

Dan Brigham, newly appointed editor of the Sentinel, places an emphasis on "interpretative reporting."

Major editorial posts announced

Recently appointed to the positions of editor of the Sentinel and the Fairly Free Thinker are Dan Brigham and Jon Buckley, respectively.

Dan Brigham, 20-year old journalism major, brings to the Sentinel experience as a reporter, not only for the Sentinel for 3 semesters, but as a reporter for the Oxnard Press-Courier, Oxnard, and The Hourglass, Kwajalein, Marshall Islands. Brigham also established and edited the first newspaper at the New Mexico Military Institute, the Recall. He is currently employed by the Palo Alto Times.

Brigham hopes to improve the quality of the news stories of the Sentinel by "interpretive reporting or reporting anything that affects Foothill students."

He cited the example of interpreting "how the new gubernatorial budget proposal will affect Foothill transfers to state colleges."

He plans to revive the Sentinel Poll, to "have as many special editions as our budget allows" and to "establish an editorial leadership policy."

"Foothill is like a great sleeping beast, and I want to try to wake it up," explained Brigham.

Jon Buckley, 19 year-old English major, re-appointed as editor of the Fairly Free Thinker, plans on "making the magazine bigger, better and more readable."

Last semester, Buckley began his campaign to make the Fairly Free Thinker more of a "magazine of opinion" by opening the Thinker to artists, photographers, reviewers, essayists, short story writers and "brave people in general."

"I know there's poets on campus — I've heard from them — but I want to print the prose writers also."

"The Fairly Free Thinker is an open forum in which the well reasoned ideas of both students and faculty can be expressed within the liberal framework of the law and good taste."

Besides keeping the Thinker production on a monthly basis, Buckley plans to obtain racks for regular distribution.

Gayle Parker, Commissioner of Communications and chairman of the Board of Communications which appointed the editors said, "It will be exciting to work with two such dynamic people."

Jon Buckley, re-appointed editor of the Fairly Free Thinker, plans to make the spring semester editions "braver."

FC 'free university' schedules new classes

Five new "extra-curricular" courses, proposed by a group of students and faculty with an eye on the eventual expansion of Foothill's curriculum, are tentatively scheduled to begin next week.

The courses, all seminars, will be taught at night, and will not be assigned transferable credit.

The courses — "Propaganda Workshop," "Buddhism," "Crisis-Vietnam," "The American Society," and "The American Negro" have already received the support of Dr. Wright, acting assistant director of the Evening College. They will be taught by members of the Foothill faculty.

The idea originated with the "Free University" concept that is now in operation at various major colleges in the country.

The program was an outgrowth of the Constitutionalist-sponsored Academic Omlettes last semester. A group of faculty and students, interested in keeping the ball rolling on some of the new ideas in education, proposed the courses.

Kimo Olson, spokesman for the group, indicated that they would seek a charter and recognition as an official campus organization through student council.

"We've gotten a lot of support for this so far," said Olson. "Everyone is very enthusiastic about the idea."

Olson indicated the current plans are to hold the classes at least one night each week on the campus, from approximately 8:30-10:30.

"But the actual format of the class itself will be up to the students participating," he added. "If they want to discuss something irrelevant to the topic, that will be their prerogative."

"The instructor at each of these classes will be more of a group member than a faculty member. He will not instruct, but stimulate."

Olson said that a large sign-up sheet will be posted in the campus center next week, and students may sign up for any course they wish, with a limit of fifteen per class. He also indicated that there would be a possibility of additional classes added if there was enough evident student interest.

Pelshakov in piano recital here tomorrow night

Vladimir Pelshakov will present a classical piano concert in the Foothill Theatre tomorrow evening at 8:15.

Pelshakov, who was born in China, educated in Australia and now resides in Menlo Park made his first public appearance at 16, appearing as a soloist with the Sydney Symphony Orchestra.

He holds a degree in piano, and composition and studied under Lazareff, Kostevich and Sverjensky, all of whom were closely associated with Alexander Siloti, cousin of Rachmaninoff.

Although Pelshakov's piano training has a Russian influence, his training in theory was influenced greatly by the English school.

Pelshakov's last appearance in this area was last year at the University of Santa Clara, where he appeared both as a pianist and as a composer of chamber music and songs.

