Taketa lays election platform planks for Young Democrats club meeting

Grayson Taketa, democratic candidate for Congress from the 10th Congressional District, spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Young Democrats Club on campus.

Taketa spoke briefly of the drain which government spending in Vietnam is putting on our aerospace-oriented district and his policies in contrast to his opponent's, incumbent Charles Gubser. He also talked about the lack of truth in government and Proposition 9.

TAKETA'S SPEECH expressed the need for change in government, which was due, he said, to his opponent's concentration on "the military-industrial complex." He claims Gubser is an advocate of the arms race which directs the country's economy away from domestic affairs. Taketa estimated government defense expenditure at 90 billion, half of which, he said, was probably spent in Vietnam.

"We have to get away from this," he stressed.

This district relies on aerospace contracts, which have suffered because of the priority of funds given to Vietnam, according to Taketa. Programs at Lockheed have been curtailed and 3,000 people have lost their jobs there this year, he pointed out.

His solution to this problem would involve putting an end to the war by an unconditional bombing cease, which he hopes would promote progress at the conference table to be followed up by a systematic withdrawal of troops.

THE 33-YEAR-OLD University of Santa Clara graduate feels the unrest in the country is related to Vietnam. The disparity between promise and action he explained, accounts for the hypocrisy young people see in public figures.

"I think we have to bring more truth to government," he said. "Fear and mistrust will prevail in our country unless we do something about it."

Taketa is a practicing attorney in San Jose. He received his juris doctor degree from the University of California in chemical engineering and did graduate work in that field at George Washington University.

Speaking on Proposition 9, Taketa said, "I'm against it." He feels the proposition "is a fraud on individuals." "The tax saving to private industry would be greater than to the individual," he concluded.

A new club on campus, the Y.D. invites interested students to join them in their efforts to support democratic ideals and to form a liaison between De Anza and the community. In this way, the club hopes to create community interest and involvement in De Anza's activities.

"We believe Democrats offer this country a choice. Republicanism is loyal behavior that only leads to facism, not discussion and thought that leads to a democracy or a republic," said Vic Whitmore, president of the club.

Future speakers for the club will hopefully be Senate candidate Alan Cranston, Assemblyman John Vasconcellos and candidate for Congress from the 9th congressional district, according to Whitmore.

The club's co-advisers are instructors Hugh Thomas, Kenneth Bruce and Donald Barnett.

Experimental College to broaden view

De Anza's experimental college held its first meeting last week to approve the constitution and elect a chairman.

Because De Anza does not offer contemporary courses that are starting to catch the interest of students, a small number joined together, through the Experimental College, to fulfill their outside interests.

SOME OF THE things the College hopes to initiate are encounter groups, religion studies, and cultural and ethnic group studies.

There are also plans to organize different types of entertainment and sponsor lectures on subjects ranging anywhere from drugs to religious beliefs.

The Experimental College offers non-credit courses designed to aid the students in broadening their views on life. Anyone is welcome to attend the meetings and participate in the activities.

NO ATTEMPT HAS been made by any members of the Experimental College to see if any of the courses students are interested in could be offered through De Anza.

Wally Smith, a De Anza student, said, "If I go to an administrator and ask him for a lecturer to speak, I would appear as the only person interested in the event. But, if the Experimental College asked for the event, at least the school would know there is a large number of people interested."

William Skyles, DAC English instructor, volunteered to be the adviser of the Experimental College after Kenneth Bruce, former adviser, notified the College that he would not have enough time to really help to his fullest ability due to his other activities.

Gym bleachers OK'd at Student Council meeting

A motion to provide bleachers for the second wall of the basketball gymnasium was passed at the ASDAC Student Council meeting Oct. 21.

According to Roberta Goulding, director of finance for ASDAC, money will be gathered through various fund-raising projects. Tentative projects include a McDonald's Day—a day where a McDonald's Hamburger Stand donates 50 per cent of its profits for the day to the fund—a newspaper drive, season basketball tickets for parents of students at $5 a head and a rummage sale.

