

After three weeks of holiday festivities, DAC students are getting back into the stride of winter quarter activities. As they stroll to new classes and unveiled challenges, the campus comes alive and vibrant once again with the greetings and conversations of reunited acquaintances. The picture was taken outside of the library, showing the contrast between the emptied campus during the holidays and the bustling return of the masses. (La Voz Photo by Loren Heck)

"THE VOICE OF DE ANZA"

VOL. 4 NO. 11

CUPERTINO, CALIFORNIA

FRIDAY, JANUARY 8, 1971

New De Anza auditorium named after Calvin Flint

A district superintendent seat will be vacant as of the beginning of the summer following the retirement of Calvin C. Flint, first superintendent of the Foothill College District.

Flint, whose superintendency dates from 1958 and whose tenure has seen the construction of award-winning Foothill College, in Los Altos Hills, and equally cited De Anza College in Cupertino, recently announced his intention of retiring next summer.

Flint who has been with the district for 13 years received his B.A. in 1928, M.A. in 1931, at Stanford University, and in 1952 was awarded his E.D. also at Stanford. He then went on to graduate study at various universities and schools throughout the world, including the London School of Economics, Sorbonne University, University Aux-en-Provence, and University of Southern California.

He started his career at Roberts College in Istanbul, Turkey, as instructor and dean of lower division students. Afterwards Flint served as dean of men at Santa Ana College in Southern California.

In 1947, Flint was appointed president of Monterey Peninsula College during its growing years, until 1958 when he was appointed president of Foothill College. He served at Foothill until 1967.

Flint played a dual role from 1958, as president of Foothill College and also as the district superintendent, until stepping down from his office as president. He then retained the district superintendent position.

As superintendent he is responsible for the budget and curriculum, as well as a variety of other tasks for both De Anza and Foothill Colleges.

Besides a host of other services, Flint is past president of the California Junior College Association, was on the committee for developing the master plan for higher education and was also chairman for the Junior College Accreditation Committee.

Flint has an active military career, serving with the Army-Air Force during World War II as an executive officer in charge of operations of the 20th Air Force on Guam. He is presently a Lieutenant Colonel in the Military Intelligence Reserve.

Upon his retirement, Flint hopes to do quite a bit of traveling throughout the world with his wife, and also spend much time working in his garden at his home in Los Altos.

DAC students' discount opportunities are rising

Discount rates on magazine subscriptions, medical insurance, auto insurance, purchase of tires, auto parts and accessories and accident insurance are only a few of the many benefits accorded to holders of student body cards at De Anza.

Attendance at on-campus events such as lectures, concerts, film series, planetarium programs, dances, plays and athletic events is either free or at a discounted rate.

Student rates are in effect at Disneyland, Marine World, ACT in San Francisco, and at most theaters and museums.

Some ski shops, photography and music stores also provide for discount purchasing to students.

The Student Activities Center provides information on housing, bulletin boards for advertising, a monthly calendar of events publication and free ditto service are among many other student benefits.

Free job placement is available through the Financial Aids Office as well as loans through nine different loan funds and scholarships from more than 15 scholarship funds for qualified students.

Participation in retreats at Pajaro Dunes, in any of 29 student clubs, in student government, in the intramural co-rec program is available, in addition to the use of Olympic type swimming pool and free parking facilities.

Students also have the use of one of the most modern audio-visual centers and library containing more than 40,000 volumes.

De Anza will hold a blood bank drive January 28, 1971 with a goal of 1,500 pints. The collection point will be in the back of the campus center. This goal will enable our campus to be covered for a year. Everyone is urged to contribute.

Sign-up sheets may be obtained in the following offices: Student Activities, the Associate Dean of Students, Social Science and Biology Science, and the men's and women's PE locker rooms.

De Anza, Foothill open 'third campus'

De Anza and Foothill Colleges, in cooperation with local industry, have opened a "third campus." This "campus" is composed of scattered classrooms and laboratories located at the Alviso Medical Center, Ames Research Center, Hewlett-Packard in Palo Alto, Lockheed in Sunnyvale, Monta Vista High School, and the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center in Menlo Park, as well as Moffett Field and the Veterans Administration Hospital in Palo Alto.

In its most extensive move into the community, the college district is utilizing classrooms and laboratories donated by these firms so that students might be served at locations near where they live or work, according to Philip E. DeMarco, District Coordinator for off-campus classes.

This new emphasis on off-campus classrooms he said, is a result of current state formulas which make it impossible for the colleges to obtain construction assistance to build a new campus until the two existing campuses have a capacity of 10,000 students each.