The pieces scheduled for tomorrow's program are: Bach-Busoni's Toccata in C Major, Schriabin's Sonata No. 5, Beethoven's "Waldstein" Sonata, Chopin's Ballade No. 4, three Rachmaninoff Preludes, Ravel's "Alborado del Gracioso," Liszt's "Tarantella" and a short contemporary piece, "Intermezzo and Capriccio" by Leland Smith.

Tickets to the concert are 50c for students, $1.00 and $2.00 for general admission.

Famed Pianist, Vladimir Pelshakov will perform in the College Theatre Saturday evening at 8:15.

Budget cuts not to hinder junior college transfers

By TOM PEARSON
Sentinel City Editor

Governor Reagan's budget cuts, which might see more than 20,000 students turned away from California's state colleges if approved, will not seriously hinder junior college transfers' chances of admission, affirmed Dr. Robert Clark, San Jose State president, last week.

Foothill and other junior college students "would receive high priority" from the state colleges and the University of California, according to Clark.

"We want to give junior college students every advantage," he added. "After all, they have no place else to go."

Clark expressed optimism, however, that the budget cuts would never become a reality for California higher education.

"All of these proposals are very 'iffy,'" he said. "They will all have to be answered by the legislature. I'm hopeful that everything will turn out all right and we won't be cut."

Clark added a note of caution, nevertheless.

"Should these budget cuts be approved, the junior college transfer would not be totally exempt. Although none of the details have been worked out yet, it is probable that we would have to cut our three main sources of students — high school graduates, out-of-state students and transfers — proportionally. It wouldn't be fair to cut half of the out-of-state students to admit all of the transfer students and vice versa."

San Jose and San Francisco State would be the most rigid on new enrollment should the budget cuts be put into effect, said Clark.

"San Francisco and San Jose are the two smallest campuses in the state college system, and, hence, we have a definite ceiling on admissions. We can only add about 500 students each year. Since we have around 3,000 graduate and an equal number drop out each year, our annual turnover is roughly 6,500."

"But we don't really have many openings. We just don't have the room for a lot of students. And some of our divisions — such as social sciences and humanities — are badly over-crowded already."

"We'll still accept qualified students in these areas, but we will be limited."

What would happen to those students turned away by state colleges and the University?

"They would be forced to go to the junior colleges," said Clark. "And this would be a definite burden to the junior college system. It might mean more funds would be necessary for the JC's, and that won't balance the budget."

Clark had sharp words for a tuition program of any kind for California's higher education institutions.

"This state has a great record in higher education. Education is beneficial to society as a whole. Members of society should help pay for it. I'm opposed to anything that would alter the present situation."

part-time and in the summer to pay for this. Even another $100 might force a substantial number of students to go to a junior college — another burden for junior colleges." Clark expressed uncertainty as to the connection between the proposed budget cuts and the tuition.

"It's not really clear," he said, "It seems to me that they want to cut our budget back 10 per cent first, and then make a second cut in the budget. This second cut would then be compensated for by the tuition. So, in effect, it's two budget cuts."

Clark indicated that the faculty was generally "dismayed at the thought of budget cuts and tuition."

"No professor that I know of wants to reduce the number of students here. But neither do they want to reduce the quality of the faculty or the facilities. As a result, some faculty members are strongly opposed to Governor Reagan's action, because it will ultimately mean choosing one or the other."

ASFC retreat to Jones Gulch

Forty members of the ASFC student council will leave this afternoon for a weekend retreat at Jones Gulch.

Elected and appointed officials from both last semester and this semester will meet to discuss the problems and ultimate solutions to these problems.

The retreat, consisting of workshops, discussions, and presentations by Dr. Warren of the social sciences division, and Sid Davidson of the business department.

"This is something we've really needed here," said Miss Marjorie Hinson, director of student activities. "The retreat will provide council members with an opportunity for an exchange of ideas that will help them determine what they wish to accomplish this semester."

Locke to Washington

Randy Locke, ASFC president, was one of thirty college and university student body presidents selected to travel to Washington, D.C. yesterday for the annual prayer breakfast with President Johnson in the capital.

Locke was the only junior college president selected to attend the breakfast. He was recommended by Reverend Dave Roper of the Peninsula Bible Church.

Censors at FC?

If any action is to be taken against Dr. Davis Sikes and Robert Keane, it will not be because of administrative censorship of drama productions.