The rummage sale will be a contest among the clubs on campus. First, second and third prizes will be awarded to the club or organization that contributes the most salable rummage.

The cost of the bleachers is estimated to be between $12,000 and $13,000. It is hoped that at least one section of the bleachers will be constructed by the start of basketball season, according to Miss Goulding.

If the project is successful, it will be extended to eventually provide football bleachers.

Halloween films feature 'Birds'

The Friday Flicks will present a special Halloween program on Oct. 25. The scheduled films are Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds" and "Village of the Damned."

Admission will be 25 cents for students and 50 cents for non-students. The flicks will begin at 7:30 in Forum 1.

The evening's entertainment is sponsored by the De Anza Evening College Students Association (DECSA).

The purpose in the past for presenting the Friday night flicks was to give the audience a look at the more "art" type movies like those shown at the Saratoga Theater. The films this year are designed to create an atmosphere for families.

Republican Vice-Presidential hopeful Spiro Agnew will appear at a rally tomorrow in the Main Gym. The rally is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., but 10,000 people are expected and those planning to attend are advised to arrive early.

YR's host Agnew at rally tomorrow

Spiro T. Agnew, Republican candidate for Vice President, will appear at De Anza tomorrow as the featured guest at a rally organized by the Young Republicans (YR's). Ten thousand people are expected to attend the 2 p.m. event in the gym.

Republican candidates for local offices are also expected to participate. Pat Brown, public relations director for the YR's, hopes that Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Gov. Ronald Reagan may possibly attend the rally, since both men plan on being in the Bay Area tomorrow.

THE YR'S WERE not actually responsible for bringing Agnew to De Anza. The decision to come here was made by the Republican State Central Committee. Dr. Calvin C. Flint, Foothill District Superintendent, made the final decision.

"It's a new school and more or less not known for reactionary activities," speculated Brown, as the reason the State Central Committee chose De Anza for the rally.

Publicity and decorations for the gym are being handled by the YR's. The Secret Service will be in charge of security. "Everyone planning on coming should arrive early, because we expect an overflow crowd," warned Mark Miller, member of the YR Executive Board.

AGNEW TOOK office as governor of Maryland in 1967. He reformed the state income tax laws, enacted the first statewide Fair Housing bill south of the Mason-Dixon line, and accelerated highway construction.

"I selected Ted Agnew as the one who best met my exacting criteria: qualified to be President, an effective campaigner, and an administrator who could assume new responsibilities for the office of Vice President," Richard M. Nixon, GOP candidate for President, has explained.

Agnew feels that students will always have objections to the way colleges are being run. "I doubt if we'll ever change that," he said at a press conference March 28. "Our problem is to make certain that we properly assess their objections and make changes where they are indicated, but don't overact."

"I DON'T FEEL that we can unilaterally stop the bombing in Vietnam. I think President Johnson's position that this can't simply be a unilateral situation is very realistic, but they must give us some assurances that they will take steps to de-escalate hostilities concurrently," Agnew said at an interview with the New York Times Aug. 25.

Application for state aid deadline Dec. 10

Students in need of financial assistance to continue college may apply for a State Scholarship. Application deadline for the 1969-70 school term is Dec. 10.

There are approximately 5,800 scholarships available to students. The amounts of the awards range from $300 to $2,000 at independent colleges, $300 at the University of California and approximately $120 at California State Colleges.

TO BE ELIGIBLE, students must be residents of California and under 24 years of age. Applicants must have graduated from high school by the summer of the year of the award or have been accepted by a college.

In order to be considered, applying students must demonstrate a need of monetary assistance. Required also is a 2.5 grade average of all subjects taken since the completion of high school.

Students are also selected on the basis of their high moral character, good citizenship and dedication to American ideals.