This would not happen until 1984 DeMarco stated. Meanwhile, the colleges need space to serve a growing number of students and won't qualify to receive building aid funds until 1975.

These off-campus classes, a regular part of the curriculum at the colleges, are offered at these locations in technical fields and are used primarily for occupational achievement or improvement. They are open to all qualified students within the district without charge.

Off-campus classes were inaugurated on the educational theory termed "Colleges Without Walls," which advocated dispersing classrooms and laboratories throughout the community. This augments the traditional concept of time, place, and space in an educational institution.

All classes, DeMarco continued, among them courses in biology, business, data processing, dental assisting, engineering, electronics, English, and history are applicable toward a degree or certificate as are courses taken on the campuses. Classes are taught by certified Foothill and De Anza instructors.

Students may register for these courses during the first meeting of each class at the off-campus location. Students will not be required to visit the campuses for any other registration procedures.

Classes drawing less than the number of students needed will be canceled. If there are more students enrolling in the class than there are spaces in the classroom, another section will be opened.

Eight hundred students, enrolled in 32 classes held at the Lockheed plant in Sunnyvale, began the program in the Fall quarter.

A complete schedule of classes is available from the De Anza Evening College, 257-5550, Ext. 420; or the Foothill Evening College, 948-8590, Ext. 253.

Free co-op baby-sitting

Another service was added to the ever increasing list of benefits for students with the opening this quarter of the De Anza College Co-Op Baby Sitting Service.

The service will operate Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and is available to any student parents who do not qualify under any state or federal child care program.

A house, located on the grounds of the Redeemer Lutheran Church, 940 S. Stelling Road, will be the site of the day care center. The house was equipped with a stove and a refrigerator has been donated, thereby allowing for the preparation of meals and feedings.

The project, sponsored by the Student Activities Center, will be operated solely by students on a voluntary basis and will be supervised by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Aeschilman. A fee of 50 cents per week will be charged for each child.

The Sower by Van Gogh (1888). Art enthusiasts are being offered an opportunity to visit the De Young Museum to see other works by Van Gogh on exhibition there. Watercolors, lithographs and oils, by Van Gogh, are on exhibit.

ADS Eliminated

Many years ago as man smoked tobacco, he was ignorant of the fact that the weed was harmful to his health. Today, even though advanced medical technology has proven that tobacco can cause death, other statistics have proven that many people continue to smoke and many more are falling into its clutches. It is fortunate that our government has intervened by eliminating all cigarette advertising on the radio and television, for many people lack self restraint and become hooked for good.

1500 pints goal for DAC's blood drive

A blood bank drive to be held at De Anza Jan. 28 could be worthwhile and very beneficial to all of the students and faculty on this campus.

The drive, headed by the American Red Cross, is seeking to obtain a total of 1,500 pints of blood from De Anza alone. A pint is the usual amount taken from each individual, so that number of donors is required.

During the course of our lives accidents occur where we may need a transfusion. Hopefully we will never be in this situation, however if it were to happen, we would undeniably be grateful for extra blood available for use in a transfusion.

According to De Anza nurse Ruth Foy, any person donating one pint of blood will receive a credit card good for one year, entitling the donor, spouse, minor children over 18 who are not able to donate, parents, parents-in-law, grandparents, and grandparents-in-law, to an unlimited amount of blood for one year.

Although there are some people who are not able to contribute, one of the benefits of the blood drive is that if the quota of 1,500 pints is reached, the entire student body, faculty and staff of De Anza, regardless of who contributed, will be covered through the same plan.

Everyone should make an effort to donate, however there are certain requirements which must be met. A donor must be between 18 and 65, and is asked to read the list of medical causes for rejection of possible donors which will be posted. Some of these include diabetics taking medication, persons who have had malaria, epilepsy, certain types of heart diseases and a list of other diseases.

La Voz encourages all persons eligible to donate a pint of blood which may enable themselves or another injured human being to live to thank all of those who did donate.

Letter to Editor

Judicial code proposed

The recommendations of the Special Committee on the Student Judiciary for a judicial code is the result of many hours of careful research and sometimes vigorous discussion and debate. It presents to the students of this campus a chance to prove their capacity for responsibility through self-determination and self-government. We will continue to be subject to the laws of this state and the nation; but student government will become, as it should be, a student affair. In the broad spectrum of the educational experience the opportunity for self-determination should be as important as any classroom experience.