In response to cries of "censorship" as the cause of any action on Sikes and Keane, the administration said the pending actions will be due to "personnel causes."

Dr. Sikes and Keane maintained that censorship was the issue, and so they asked the Professional Relations Committee to investigate. (The committee is composed of faculty members, headed by Dr. George Mannen, a psychology instructor. The committee's function is to investigate such charges for the instructors' benefit. The committee does not act unless they are requested to do so.)

According to the committee report, "The Professional Relations Committee thoroughly investigated this allegation and found NO evidence to substantiate the charge of censorship."

Dr. Calvin Flint, College president, said, "It is fortunate for Foothill that the committee judged that there was no censorship involved." He said that a finding of censorship would drag down Foothill's "liberal reputation."

About the "personnel causes" — the causes cannot be told. The administration cannot, legally say more about the subject. Foothill follows the State Council of Education code of ethics, which severely limits the administration in public discussion of a case. Reasons for dismissal cannot be disclosed unless the instructors who were fired demand a public hearing. This code of ethics was adopted to protect the teacher. Because reasons for dismissal are not told, the instructor's reputation will not be greatly hurt.

Here at Foothill, the administration has gone further. They give the instructors fair evaluations, and in some cases where FC instructors were fired, Dr. Flint found them positions elsewhere, comparable to and sometimes better than, what they had here.

It may be true that Dr. Flint didn't care for "Oh Dad, Poor Dad." It isn't true that Sikes and Keane were fired for presenting the plays.

Any action that may be taken will be due to personnel reasons. Not censorship.

Now you, too, can be edukated!

By TOM PEARSON
Sentinel City Editor

Some people are never satisfied. Even with more than 1400 classes offered at Foothill, both day and evening, they want more.

So a group of concerned individuals, feeling that their inalienable rights to a good education were being stifled by the lack of relevant courses offered here, proposed a fistful of classes dealing with subjects they felt were by and large more germane to the process of education.

Operating under the label of The Foothill Experiment in Education, this group hopes to broaden the base of educational opportunity so that all might have a chance to be better equipped to deal with society and its problems. That's why they've proposed these additional courses. Courses like "Buddhism." And "Propaganda Workshop." Wonderful.

My only complaint with the whole plan is that it reeks of cowardice. It is hard to imagine propaganda as a major social problem and Buddhism as a probable solution. The classes would appear to have an aura of a Sunday school rally about them — everyone pushing their own beliefs and prejudices for the good of all. It takes someone with guts of custard to challenge these topics. Other courses, such as "The American Society," and "The American Negro," touch upon somewhat realistic subjects, but let's not stop there, gang. If we want to educate individuals to face society, let's not go halfway. Why not include a few classes that are genuinely important in this day and age?

David Kriegler, a sociologist and social worker in Los Altos, gave his opinion on some other prominent social questions. Like abortion. And prostitution. And drug use.

"Problems such as these (abortion, prostitution, drug use)," said Kriegler, "are not easily solved. To legalize them is far more desirable for the mental health of the masses, but such actions are largely pipe dreams."

"What would be necessary is a complete and tremendous re-education of society before these problems can be solved."

There's your green light, gang. If a "complete and tremendous re-education" is necessary, and this is what you desire, then what are you waiting for?

We can begin with a course in Abortion, and offer classes like Basic Birth Control 102 (non-transferrable) and Abortion Comprehension 10 (with lab). There are bound to be a few doctors around who are willing to scrap a career in order to guide students through two years of study until they acquire their AA (Associate of Abortion) degree.

For drug advocates, we can offer Drug Operation and Addiction 1 & 2. DOA 1 would introduce students to the wonders and advantages of drug usage. DOA 2 would instruct students in how to acquire and then pass along the illegal stuff to other potential users. Side trips will be offered in both classes.

Finally, we might be able to do a little educating in the area of prostitution. Fundamentals of Streetwalking 20 for the sellers and Prostitution Appreciation 1A for the buyers would be a good start in this direction. In one semester, girls can graduate with their very own PHd (Doctorate of Professional Hustling).

Through the efforts of modern education, it may not be long before we see a gentleman approach a woman on the street and ask to see her papers before popping the Big Question.

But you'd better hurry, O student educators. At the rate which society changes, in another year you may have to realign your entire curriculum and offer courses like Basic Body Freezing 100.