APPLICANTS MUST take the Scholastic Aptitude Test given on two dates: Nov. 2 and Dec. 7. If the SAT has previously been taken by the applicant, those scores may be used, but they must be presented by Dec. 10.

State Scholarships may be used at any four-year college in California. Awards cover only tuition and fees charged.

Information in regard to "reserve" scholarships for students currently enrolled at De Anza who wish to transfer at a later date may be obtained at the Office of Financial Aid in the Administration Building. "Anyone who is interested in obtaining a scholarship can pick up an application at this office," urged Mrs. Claire Davis, student aid specialist.

SC permitted in staff spaces

Ten parking spaces have been allotted to the members of the Student Council.

Each member has been given a parking permit to park in one of the three staff parking lots. "Because they are on the go so often they need to find spaces to park faster," said Mrs. Hinson of Student Activities.

Mrs. Hinson stressed the fact that there are no reserved spaces, but that it will be first-come, first-serve. "Aside from the District Superintendent and a few others," she said, "there are no reserved spaces at De Anza. Even the president is giving his up."

Campaign poster defacing continues

For the second time in three weeks, La Voz has received a letter to the editor lamenting the destruction and defacement of posted campaign literature.

A few weeks ago a student wrote about the damage done to her car while it was parked in the student parking lot. The damage was apparently prompted by a campaign sticker on the car. This week we run another letter about the number of Young Republican posters which have been damaged or defaced.

The reasons behind these acts? There are two possible causes.

The damage could simply be the result of the "normal" amount of vandalism which plagues the student publicity chairman who has to remove approximately ten posters each week because they have been ripped or defaced. Vandalism becomes a bad habit when unchecked.

However, this particular brand of vandalism was probably of a political nature, especially in an election year. Perhaps there is method in this brand of madness. Certainly these vandals are not the type of person committed to a particular cause. They are simply not mature enough to disagree with opposing political beliefs on an adult level. Children are apt to destroy what they feel they cannot control.

We suggest to those persons who feel they must find an outlet for their objections to political ideas that they find a cause which reflects their beliefs and go out and work constructively for it.

Marin-based fair revives renaissance pleasures

By RICK HOEBEE
La Voz Business Manager

The flavor of the medieval and renaissance periods is hard to recreate, but history has been restored and is easily sampled at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Marin County this Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

In the woods of San Rafael, the minstrels, jesters, serving wenches, mummers and troubadors of the 15th and 16th centuries come alive in the costumes and characters of their times.

VISITORS BECOME a part of this atmosphere and it often adds to the fun to wear a costume yourself (Friar Tuck garb for men and a Maid Marion outfit for women, for example), but this isn't a requirement.

Lifted away from the 20th century, visitors hear the music of mandolins, guitars and recorders, and smell the aromas of roasting chicken and beef being prepared in open barbecue pits. Nearby, a blacksmith hammers away. The drinks of that era are also served.

Aside from just soaking up the atmosphere, fairgoers can visit the outdoor amphitheatre where each half hour singers, dancers and actors perform in various entertainments. Some aren't actors. Last weekend a couple was married in a renaissance ceremony.

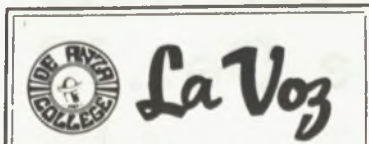

WANDERING THROUGH the artisan's booths, you can buy pottery, candles and prints and perhaps an object of the past.

Several areas have also been set up for children where jesters, clowns and puppeteers entertain them while their parents see the fair.

To get to the fair, cross the Golden Gate Bridge and take Highway 101 to the Marin Civic Center. From there shuttle buses take visitors to the fair itself.

TICKETS ARE $2.75 per person. The admission fee goes to pay the costs of the co-sponsors, radio station KPFA and the Renaissance Center of the Bay Area, for setting up a "permanent" fair site.

