

Musical farce arriving

On Friday, March 22, De Anza's first musical production, "Money" by Axelrod, Whedon and Pottle, will be presented.

A dinner will be served before each performance. Doors will open for dinner at 6:45 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m. The show will begin at 8:15. The cabaret-style food and show will take place in the dining hall of the yet-to-be-opened Campus Center.

THE PRICE OF tickets will be $2.50 for the dinner and show, or $1 for the show only.

Tickets may be purchased at the Community Services Center. Tickets may be reserved by phone at 257-5550, Ext. 454. Tickets will also be sold at the door the night of each performance.

"Money" played for two years off Broadway at a club called Upstairs at the Downstairs. It began largely as an improvisational production. It tells of a millionaire, Harry Clay, who meets his "one perfect woman," Cynthia Burgess.

HARRY TAKES ONE look at her, falls deeply in love and asks Cynthia to marry him. The plot takes off from here when Cynthia says she will not marry him unless he gives up his easy life and goes out and gets a job.

"Money" is a musical satire with a plot typical to most life.

Another comical feature about "Money" is that all the characters except Harry Clay portray more than one character.

Dave Thomas plays about 15 different characters. Dave is the comedian of the group and is in his second semester at De Anza.

HAL SMITH, WHO plays Harry Clay, is also in his second semester at De Anza and is active in the Vets Club.

Melinda Haven plays Harry's girl friend, Cynthia. She is a freshman in her second semester at De Anza and is active in the De Anza Chorale.

Kent Clerk, vice-president of the Drama Club, portrays Bernie Bartok.

THE MUSICAL IS being directed by Dave Zarko, president of the Drama Club. Tom Combellick is assistant director and stage manager.

Finally, Jean Demouthe, secretary of the Drama Club, will be the accompanist.

Harry the hero has just entered the office of Charitable Institutions, Inc., where he finds Cynthia. After proclaiming his love, he promptly drops her to the floor, remembering he has come on business. (La Voz photo by Georg Von Muldau)

Heated talk sets stage for Sen. Bradley today

Senator Clark Bradley (R-San Jose) is speaking today in Forum 1 at 1 p.m. The senator will discuss "On the Duty of Civil Disobedience," by Thoreau.

The event is being sponsored by the Humanities Seminar as a part of The Experimental College.

Sen. Bradley, considered a conservative in political circles, recently was in the news for his denunciation of "The Immaculate Conception" in the Foothill College Fairly Free Thinker.

A condensation of the Thoreau essay is available in the Language Arts Office. Robert Bernasconi, one of the faculty coordinators for the Humanities Seminar, said, "Everyone interested in attending the event should read the essay beforehand."

La Voz Staff Writer

"The Duty of Civil Disobedience" by Thoreau was discussed last Monday as a preview to the appearance of Senator Clark Bradley. The discussion was led by James Luotto and Robert Bernasconi, English instructors. Luotto and Bernasconi are the faculty coordinators for the Humanities Seminar course being offered by the Experimental College.

ATTENDANCE at the discussion was estimated at 100 persons. Those attending all shared if not the same opinion, a deep concern over rioting and its legality. The majority present agreed that the Negro had cause to riot but the agreement ended at this point.

The central theme of the discussion was do Americans have a duty to disobey laws in order to protest the plight of the Negro today just as Thoreau did 100 years ago? If in fact this is a duty, how far should the individual be willing to go?

Bernasconi suggested that if a government ignores its people and their problems doesn't that government leave the individual no alternative but to disassociate himself from it and obey the higher laws of his conscience.

THOREAU'S VIEWS on voting were extended by Bernasconi when he said, "If the majority at last voted to do away with ghettos, by then there would be no ghettos."

Many felt that the time to correct social injustice was before there were no alternatives but to riot.

The question was raised as to whether Thoreau was advocating anarchy in his essay. Luotto said, "Nowhere does he deny the need for structure."

WITH THE impending threat of riots this summer one student felt that it was important that

Musical debut for center

The De Anza College Chorale and the Vintage Singers will stage an evening of music and refreshment March 15 and 16 in the newly-opened Campus Center.

Under the direction of Royal Stanton, chairman of the Fine Arts division at De Anza College, the 60-voice Chorale and the 20-voice Vintage Singers will perform a variety of musical styles ranging from sixteenth century motets to pop tunes as "Up, Up and Away."