FC requests state relief

For the first time in the history of Foothill, an "emergency condition" has been declared by the trustees because of the increase in the dropout rate last semester.

The district is asking the state for $100,000 in relief funds because of the dropout rate increase.

"I have never heard of a district doing it (applying for relief) and we are the first to try it," commented Calvin C. Flint, president of Foothill.

Lee Stevens, assistant director of institutional research and planning, said that his best guess is that about 800 students (11 per cent) have dropped last semester.

Stevens commented that the rate seems higher in terms of students than it is in percentage. about 10 percent in the change

The dropout rate is usually over between the two semesters while a normal decrease in courses is about 15 percent, according to Dr. DeHart.

The high dropout rate has been caused by an increase in the draft call and also the availability of full time employment in area defense plants. Both these reasons are products of the Vietnam war.

Dr. Gibb R. Madsen, dean of students, said that there is always a decline in the enrollment from the fall semester to the spring semester. Last semester's enrollment was 7,100 day students, while this semester it is 6,312. When added to the 4,452 evening students the total enrollment is well over 10,000 students.

One of the primary reasons for the higher course dropout rate of 18.6 percent compared with the normal rate of 15 percent is that students are taking more units, Dr. Flint commented. Many of the men students, in particular, are loading up on increased amounts of courses to avoid the draft.

An official stated that many students are discovering that they cannot handle an increased load of courses so they are forced to drop the courses, to keep their grade point average up, therefore boosting the rate of courses dropped.

Flint added that, "we don't feel the application has too much of a chance." At the present time, no word had been heard about the application.

The reason the "emergency aid" was applied for was because of the higher dropout rate. Since approximately $600 is given to Foothill for each student by state and local sources, the same amount is lost when these students drop out.

a present administrative "delay" in processing applications, but stressed that this was by no means a "freeze" of any sort.

"We are just waiting for this whole picture to clear up a little so we know how we stand. It would be unthinkable to accept some students and then turn them away at a later date because we can't afford them."

FC students to sail the '7 seas'

Christine Ristedt and Robert Patterson, Foothill students, will be aboard the floating campus of Chapman's College's Seven Seas Division for the spring semester.

Ristedt, a graduate of Fremont High School, is a sophomore. Patterson, who graduated from Hollywood High School, is in his junior year. He is a political science major.

The students' voyage, 107 days long, goes to Caracas, Trinidad, Salvadore, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Rio de Janeiro, Lagos, Daka, Casablanca, Cadiz, Lisbon, Rotterdam, Copenhagen, London, Dublin and Galway. They will return to New York May 25.

Conscientious objectors confab scheduled for next Saturday

Every American male must consider the draft at the age of 18, and the Foothill Constitutionalist Club plans to help. Particularly in the field of draft alternatives.

A Conscientious Objector conference, sponsored by the Constitutionalist, will be held on campus Feb. 11 from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Mark Porat, president of the club, said, "The purpose of this conference is to offer information on the legal alternatives to military service."

Following registration at 9:30 in the Appreciation Hall, Professor Arnold True, of San Jose State, will speak on "Vietnam and Common-Sense Objection." He will be followed by Francis Heisler, an attorney, who will speak on "Conscientious Objection: A Short Legal History." Hank Maiden will conclude the morning session with a discussion of "The New CO."

After a half-hour lunch break, a one-hour long panel discussion will be held on "Alternatives." Participating will be Paul Seaver, David Fuller, Hank Maiden and the Rev. J. W. Cooper.

Workshops will be held from 1:30 until 4:30, the end of the program. In room S-1, Paul Seaver will lead the group in a discussion on "Non-Cooperation. In S-2 the workshop is on "The I-O" or Conscientious Objector; S-3, "The IA-O; S-4, "The Voluntary Exile," those who avoid ferring to a state college or the University of California in the fall of this year write for applications immediately.

"I am optimistic that our financial difficulties will be settled satisfactorily by the legislature. But there is a chance that some students might have to be turned away, especially here and at San Francisco State. It'll be first come, first served, so the sooner the better."

Psych club to boostactivities

The Foothill College Psychology Club, once a campus organization fighting for its life, is now in the process of rising to the point of respect among campus clubs. Activities are being formulated and organizational problems are being ironed out.

