him who is true, in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life." (1 John 5:20)

You are challenged to note these and other repeated declarations throughout the Bible concerning the Deity and purpose of Jesus Christ. An eyewitness to the Messiah states: "There were indeed many other signs that Jesus performed in the presence of His disciples, which are not recorded in this book. Those here written have been recorded in order that you may hold the faith that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that through this faith you may possess eternal life by His name." (John 20:30-31 NE)

Why did this unique person make an appearance in history? Jesus answered this question by stating: "I have come that men may have life and man have it in all its fullness." (John 10:10) Isn't this just what all of us are looking for? We implore you to consider the claims of Jesus Christ in greater detail. Read the Gospel of John and see what Christ promises to do for you. If you do not possess a copy of this New Testament book, you may obtain one without charge by writing to,

Dr. Abraham Kaplan, noted philosopher and lecturer, pauses during Foothill reception to ponder ethical question. Kaplan spoke with many students, instructors, and community members during his visit to Foothill last Friday.

Philosopher lectures, capacity crowd intent

"When a man cannot keep climbing moral mountains, he is dead," said Dr. Abraham Kaplan before a packed Foothill College auditorium last Friday night.

Kaplan's lecture, opening a five-week symposium entitled "The Human Spirit in Conflict with the Scientific World," featured observations on morality, religion, and ethics. After introductions by Public Events Board Chairman Barry Russ and Foothill College philosophy instructor Gale W. Engle, Kaplan demonstrated to the audience the techniques that have made him a favorite speaker with students at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Dr. Kaplan stressed the fact that our morality is "inescapably contextual," and does not necessarily have to have a metaphysical basis to be functional. "However," he added, "human knowledge, intuition, and reflection on human experience has an application to moral issues, even if it isn't sufficient to arrive at moral issues."

Tracing the basis of morality throughout the history of Western Civilization, Dr. Kaplan noted the transition from a religious basis for morality to a more pragmatic, scientific basis. He spoke of history as "our attempt to cope with the responsibility of morality," but did not claim to have one always-applicable foundation for a moral code. "Morality," he said, "can acknowledge, accept, and must invite contributions from religion, science, art, literature, and every aspect of human experience."

Dr. Kaplan suggested that although the "humanistic outlook makes human conditions, . . . and needs necessary, they are not sufficient conditions for moral decisions." "All our values are involved with one another," he stated.

The witty philosopher spoke for nearly an hour, then held a question-and-answer period with his attentive audience before adjourning to the reception.

Dope addicts tell of Synanon

Four former dope addicts related their experiences as "junkies" and explained the history and purpose of the Synanon Foundation last week to an overflow crowd in Appreciation Hall.

"Synanon," said Ed Bolen, a tall, relaxed speaker, "was started six years ago in Santa Monica, California, by Charles Dederich, a former alcoholic." Since then, the organization has spread to San Francisco, New York, and most recently Marin County, where attempts to build a "Synanon City" are underway.

Synanon, a distortion of the word "seminary," is an organization composed of former "dope fiends," alcoholics, and a few people unable to cope with the world satisfactorily. Its purpose is to cure these people through self-rehabilitation and constructive activity, thus making them normal again, or for the first time, according to Bolen.

The first Synanon house, established in Santa Monica in August, 1959, was located in a run-down, three-story, red brick building that had formerly been a National Guard Armory. Posh residents of the area were startled at the sight of fifty or so outcasts in the little band. In time, however, the Synanon residents earned their keep. Commented Bolen, "The Federal hospitals claim they return 5% of their 'junkies' to normal life. Synanon returns 57% to normal life and over 90% for those who have stayed with us longer than three months."

In time, the Synanon Foundation established a branch in San Francisco finally locating "in the oldest warehouse on the Wharf." That branch now has over 100 residents.

Roberto Acosta, a short, well-dressed Puerto Rican, explained how he had been on dope for years until he heard about Synanon. "My father bought me a ticket to America and I expected to stay at Synanon about six months," he said in halting English. "I've been here eight months and this is the first time in my life I've been happy."