BASICALLY THE Judicial Code would provide more adequate channels for the resolution of student grievances and would add additional channels necessary for the protection of the rights of the students. It would do this by giving formal student recognition to the existing De Anza College Review Board, which hears disputes involving student conduct; by creating a Fair Hearing Board, which would hear student grievances against faculty, staff, or administration members; and finally, it would create a Student Judicial Council which would act as the supreme court for student government.

We must, however, return to the problem as to whether student government has done, is doing, or can do anything. The student body of this campus has without a doubt a large amount of potential influence and power concerning what happens on this campus. Student membership on many joint committees expresses this fact. Enactment of the Judicial Code and the establishment of self-determination will present an unprecedented opportunity to further our potential.

BUT THAT POTENTIAL influence and power can best be realized through the recognition that student government finally can be STUDENT GOVERNMENT. Now students must begin to leave those old and familiar Avenues and Streets such as "Student Government Is Only A Joke Street." More of us must get involved in OUR government through participation, many more of us must begin to Vote, and student government must begin to PROVIDE MORE SERVICES FOR THE STUDENTS.

Student Government will be a joke only if we want it to be. There will no longer be anyone to pass the buck to. The decision must rest with each of the 5,000 individuals who make up the Associated Students of De Anza College. I know this may only sound like more of the same old tired talk, but this time it is not, and I am willing to accept the challenge of responsibility and of anyone who doubts what I have said.

Two openings on board

The formation of a De Anza blood bank was announced by DAC nurse Ruth Foy at the Jan. 4 meeting of student council.

Mrs. Foy, in requesting student council assistance, noted that collection of blood will be in the Campus Center, and asked for volunteers. The goal is 1,500 pints, which would ensure that every student and staff member would be eligible to receive blood.

IN OTHER ACTION Monday, council postponed action on the petition of Larry Evans for membership on the Board of Mass Communications. After a brief discussion and interview of Evans, it was decided to postpone action until the availability of the position and that of Director of Finance could be made known to the student body at large.

DAC presents new film series

Showing of "The Red Desert," Antonioni's first color film, will initiate the De Anza Friday night film series at 8 o'clock in Room A of the Forum Building. It follows the neglected and neurotic wife of an electronics engineer through a casual affair. The film won the Golden Lion Award as Best Motion Picture at Venice in 1964.

On January 15, a film adaptation of Nicolai Gogol's "The Overcoat," will be shown. The story depicts a meek office clerk as he fights to buy a coat for the winter, enjoys the popularity it brings him and suffers its loss.

The January program in the Foothill College Planetarium will be "The Glow From Luna," examining Earth's nearest astronomical neighbor, the moon, some 240,000 miles away, telling the story of the planet that has fascinated man and lovers for centuries.

"Our Island Universe," featuring our own planet will be the topic of the February programs.

Other facets of the regular Friday night Science Spectaculars are free showings of science films at 7:30 in Room F-12 of the Forum Building, adjacent to the Planetarium, and free viewing in the College Observatory from 7 to 10:30. The Observatory also is open on clear Saturday mornings from 9 until noon and from 7 to 10:30 p.m.

Introducing Ballin' Jack

For those of you fortunate to still have a few Christmas dollars burning a hole in your collective pockets, I have found a nice way of extinguishing the blaze. Buy albums.

I've found entirely too many splendid new releases for this issue, so I won't be able to go into detail on most of them. Brace yourselves for capsule summaries:

First on my list is, as I suppose you expected, the new George Harrison LP. "All Things Must Pass." Pure beauty. Harrison has been one of the past decade's most neglected musical artists in his own right.

His cuts like "What is Life?" and "If Not For You" are too good to be appreciated by most people, present company hopefully excepted. Granted, the LP goes for about eight bucks, but you get three albums in the boxed set, along with a poster. Pay special attention to "It's Johnnie's Birthday" on the Apple Jam disc.

Close on his heels is his old cohort in musical crimes, John Lennon, with an album by the same name, along with (get ready) the Plastic Ono Band! The album isn't one you'd buy for your little sister, because of a couple of words he uses on it. Most papers wouldn't dare print them, but since La Voz is such a vibrant, daring paper, the words are and .

The album, musically, is excellent. And the absence of Yoko makes it worth the price of admission. My favorite cut is "Working Class Hero."

Next on the list is a group I hadn't heard of until just a few days ago. My loss. The group is Ballin' Jack, a delightful sound of Chicago, Santana, and Sly and the Family Stone, all mixed together in equal delightful portions. Don't get me wrong, though. It isn't a copy group...the sound is their own distinctive blend, but if you like any of the other three groups I mentioned, you'll like Ballin' Jack. The best cut on the album I thought was "Hold On."