The idea of the faire was conceived by Ron and Phyllis Patterson a few years ago in Los Angeles. Originally, it was to serve as a medieval children's fair and backdrop for a Comedia de l'Arte showing by the Piccolo Playmakers, which is a children's improvisational theatre group directed by Mrs. Patterson. With further research and imagination, the fair blossomed into the vast proportions it takes on today.

YR's signs defaced by disrespectful 'kids'

Dear Editor:

It is time for a few students at De Anza College to grow up. Too many students in this college just cannot accept the fact that they are out of high school now; they cannot accept the fact that they are expected to respect the property rights of others. It's time for them to begin accepting ideas like freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of expression. At this time, evidently, some students at De Anza still have not grown up and accepted these ideas.

On Friday, Oct. 11, the Young Republicans of De Anza College posted three large signs in the student center. Two of these were posted over the vending machines near the stairway. Within three hours these two signs had been ripped down and destroyed. These signs were expensive and difficult to obtain.

A THIRD SIGN was hung up in the cafeteria section of the student center. By the next day, Oct. 12, this sign, too, had disappeared. The "life span" of this sign was less than one day.

A fourth YR sign posted on the staircase in the student center on Oct. 14 was mutilated and defaced three times on three separate occasions. Each time it was repaired, and each time it was defaced again.

A sign, reading "Join College Republicans" on an American flag background, was posted in the student center near the student activities office. It, too, was defaced and had to be repaired.

LASTLY, ON OCT. 18 the YR's posted 15 school-made signs at 10 a.m. By 2 p.m., just four hours later, three of them had to be taken down by the Young Republicans because of defacement. One student wrote on a glass window in the student center with a felt pen.

As of this writing, the YR's here on campus have posted new signs. Members of the Young Republicans are serving as guards over these. Other signs are now enclosed in a glass case for protection.

At this time, when students are protesting and rioting for their freedoms of speech and expression, how can this childish vandalism be tolerated? Why can't students learn to accept or reject ideas, rather than try to destroy them? After all, isn't that what college is all about?

Political signs lack maturity

Dear Editor:

Last week several signs appeared on campus publicized by a campus club. The signs read, "Would the crew of the Pueblo vote Democratic? — Join Young Republicans — We support our country."

Who ever was responsible for the printing of these signs (I assume it was the Young Republicans) collectively demonstrated not only a gross lack of maturity but also a lack of political responsibility.

TO BLAME ONE man, one administration or one party for the crises which arose during their administration is typical of the irrational voter and is generally frowned upon by those people who have been educated in political thought.

If any person or any body of people thinks that Hoover was to blame for the Depression, Truman for the Korean War, Kennedy for the Cuban Crisis, or the Democratic Party for the Pueblo Crisis, I would urge that person or that body of persons to think harder.

WOULD THE CREW of the Pueblo vote Democratic? Would the crew of the Pueblo vote Republican? Would the crew of the Pueblo vote? If they were to vote, I think that they would vote for a man who could remain calm in the heat of crisis and a man who could seek a peaceful solution to all crises.

And so, Young Republicans, it appears that your signs were a failure, and certainly if you hope to win people over to your cause, you will in the future employ not only better taste but also exhibit a bit more maturity and political responsibility.

Family Rec program starts tonight

Beginning Oct. 25, from 7 to 10 p.m., De Anza is initiating a Friday night recreation program for the entire family, according to Helen Windham, director of the program.

A charge of 50 cents per person will allow adults and children to participate in any of the activities during the Friday evening sessions. Children under 16, however, must be accompanied by an adult.

PLANS ARE BEING developed to hold an opening show consisting of swimming and diving exhibitions, along with gymnastics, weight lifting and karate demonstrations.

Recreation activities include swimming, diving and water games. Basketball, badminton and table tennis will be offered in the main gym, while volleyball will be the main activity in the auxiliary gymnasium.