Dennis Sessa, 19, the last speaker, has been in Synanon for six months and participates in the Synanon Youth Group. He formerly had been addicted for five years.

Synanon, of course, has run into opposition. The most prominent has been in Marin County where Synanon is attempting to build its "Synanon City," a city, says Bolen, that "will be the only city in the world without dope or cops." The Foundation already has 80 residents established there in a huge mansion located on 42 acres of ground.

The seminar by the four speakers was witnessed by an overflow crowd of about 250 students and teachers jam-packed into the 170-seat Appreciation Hall. They applauded readily and laughed at Bolen's humor, directed mainly at psychiatrists, Federal hospitals and the like.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

THE BEARD OF AVON

Topic for today is that perennial favorite of English majors, that ever-popular crowd pleaser, that good sport and great American—William Shakespeare (or "The Swedish Nightingale" as he is better known as).

First let us examine the persistent theory that Shakespeare (or "The Pearl of the Pacific" as he is jocularly called) is not the real author of his plays. Advocates of this theory insist the plays are so full of classical allusions and learned references that they couldn't possibly have been written by the son of an illiterate country butcher.

To which I reply "Faugh!" Was not the great Spinoza's father a humble woodcutter? Was not the immortal Isaac Newton's father a simple second baseman? (The elder Newton, incidentally, is one of history's truly pathetic figures. He was, by all accounts, the greatest second baseman of his time, but baseball, alas, had not yet been invented. It used to break young Isaac's heart to see his father get up every morning, put on uniform, spikes, glove, and cap, and stand alertly behind second base, bent forward, eyes narrowed, waiting, waiting, waiting. That's all—waiting. Isaac loyally sat in the bleachers and yelled "Good show, Dad!" and stuff like that, but everyone else in town sniggered derisively, made coarse gestures, and pelted the Newtons with overripe fruit—figs for the elder Newton, apples for the younger. Thus, as we all know, the famous moment came when Isaac Newton, struck in the head with an apple, leapt to his feet, shouted "Europa!" and announced the third law of motion: "For every action there is an opposite and equal reaction!"

Figs for the elder Newton, apples for the younger.

(How profoundly true these simple words are! Take, for example, Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades. Shave with a Personna. That's the action. Now what is the reaction? Pleasure, delight, contentment, cheer, and facial felicity. Why such a happy reaction? Because you have started with the sharpest, most durable blade ever honed—a blade that gives you more shaves, closer shaves, comfortabler shaves than any other brand on the market. If, by chance, you don't agree, simply return your unused Personnas to the manufacturer and he will send you absolutely free a package of Beep-Beep or any other blade you think is better.)

But I digress. Back to Shakespeare (or "The Gem of the Ocean" as he was ribaldly appellated).

Shakespeare's most important play is, of course, Hamlet (or, as it is frequently called, Macbeth). This play tells in living color the story of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, who one night sees a ghost upon the battlements. (Possibly it is a goat he sees; I have a first folio that is frankly not too legible.) Anyhow, Hamlet is so upset by seeing this ghost (or goat) that he stabs Polonius and Brer Bodkin. He is thereupon banished to a leather factory by the king, who hollers, "Get thee to a tannery!" Thereupon Ophelia refuses her food until Laertes shouts, "Get thee to a beanery!" Ophelia is so cross that she chases her little dog out of the room, crying, "Out, damned Spot!" She is fined fifty shillings for cussing, but Portia, in an eloquent plea, gets the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Thereupon King Lear and Queen Mab proclaim a festival—complete with kissing games and a pie-eating contest. Everybody has a perfectly splendid time until Banquo's ghost (or goat) shows up. This so unhinges Richard III that he drowns his cousin, Butt Mahmsey. This leads to a lively discussion, during which everyone is killed. The little dog Spot returns to utter the immortal curtain lines:

Our hero now has croaked,
And so's our prima donna.
But be of cheer, my friends,
You'll always have Personna.

© 1965, Max Shulman

Foothill out of basketball cellar; Owls play arch-rival Jags tonight

Foothill will be looking for revenge tonight as the Owls host San Jose City College in what determines the title hopes of the Jaguars.