Th club's president, Bonnie Maximuc, who was instrumental in the club's success, has had to drop out of school to undergo an operation. Taking her place is Sharon Schepke, the club's former AOC representative. Taking Miss Schepke's place in the AOC is Bruce Chew.

A full activity program is beginning to gel for the Psych Club members. Topping the achievements is the program of volunteer work at Agnew State Hospital. A doctor at the hospital is trying to get official recognition for the Psych Club from the hospital governing board. This is an achievement club adviser George Mannen calls "a remarkable compliment."

Also in the plans are a possible volunteer program tutoring with the Santa Clara County welfare department in deprived areas of San Jose. A county social worker came to Foothill specifically to ask for help.

Dubbed as a success by club members was a lecture held recently with William Tinsley of the philosophy division as speaker. The lecture concerned the subject of religion.

As a result of working on concessions at the fall Homecoming game, the club's treasury, once at an embarrassing low, is now at new and respectable heights.

'Tinkerbelle' tale told tonight

"There comes a time that one must decide of one's dreams either to risk everything to achieve them, or sit for the rest of one's life in one's back yard."

This is the reason given by Robert Manry, who speaks tonight in the College Theatre, for sailing. Manry is captain of the 13½-foot sloop Tinkerbell, which, in the summer of 1965, made a 78-day trip across the Atlantic to set a new record for a boat of its size.

Manry was completely unsubsidized on his lone 3,000 mile trip. His equipment included a sextant, ocean charts, a radio transmitter for emergency messages, 28 gallons of fresh water and a solar still for freshening salt water, canned food for 90 days, two extra suits of sails, foul weather gear, medicines, books and photography equipment.

On June 1, 1965, the rebuilt 36 year-old boat set out from Falmouth, Massachusetts for Falmouth, England. On the trip, Manry says, "I saw a Portuguese man-of-war, a Russian trawler and a U.S. sub that came up with a loud honk. On the 69th day, a plane came bearing oranges, bananas and a welcome to British waters."

An estimated 50,000 people greeted Manry as he pulled into Falmouth.

The 47-year old copy editor of a Cleveland newspaper had to be talked into writing of his dangers at sea by Life Magazine who called him a "reluctant hero!" Manry later decided to write a book about his experiences.

Manry will present his talk, "Tinkerbelle's Run to Glory," tonight at 8:15 in the College Theatre. No admission will be charged.

Draft boards announce test sign-ups now

Applications for the March 11 and 31 and April 8 Selective Service College Qualification Test (SSCQT) are now available at local draft boards.

According to the Educational Testing Service, which prepares the SSCQT exam, it is to the student's advantage to file his application at once. By registering early, he stands the best chance of being assigned to the test center he has chosen. Because of the possibility that he may be assigned to any of the testing dates, it is important that he list a center for every date on which he will be available.

A bulletin of information concerning the exam is on hand at the Sentinel. The booklet outlines the selective service board's procedure with the exam, and also contains sample questions.

Cagers journey to Contra Costa tonight

By MIKE LUCAS
Sentinel Sports Editor

The Foothill College Basketball squad will travel to San Pablo this evening where they will be hosted by the Contra Costa Comets in a Golden Gate Conference contest scheduled to tip-off at 8 o'clock.

The Owls face their Blue and White opponents after a week of mixed success in the GGC race.

Last Friday evening the Owls scored a heart-stopping 59-57 victory over heavily-favored College of San Mateo when sharpshooting forward Jeff Frost sunk a 25 foot jump shot at the final buzzer to break a 57-all tie. Foothill had knotted the score just moments before when Bob Littell sunk a pair of free throws with 1:47 left in the ball game.

CSM's Bulldogs were taller and faster than their opponents, and the quick-footed Owney Williams with teammates Roosevelt Daurrough and Chris Dempsey had the Foothill Five playing catch-up the entire game.

But it was keenly-honed teamwork that saved the game for the hometown team. With Coach Chuck Crampton yelling, "Play as a team!" from the sidelines his back-court duo of Chuck Deegan and Bob Littell turned in the crisp combinations that kept Foothill close enough to snatch the victory with a big push in the closing seconds.

6 ft. 7 in. Owl center Howie Burford led his team in scoring with 14 counters, 4 behind game leader Owney Williams of CSM.

The victory over the ninth-ranked California JC cagers came in the wake of a thrilling double-overtime win at San Jose City College one week before.