The gymnastics room will be the scene of activity on rings, bars, beam, horse and buck. Constant supervision and instruction will be available if needed.

THE WEIGHT LIFTING and combative rooms will both be open with all equipment ready for use. A supervisor will be on duty and prepared to offer instruction in both areas if needed.

Participants should wear or bring comfortable clothes and a swim suit if they intend to go into the water. A few lockers are open, but locks cannot be provided. Showers will also be available; however, individuals should bring their own towels. No clothing can be kept overnight in the lockers.

Pre-registration is not required. Contact the De Anza Office of Community Services for further information.

Foothill District planning new headquarters

Foothill College District administrators should be moving out of their offices at De Anza and Foothill Colleges by next July. The district plans to erect a new administration building between the old Cusack house and the stadium at Foothill College.

"We plan to move because of organization and space," explained Bill Cutler, head of the district Business services department. At this time, the district offices are taking up valuable space in the College administration buildings.

The new building is tentatively scheduled to be completed by July 1, 1969. Bidding on the contract will begin Nov. 21. The building will cost approximately $486,000, according to Cutler.

Fiesta bursts with activity

De Anza's Fiesta Week will begin its annual festivities with a rally and carnival and wind up with the Fiesta Ball.

Fiesta Week will run from Nov. 4-9 and is equivalent to Homecoming, according to Jan Finn, ASDAC director of activities.

On Tuesday, Nov. 5, candidates from the individual clubs for "Don" (King), "Dona" (Queen) and Professor Quioxte will be introduced at a rally during College Hour. Co-Rec will sponsor an informal dance that evening.

Balloting for the candidates will begin on Wednesday and end Friday.

Thursday's highlight will be a carnival sponsored by the clubs in the patio area.

On Friday Siniwik and Tri-I are tentatively scheduled for a touch-football game in the park south of the library.

Saturday morning will see some games and relays between club teams at De Anza. There will be a chicken barbecue at 5 p.m.

During the half-time show at the De Anza - Solano football game, the winners of the contests for Don, Dona and Professor Quioxte will be presented to the school.

The Fiesta Ball will follow the game. This will be a couples dance, according to Miss Finn.

David Harris speaks at Foothill on war, violence

David Harris, former Stanford University student body president convicted of draft evasion, appeared at Foothill College Tuesday as a guest of the College's Constitutionalists Club.

Harris' wife, Joan Baez, was also scheduled to appear, but her plane was delayed on its way out of Nashville, Tenn.

HARRIS BEGAN his talk with the statement that has "meaning in the context of a world of blood and oppression." "All men are brothers," he said, adding that we should give this brotherhood meaning with our lives, but that in so doing we run into the draft.

Harris called the draft card "a man's death warrant" and said that carrying one was like saying "when and where you decide murder is a fit national policy, I'm your boy." He added that he felt military conscription has taught fear, the kind of fear that "allows a grown man to drop jellied gasoline on little children."

Harris went on to explain that "non-violence has been organized for 60 years," but men have achieved very few of the things they set out to get with it.

"IT'S SUCH A BIG failure; I know of only one bigger failure in the world today, and that's violence," Harris said. "Men have organized violence for 5,000 years and have yet to get one God damned thing they set out to get."

Discussing World War II and the atomic bomb, Harris maintained that "at the end of the great war to save humanity, the saviors of humanity had effectively killed more people than the enemy had supposedly set out to destroy." He quoted a statement made by Ghandi prior to WW II, "If you try to stop fascism with fascism, you will find at the end of the war

As guest of a campus club, David Harris spoke to a crowd on the Foothill College campus this week. He spoke of the war in Vietnam, the draft, and his solutions to those and other problems. (La Voz photo by Rick Morgante) you've all become fascists."

To gain his ends of "hope and life," Harris explained that he felt "the biggest weapon you have is to care for other people's lives. If you take steps to build a world of life instead of a world of oppression, you will have company."