Foothill has dropped both encounters with the Jags, the first coming in the Foothill Tourney, 86-59, and the other an 85-58 loss on the Jaguars' home court.

The Owls will have to play one of their best defensive games as the Jags have substantial outside shooting qualities in Jack Matulich, sixth in GGC conference scoring, and tenth-rated Clyde Dawson usually has his way around the backboards even though he gives up three to four inches in height.

Foothill broke its five-game losing streak last Friday night as the Owls downed Diablo Valley in a first-ever win since 1961 on the Vikings' home court, 58-41. The low score proved to be one of the best defensive efforts in Foothill and Golden Gate annals. The effort moved Chuck Crampton's club into third spot in league defense.

Dick Treglown hit for 18 points, grabbing game scoring honors, and received double-figure help from forward Tom Fitzsimmons, 10 points, and Brian Stack, a utility guard who equaled his lifetime best with a 10-point effort.

Last Tuesday night the Owls came very close in a 63-62 loss to the Oakland Merritt Thunderbirds as the game had to be decided in a five-minute overtime. Rick Carpenter put the game in a 52-52 deadlock when he bucketed a charity toss after being fouled on a lay-up. The three-point play brought the Owls up from a three-point deficit with five seconds remaining.

In the overtime the Foothill team seemed to lose the sharp playing of the regulation game even though it stole the ball a number of times.

Dick Treglown capped scoring honors with a 28-point output. Billy Robinson of Merritt netted 20 points to lead the Thunderbirds in scoring and also grabbed 27 rebounds in a night that saw the backboards controlled by the visitors, 70 to 38.

Foothill, now 12-14 for the season and 3-10 in GGC play, will finish up its second straight losing season and its third losing season in six years.

freshmen will be for it, because they will benefit when sophs. The sophs will greet it with applause for obvious reasons. Anyway, let's paint it white and see if anyone pickets.

Overheard. Someone talking to Wagner about starting a civil rights group on campus. Wagner: "It's not clear to me, which do you want to start, CORE or SNCC?" "Oh, we don't care, it doesn't make any difference." Ah, liberalism!

FC spikers open at SJS

Foothill's track team opens its season tomorrow in a non-league meet with the San Jose State Frosh. The contest begins at noon on the Spartans' field.

The first home meet for the Owl tracksters is on Mar. 12 as they take on defending league champion San Mateo. Foothill holds three national JC records in track, shot-put, discus, and triple jump.

After the San Mateo meet, the Owls take on, in rapid succession, Chabot College on Mar. 19, San Francisco City on Mar. 26, and then will enter the Easter Relays at Santa Barbara on Mar. 27.

Most hopeful prospects for the 1965 Owl spikers include Max Lowe, high jump; Tom Burton, middle-distance runner; Steve Boice, hurdles; Bob Kentera, high-jumping accounting major; Pete Mills, sprints; Harold McElroy, 440; Chuck Sherman, Bob Twelvetees, and Chuck Smart in the discus, and John Armstrong in the hurdles and triple jump. The 34-member squad will host four meets plus the Golden Gate Conference trials on Apr. 28.

contest with winners of an earlier game. Finals are at three o'clock Saturday.

Foothill started off the non-league season with a 3-3 tie as it visited the Stanford University Frosh Feb. 18. It was a game of give-away and errors as the Braves scored two of their three runs on a Marty Hall error in the sixth inning.

When the Owls hosted Coalinga College, they made up for the low scoring by bombing Coalinga 17-3 to open the Owls' home season. Dennis Lane (Awalt), a converted infielder, was the winning pitcher. Lane had a lot of support with twenty hits. Marty Hall had two home runs and a 5 for 6 day at the plate. George Wagner went 3 for 5 and Paul O'Byrne had a 3 for 6 day.

Coalinga then came back Saturday to trounce the Owls, 12-9, as it unleashed a 16-hit attack.

The Owls then hosted Modesto College, losers of a 13-8 decision at the hands of West Valley, and shut out the Pirates 5-0 as the Owls collected nine hits. Foothill went the nine innings playing errorless ball.