Last Tuesday night, the Owls ran into some hard times as they were shot down by Chabot's hard-driving Gladiators 100-80. The Yellow and Brown hosts were led by Don Crenshaw, who outpointed everyone with 25 tallies, and Bill King and Boris Pesa who each sank the ball for 17 points.

Visiting Foothill wasn't prepared for Chabot's endless stream of fast breaks and, according to Coach Crampton after the game, "They were just one step ahead of us all the time."

After tonight's game, the Owl hoopers return to their home court as they host Merritt's Thunderbirds next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Co-ed fencer aims at Olympics

Miss Rene Zukerberg, a Foothill co-ed, has won medals at two recent fencing meets and is aiming for many more.

Last Sunday, Miss Zukerberg led her team to a Class B win at a meet of the Amateur Fencing League of America at San Francisco. The AFLA represents over 3500 U. S. fencers.

On January 14th, Miss Zukerberg placed 2nd at the Pillar Memorial Fencing Tournament close behind Tommy Angell, who is America's third ranking woman fencer. This makes Rene Zukerberg one of the nation's leading distaff sword artists.

On February 12, just a few weeks from now, Miss Zukerberg will compete in the Under 19 National Championships, which, if she is successful in them, can lead her, through the Pacific Coast and Northern California Inter-Collegiate Championships, to the Olympics. This would make her the first fencer, man or woman, ever to be sent by Foothill to the Olympic games.

Mermen to defend title

Foothill swimmers will open defense of their national title when they play host to three 4-year universities next week. On Monday the Owls face the University of Utah at 3:30. The meet will be a homecoming for three former Owl swimmers now swimming for Utah. Freestylers Al Logan, Tom Browne and Mike Garibaldi all won JC All-American honors at Foothill.

On Thursday the Owls face Washington in a 3:30 meet. Stanford, one of the nation's top teams, will invade the Foothill pool at 2 p.m. Saturday. Stanford features former Menlo-Atherton High star Dick Roth, an Olympic Gold Medal winner.

Foothill's team will feature JC All-American George Watson, considered by Coach Nort Thornton to be the greatest aquatic athlete in Foothill history. Watson will swim the distance freestyle. The Owls have three other top performers in this event: Ingvar Eriksson, an exchange student from Sweden, who holds several Swedish National records in freestyle and butterfly events; Ralph Hutton, a freshman from Los Altos High, who won eight medals in the Commonwealth Games in Jamaica last year, and who has also competed in the Olympics, and Frank Augenstein, who was a JC All-American last year.

Bob Kammeyer and George Girvin are the top freestyle sprint men. Kammeyer was a high school All-American. Girvin was a state finalist in high school.

Eriksson, Girvin, and top prospect Dick Oliver will compete in the butterfly for the Owls.

Eriksson, Hutton, Oliver, White and Robertson will handle the individual medley.

Diving coach Bob Campbell has three fine divers. Gordon Creed and Frank Groff are both international competitors while Gary Dahle is one of the top products of the local high schools.

Owl grapplers return to action against West Valley Monday

Foothill's wrestling squad will return to action Monday after a three week layoff for finals. The Owls will host West Valley at 5 p.m. Foothill won an earlier match between the two teams by a wide margin.

After Monday's match, the grapplers will be in for a busy week. On Wednesday they travel to Merritt to face the Thunderbirds, then return home Friday to host Diablo Valley, one of the strongest teams in the league. Foothill defeated Diablo, 21-20 earlier in the season. On Saturday the matmen will journey to Vallejo for the Vallejo JC Open tourney. On Monday, the Owls will face the Stanford Braves (Junior Varsity) at Stanford in a match beginning at 4:30.

The top wrestler for Foothill is Stan Hackett (191-pound) division. In nine matches, Stan has registered six pins, two forfeits, and one decision for a total of 43 points. A wrestler gains five points for his team if he wins by pin or forfeit. Three points are awarded for a decision. A wrestler's total is determined by subtracting the points the wrestler has lost for his team from his victories. Art Olmos and Scott Rehm have collected 32 points each to rank second. Bob Hicks has 28 points, amassed in just six matches.

Coach Walker hopes that these wrestlers and other top matmen can lead the Owls to the conference championships to be held at San Mateo Feb. 25.