'Winery' wins coed award

Pat Sedlak, De Anza coed, took a Special Prize Award for a College Student at the 1968 Historical Landmarks Art Exhibit in Cupertino for a watercolor she did of "The Winery."

The exhibit is co-sponsored by the Fine Arts League of Cupertino and the Historical Society of Cupertino. The show is part of Pioneer Week and attracted 65 paintings of various landmarks in the valley.

In addition to her painting of the Winery, Miss Sedlak also entered watercolors of the Paul Masson and Villa Maria Wineries and the Portal House.

The exhibit will run through Sunday. It is housed in the basement of the Cupertino City Hall, 10300 Torre Ave. and is open daily from 1 to 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Sensitivity conference

Insight gained at meeting

Several De Anza students "discovered themselves" at the San Mateo College Sensitivity Conference two weeks ago. The conference was a new idea in group therapy pioneered by Dr. Carl Rogers, psychologist.

The delegates to the convention met in small groups led by two strangers called facilitators. The participants were given no format; all that was asked by the facilitators was that they be truthful.

ALAN BOOTH, ONE of 12 De Anzans attending the conference, explained, "It (rapport between the members) seemed to happen without any work from us. Suddenly, as if by some unseen cue, a few talked about what they expected from the conference, and bit by bit the inner-self began to come to the surface.

"The insight we gained into the other members of the group is comparable to nothing that most of us had experienced before," said Booth.

"The facilitators helped us explore new worlds never seen before, showing us how good it was to actually smell the sweetness of the air rather than just breathing it."

THE PARTICIPANTS at the conference told each other what they really thought and felt, and in the process found out more about themselves.

"We found that even though we held different positions on campus, ranging from student to district personnel, each person in the group was warm, loving, yet with many of the same insecurities and marked concerns for others. In short, they were people just like you or me," remarked Booth.

He reflected, "We came out of that conference different people, a little more open, a little less afraid to get involved, and best of all a little more understanding of the faults of others."

White paper easier to read

For readability and better looking photographs, La Voz has changed the paper it uses to the higher quality white paper.

The first two issues were printed on newsprint due to the small size of the staff, forcing the use of a lesser grade paper to insure Friday morning delivery from the printer.

As of this issue, the staff has grown to include three photographers, last semester's ad manager, 11 ad staffers, 12 new reporters and one veteran reporter from last year's staff. Four of the five editors are also returning staff members.

Gridders trounce Comets; meet Santa Rosa at home

By TOM JONES
La Voz Sports Writer

After winning their conference opener against Contra Costa, 21-6, the Don gridgers host Santa Rosa tomorrow at Foothill beginning at 8 p.m.

Everything from injuries to penalties to interceptions were included in last week's Don-Comet clash. The first quarter featured a spectacular goal-line defense by De Anza, stopping a 61-yard drive on the 1-yard line. With five attempts for a touch-down from within 10 yards, the Comets couldn't score against a well dug-in Don defense.

HALFWAY THROUGH the second quarter the fireworks began. Pass interference was called against the Comets on their 19-yard line and the offender was ejected from the game for misconduct.

At that moment the Dons came alive. Ken Barber pounded the middle twice, and then Mike Utt made the final 1-yard plunge for the score. The point-after attempt was blocked.

Almost as soon as Contra Costa got the ball back, they gave it up. Brian Stevens picked off the first of De Anza's six interceptions. With less than one minute remaining in the half, Larry Lorenz fired a 4-yard TD pass to Stevens. A two-point conversion was made with a pass from Lorenz to Jim Schroeder.

THE SECOND HALF began with the Dons receiving the kick. The offense couldn't move so the defense came on again with some fine play. John Maniscalco picked off another Comet pass and carried it to mid-field before being hauled down. Before the quarter ended, De Anza fumbled twice, the first at the end of a 41-yard drive and the second after Ken Barber intercepted a pass.