FEATURED SOLO group will be "The Uncalled Four," a male quartet comprised of Jon Mack, Don Mack and Paul Heath, all of Sunnyvale, and Berne Sandberg of Santa Clara. The group will sing several traditional barbershop selections and some pieces in the popular vein.

The ticket price includes coffee and shortcake served to each member of the audience. The informal atmosphere will be heightened by seating the audience around tables in the manner of a traditional "pops" concert.

TICKETS FOR THIS 'n' Coffee Concert are $1.50 general and $1 for students with student body cards. Tickets are avail-

ASDAC events postponed due to construction delays

The scheduled dates of several campus activities, including the Mardi Gras dance, the Spring Formal, the Barn Dance and the Student Government Awards Banquet, have been changed due to a delay in the construction of the Campus Center.

Expected to be completed and ready for students by March 1, the opening date for the Campus Center has now been set for approximately March 15.

The first event to be held in the new campus center is the Cake and Coffee Concert by the De Anza Chorale and the Vintage Singers on March 15 and 16.

Bookstore open soon

The opening of the Winery, which houses the Bookstore and Coffee Shop, will be delayed until March 22. This opening date was given by Dr. Calvin C. Flint, district superintendent, at the recent Foothill Junior College District Board of Trustees meeting. The delay is due to some construction difficulties.

In other board action, Dr. Flint, who attended a meeting with the Citizens Committee which assists with foreign students, told the board that the committee recommends three resolutions.

One, the number of students on both campuses be lowered to 1 per cent of the entire student body. Right now the number is 1½ per cent. Two, that more technical students be accepted in both schools. Three, that the district make an attempt to obtain students who wouldn't have the opportunity for the education otherwise.

able from members of the Chorale and Vintage Singers and are on sale at the Office of Community Services on the De Anza campus. General admission tickets, not including refreshments, will be available at the door.

As a result of this delay, many activities on the calendar had to be changed to later dates.

The Mardi Gras dance will be held March 30. It had previously been scheduled for March 9.

The Spring Formal, previously scheduled for May 3, has been postponed to May 17.

The Barn Dance will be held May 3. It had been scheduled for March 29.

Pass/fail worth a try

A revolutionary concept in higher education has been the institution of pass/fail grading. Its repeated success in several colleges and universities across the country has encouraged a group of De Anza students and administrators to consider its use here.

The "revolutionary" aspect of pass/fail grading is that it replaces the absurdity of students working for a grade. They may not admit it, but most students are after a letter grade, whether they learn something in the process or not.

Presumably, a "pass" would mean a satisfactory comprehension or mastery of a skill or subject. Some colleges also include a written evaluation by the instructor, certainly more beneficial to the student than a meaningless letter.

For the 'C' student who cares about nothing but passing, a pass/fail system will not be much of a change. But for the better student whose primary concern has not been simply coasting but working for a 'B' or 'A', learning for its own sake just might return.

Perhaps pass/fail doesn't belong at De Anza. That's what a committee is looking into. But we think it's worth a try. Certainly, a trial program of one pass/fail course per quarter in a student's non-major would be a safe, logical beginning.

Alternative sought for draft

The Committee for Relevant Education, a Stanford University-based organization of Bay Area students and faculty, hopes to provide a meaningful alternative to the draft.

The committee, headed by Dr. Harry Rathman, Stanford law professor, is seeking a change in the present selective service laws that would allow an inductee to work in the nation's ghettos, mental institutions, hospitals or schools instead of the regular military training.

LESLIE CAMPBELL, liaison to De Anza College, explained that the proposed system would guarantee the military its required quota of men.

An inductee could choose either the military or domestic work, or have no preference. The military would meet its quota by first taking enlisted men, then those who signed up for military duty when inducted, and finally those who gave no preference.

If the military still didn't meet its quota, a lottery would be conducted among those men preferring domestic work. Those selected would be transferred into the military.

AFFILIATED WITH the Committee for Relevant Education are two organizations comprising 5,000 Bay Area men and women, the National Service Foundation and the Women to Women Building the Earth for the Children's Sake.

The National Service Foundation is a men's organization that is presently working for financial and political support for the proposed draft amendment among business leaders.

The Women to Women Building the Earth for the Children's Sake is a women's organization working to get 100,000 people to attend a mass meeting May 26 at the Stanford Stadium. Committee leaders are confident they can fill the stadium.