Looking further, beyond the limits of sanity, we find the latest work of art by Pink Floyd: "Atom Heart Mother." What a treat this one is. Roger Walters has really outdone himself with his composition, "If," and the "Atom Heart Mother Suite" is really great. So is "Alan's Psychedelic Breakfast."

Another good album is "Lola vs. Powerman and the Money-Go-Round" by the Kinks. (Once with feeling: God Bless The Kinks!) The Kinks may only know how to play one chord, but they play it just fine. "Apeman" is one of the better cuts, and no, he isn't using a no-no, it's just his heavy English accent that makes "The air pollution is a-fogging up my eyes" sound odd.

The bootleg business is still booming, with several good discs out now. Jimi Hendrix had too bootlegs put out of his music: "Incident at Rainbow Bridge, Maui, Hawaii," and "Live at the L.A. Forum." The Beatles have been blessed with another one, "The Good Old Days: Shea Stadium." The sound is fair to poor on these three, but they're still good. Jethro Tull has been blessed with "My God," that has both a live side and a studio side, made of clear red plastic, with excellent sound and little surface noise.

And last but not least, we have your favorite egomaniac and mine, Frank Zappa with yet another excellent album, "Chunga's Revenge." This album features his new band that was in concert around here a few months ago. If you missed that, you can still get the album, which is ALMOST as good, as if you don't get the album, it's your loss. Keep On Truckin'!

Origami art demonstrated DAC

Demonstration of an art that has flourished in Japan for more than ten centuries will be given in the council chambers of the Campus Center next Thursday morning from 9 until 11 o'clock.

It is called Origami and is the hobby of paper-folding, a favorite pastime with Japanese children.

The demonstration will be given by Yoshiaki Hirabayashi, a past master of the art. One of the objects shown will be the crane, a symbol of good luck in Hirabayashi's native country. Often folded cranes of all sizes are hung from the ceilings to decorate rooms. Also, cranes have a religious meaning in Japan and are hung from ceilings of shrines and temples as offerings from people who go there to pray.

Thrift book store aids DAC students

A thrift book store, designed to benefit both seller and buyer, has been opened under the aegis of the Student Council.

Students wishing to sell text books set the price they wish to receive and when the book is sold they are notified. No commissions are charged as it is a non-profit operation, but there is a nominal handling fee.

The project was in operation for the last three days of the fall quarter, at which time $175 worth of books were sold. Mark Frederickson operates the store with voluntary help from other members of the Student Council. He reports that, although the operation competes with the Campus Book Store, he has received excellent cooperation from Tom Klapproth, the book store manager, in setting it up.

The store is located on the main floor of the Campus Center near the lounge area.

Judicial Council urged to be DAC supreme court

A Judicial Council has been recommended to act as the supreme court for students.

DAC sophomore Dean Edwards initiated the idea of a judicial board as a result of "personal frustration from the election fiasco." Edwards is presently the chairman of a special committee that has drafted a judicial code, with student council member Judy Shaw acting as co-chairman. Other members supplying time and energy are Francois Vilmenay, Gary Wood, Kris Frederickson, and Carolyn Gallespie.

THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL has been suggested so that student government affairs will no longer go to the Board of Trustees. Instead, they will be handled by students.

Proposed policies of the Judicial Code are that it will hear cases involving student government and student campus organizations. Also, by acting as the supreme court for student government, it has the power to interpret law and review actions of student government officials. The council may hear personal conflicts between ASDAC students.

MEMBERSHIP OF Judicial Council is decided by the ASDAC president and vice-president and majority approval by the House of Representatives. Chairman and co-chairman serve one year, and three other members serve a single semester. Candidates for the board must meet the regular requirements of student body officers, with the exception of attending De Anza for one semester. Secretaries and clerks may be added as needed.

Part of the proposed Judicial Code is the Fair Hearing Board. As a recommending body for the benefit of students, it hears student grievances against staff members, teachers, etc. Membership of this council consists of three students, two faculty.

Next Monday student council will vote on the tentative code.

Inconsistent Dons ready to face defending champs

By MIKE DOWNING
LA VOZ SPORTS WRITER

"We're capable of a much better finish than the seventh place we're picked for," comments De Anza basketball mentor Tony Nunes as he prepares his charges for tomorrow's encounter with defending champion, Contra Costa. Tip-off is 8 p.m. in the Comet gym.