The Dons began rolling again in the last quarter as lineman Paul Thatcher intercepted a pass. With a fourth-and-one situation, Lorenz passed to Cary Mitchell for 20 yards. After a 1-yard gain, a Comet picked off a shovel-pass and ran it in for an 89-yard TD gallop. The extra point attempt failed, however.

In the closing minutes, Steve Gudelj intercepted a pass and returned it for 31 yards. With 40 seconds remaining, Ron Salas ran around end for a 9-yard jaunt into the end zone. The point after was good, making the score 21-6. The game ended with Gudelj again intercepting a pass with two seconds on the clock.

DENNIS DE CLARK was taken to the hospital during the game because of a leg injury.

Harriers trample CC; Marin next circuit foe

With a 15-48 win over Contra Costa last Saturday and four straight wins over JC opponents, the Don cross-country squad will try to make it five victories in a row at the College of Marin today at 4 p.m.

Last week's win over Contra Costa was an example of the team effort that Coach Don Vick has been instilling in his runners. The first five finishers of the race were all Dons.

THE QUINTET WAS led by Art Rodrigues, who clipped 21 seconds off Contra Costa's existing course record. He came in with a 20:40 effort. Close behind were Steve Fegundes, second; Marty Bernstein, third; Frank Mateos, fourth, and Bruce Caris, fifth. Rounding out De Anza's finishers in the top ten was Glenn Gaesser, seventh.

Coach Vick was impressed with the effort of the team as a whole. He said that one has only to take a look at the race to observe how his team operates. For example, Rodrigues and Fegundes, the front runners, pulled off the pace and paced Mateos who was faltering, and then the leaders took off and won the race. Mateos, as a result, placed fourth.

THE COACH WAS also impressed with the effort of Marty Bernstein, who previously had been in the also-rans. Bernstein made fantastic improvement and finished third.

The duel with Marin is an important one, according to Vick, as Marin has only one conference loss to West Valley. He adds that the course at Marin is the toughest one in the league and ought to provide quite a test of the Dons' strength. The coach thinks that it is so tough that he made a special trip to Marin last Tuesday to test it.

Vick emphasized that this afternoon's contest will be a cliff-hanger and that next week's foe, West Valley, will be the clincher. If De Anza takes both, then the Dons will have the championship for the second straight year.

Fun for all at Tankers host Lobos

Weekend athletes can shine tomorrow at the Foothill College Sports Day. The competition will be from 9 to 12 with lunch at 12:30.

There will be such activities as archery, co-ed volleyball, bridge, badminton, weight lifting, tennis, fencing, chess, table tennis, bowling, and billiards. Foothill has $200 in trophies to give out to the top three in each event and to the top teams.

"It's one of the biggest and best Sports Days of the year," said Miss Helen Windham intramural director of De Anza.

All the events will be going on at the same time, which limits a student to only one activity. The limitation provides for larger teams and with 11 JC's invited, 300 participants are expected.

Along with the free lunch for participants, free coffee and donuts will be given out in the morning during registration. During lunch Foothill will provide entertainment.

Jim Rear and Janis Lewis are co-chairmen of the De Anza contingent. Rear and Miss Lewis are students in Miss Windham's P.E. 61 class.

In their first conference game of the season, the De Anza tankers play host to Monterey Peninsula at 3:30 today.

"The Lobos are a strong team and we expect a good game," said head coach George Spear.

Last Friday, the Don water polo team was scheduled to meet Marin for their conference opener, but the Tars withdrew their team from competition. Instead, De Anza's poloists took on the San Jose State Junior varsity team and beat them 5-3.

The first half of play was a defensive battle with neither team able to score. In the third quarter the Dons went on a scoring spree when they hit four goals to take the lead 4-0.

An attempted comeback by the Spartans was blocked in the last period of play by the Don defense. The Spartans did manage to sneak in three goals, but the Dons added one more of their own to win 5-3.

Mark Evans scored three goals and Greg Gibson got two.