A "CHALLENGE to Change" conference will be held April 19, 20, 21 on the Stanford University campus for interested students. Room and board for the conference is $7.50. Committee leaders are hoping that up to 70 De Anza students will attend.

Checks for the conference may be made out to:

De Anza psychologist hired

A staff psychologist will be hired next year for each of the two campuses in the Foothill Junior College District.

In a printed circular presented to the board of trustees at a recent meeting by Dr. Thomas Clements, dean of students at De Anza College, "The college psychologist performs two major functions within the framework of the Student Personnel Program.

"First, as a consultant with the counseling staff, he works with the counselors individually and in groups on an in-service basis to improve skills in personal counseling and helps counselors to determine when referral to an outside agency is necessary."

The statement continued, "Secondly, the psychologist works with students referred to him by counselors and determines whether the student's problems can be handled at the personal counseling level by the psychologist or a counselor. If the student is in need of therapy, he is referred to an outside agency."

Underwater adventures highlight film show at FJC

The Community Film Series will present tonight, March 8, Jacques Cousteau's "World Without Sun" and Dan McLaughlin's short subject, "God Is Dog Spelled Backwards."

Cousteau's underwater adventure film tells the story of experiments conducted by his research team who lived for long periods in an underwater laboratory.

"One day," Cousteau predicts, "man will walk on the sea bed as we now walk on the boulevards." In this film, Cousteau demonstrates how this prediction may come true.

McLaughlin's short film is a three-minute survey of art history animated at extremely high speeds. The film was most successful at Foothill's sixth annual Independent Film-Makers' Festival last June.

The films will be shown at Appreciation Hall at Foothill College at 8 p.m. Admission is 75 cents at the door.

Mansion to be quake proof

Le Petit Trianon will be renovated and made earthquake proof within the next year, Emil Portale of Community Services said. At present, it is unsafe for use by California earthquake standards.

Foothill Junior College District will pay 39 per cent of the cost, a total of $59,830. The remainder will be paid by the state in accordance with Assembly Bill 450, which allows funds for unsafe school renovations.

Completion of the project will be in approximately one year. The building is located north of the library.

Father haters to entertain

The "Oedipus Complex" will provide the beat for the free Co-Rec dance and light show to be held Tuesday, March 12.

Student body cards will be needed for admittance to the 8-10 p.m. dance to be held in the Planetarium.

DAC dance attendance off

EDWARD SOLDANI

JANE MARTIN

Man, woman of year announced by B of A

De Anza students Jane Martin and Edward Soldani have been selected as the school's $50 winners of the Man and Woman of the Year, sponsored by the Bank of America.

Mrs. Martin, a sophomore business administration major, has maintained a grade point average of 3.58. She works part time as an accountant for the Daytel Corporation in Palo Alto.

In addition, she is active in Girl Scouts, Volunteers of America, hospital service work and is a licensed beautician. She plans to become a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) after a two to three-year apprenticeship and later plans to teach.

Soldani is a sophomore accounting major. He has been active in the DAC German Club, has been Tri-I treasurer and is a member of the International Club. He intends to continue his academic work at San Jose State and later hopes to obtain a Master's degree in business or economics.

As a CPA he hopes to be able to set up an accounting firm and perhaps teach in the future.

The awards are made on the basis of good scholarship, participation and leadership in college activities and service to college and community.

De Anza's dances the past semester have been received with something less than wild enthusiasm, according to Roberta Goulding, ASDAC director of activities.

"We have not had a dance that has made money," Miss Goulding explained. In fact, two dances this semester have been cancelled because no club wanted to lose money by sponsoring one.

MISS GOULDING attributes this to a general feeling of non-interest on the part of the student body. She said that although publicity "could be better", the problem has not been one of lack of communication of upcoming dances.

Miss Goulding speculated that part of the reason for a lack of attendance at the dances has been the wrong kind of band. The very first dance, the welcome dance in early September, featured the South Side Sound System, direct from an engagement at the Fillmore Auditorium. The band cost $850, the College made $350, resulting in a $500 loss.

The last dance featured the ZU, who play more "popular" music. This dance was the most popular of any, but still only 240 students attended. Miss Goulding considers 500 to 600 students a good turnout.