Although possessing a mediocre 7-7 win-loss record at this point, the Don's have been playing their best basketball of the year.

"We were at our low point when we were clobbered by Foothill December 12, but then we came back to win the Cabrillo Tourney," said Nunes. "And although we followed that championship with a sixth place finish in the Santa Monica Tourney, we played our best all around games of the year in losing to strong East Los Angeles, 66-64, beating Orange Coast, 78-53, and losing to Laney, 80-76."

In the Cabrillo Tournament, the Dons were led by Most Valuable Player, Mike Tarabanovic. The 6-6 forward totalled 70 points for the three game set including a 33 point outburst against Ohlone that fell two points short of the school record set by Cary Mitchell.

After beating American River in the opener 68-63, and Ohlone in the semi-finals, 82-65, the Dons met host team Cabrillo in the finals and emerged with a hard fought 86-79 triumph.

The Seahawks, hitting with amazing consistency in the first half, trailed the taller Dons by only 44-42 at the intermission, with the majority of their points coming from no closer than 25 feet.

In the second half, Cabrillo cooled off considerably, while Tarabanovic and forward Rich Mulligan started controlling the backboards and the game. Mulligan, in his best effort to date, hit a season high of 22 points on a variety of short jumpers and driving lay-ups. Guard Dave Blasquez and Bob Nebozuk complimented the inside game with 13 and 12 points, respectively. Cabrillo's Wayne Gluhan led all scoring with 23.

Further strengthening DAC hopes this week will be the return of veteran guard John Myers. Myers, returning from a two-year stint in the Army, was a starting guard for the Dons in the 1967-68 season.

He's one of a kind

There's at least one in every crowd. I'm talking about that one special breed of fan: the sports retard. He's the guy who eats, drinks, and sleeps sports. He's the one who dreams of scoring the winning touchdown, the last-second hoop, or the ninth-inning home run, then he wakes up. After memorizing the sports page, especially the box scores, he heads to the ball park and gets there two hours before the game. It's ritual.

After the opening kickoff, tipoff, or pitch he's off and running at the mouth. Yelling at everything but always with that concerned look on his face as if the world might crumble with that home team loss.

This is the fan who never made the high school team although he always through he was the best. At different sporting events he gets his chance to show off his fluent knowledge of the sports language, where he hopes to impress everybody around him to the point of admiration.

Where nobody would notice him on the court, the diamond, or the gridiron, he shouts mightily in the stands where he hopes people will think that he was an ex-college hero who has created his last miracle finish.

Next time you go out to see your favorite team play and happen to see one of these sports retards in action, don't tell the poor guy to shut up; stand up and applaud him. Give the poor guy a break.

DAC still strong as win streak ends

The De Anza College wrestling team had a 27 meet conference win streak snapped by Santa Rosa Dec. 17, by a score of 26-18. The Dons were forced to forfeit three weight divisions which gave Santa Rosa 15 points. After the first five matches, De Anza trailed, 18-5, and had little chance to pull it out. Bob Marsella and Bob Hernandez both registered pins in the losing cause.

The loss was part of a dual meet at Santa Rosa in which De Anza came back to defeat Marin 26-5 in the second meet. Brad Davis, Rick Lewis, and Bob Marsella all pinned their opponents.

De Anza's first conference dual meet was against Canada and Skyline on Dec. 10. De Anza won both meets. The Dons edged Canada 22-18 and then came back to destroy Skyline 26-8. Karl Knope and Bob Marsella each received credit for a pin. Marsella is undefeated in eight matches. He has picked up three pins, two decisions and three forfeits.

The Dons next travel to Contra Costa and take on the Comets and Solono in a dual meet. This is a crucial meet and the Dons are faced with two must wins in order to stay near the top.

Coach Tuck Halsey is very optimistic about the rest of the season. "We are only forfeiting the 126 class now and we have picked up a very good wrestler in Mitch Penney, so we'll be in good shape the rest of the way."

Coach Halsey continued, "I think we will have a real good chance of defeating Santa Rosa the next time around."

New twist for football

Although we're still eight months away from the opening kickoff for De Anza's version of football 1971, they've already made history. Instead of opening the season against Foothill which De Anza has done every year since they came into existence, the Dons will open up against San Jose City College. It will be the first time these two teams have faced each other. But for those of you who just go to De Anza so you can boo Foothill, don't be discouraged; on the second game of the season De Anza will do battle with the hooting Owls.

If some of you feel this is against tradition, you're right, but that's progress. Progress?