MISS GOULDING expressed hope that the upcoming Mardi Gras dance will witness a marked increase in attendance since it will be held in the new Campus Center instead of the gym or the temporary student lounge, where previous dances had been held. The Mardi Gras, to be held March 30, will feature the student dedication of the Campus Center, and the naming of the private dining rooms and burro, De Anza's mascot.

Any persons interested in helping De Anza's dances are welcome, said Miss Goulding.

Trackmen to Santa Rosa

The De Anza cindermen travel tomorrow to participate in the Santa Rosa Relays. The Don trackmen placed third last Friday in a five-way meet held at Sacramento State College.

The field consisted of Sacramento State Frosh, Yuba, Sierra, Sacramento City College and De Anza. Sacramento City ran away with the meet with a total score of 128, while Sierra grabbed second with 84 points.

Grady Rogers claimed the Dons' only first place when he triple jumped 45' 2", almost two feet better than his closest competitors. A close second went to Wes Hunter in the 440 when he came in at the same time as Tom Allen of Sacramento City at 51.1, but the officials' nod went to Allen.

The Dons also received a second in the mile relay when they were caught at the wire by Sierra. In spite of their limited number, the cindermen gave a good account of themselves.

Money, fame for burro name

Starting Monday, ASDAC will be sponsoring a contest to determine names for the school mascot (a burro) and the fountain on the north side of the Library.

"Students turning in suggestions should keep in mind the traditions and atmosphere of the school. For example, the historical events of the site," said Jan Shanahan, ASDAC publicity chairman.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners, who will be announced at the Mardi Gras Dance March 30. March 25 is the deadline for suggestions.

Boxes for entries will be placed in the pool area and in the new campus center once it is open, according to Miss Shanahan.

Cooling units due in June

The air conditioning systems of the Fine Arts Division buildings and the new Bookstore facility will not be in operation before late June.

"The air conditioning equipment is already installed in the buildings but there is no chilled water to create chilled air," explained William Cutler, director of Business Services for the district.

Both systems were supposed to be connected with the auditorium's air conditioning. However, the auditorium will not be a reality for some time yet.

As a result, the district has decided to install the chilling equipment on a concrete pad where it would have been in a drama hall which is supposed to be built on the north side of the proposed auditorium. The hall will be built around the unit when the building itself is constructed, according to Cutler.

The project is scheduled for completion by June 15, in time for summer school classes but too late for classes this semester.

Stars and Stripes forever

By J. MARTIN
La Voz Staff Writer

I used to think I was an individual, but thank God my draft board straightened me out. I returned from the Oakland Induction Center an enlightened pawn. FLASH: We are all pawns.

Is it not strange how we all have the silly notion each of us is an individual?

YESSIR, WE'RE all pawns. However, we men are indeed lucky — we get numbers (kindly supplied by the Selective Service) to distinguish us from the other numbers.

As you enter the main door of AFEES (induction center) at the ungodly hour of 6:52 A.M. you first become aware of resistance to the draft as a long-hair passes out anti-draft literature. You smile and take one because you're bored to death and groggy; anyway, right now you're actually considering resistance.

The last words you hear from the long-hair is his warning not to sign the security clearance papers.

FINALLY, SOME army person calls you to the desk. "Ho kay, take these papers with the U. S. Government two-cent paper slip and follow the brown line to the second floor."

Upstairs, you file into a long line for processing, and the first thing you wake up to is a needle for the blood test. "Ya all take off ya shirts so's we kin get ah sample ya blood, hear?"

The guy with long hair in front of you extends his right arm and points to a particular vein and says to the colored medic, "Hey man, hit this one, it's the only good one left." The medic smiles knowingly. (Gee, I never saw a real crystal freak up close before.)

THE BIG FOOTBALL hero who has been laughing at all the skinny guys stares at the blood being removed from his arm and promptly passes out.

On the third floor we all get to see a doctor who doesn't even look at you. Here's where it gets interesting, listening to all the guys talk about their ills.

"Gee, doc, I don't want to complain, but I'm totally blind and the guy testing my eyes at station 8 says I got 20-20 vision."

THE DOCTOR stares (must be a faker): "How in the hell do I know you're blind? Prove it."

"Right, doc, I always walk around with a guide dog."

Next guy: "Lithping, who's lithping? Thay, are you accuthing me of being a homothexual?"

AND SO IT GOES: "Well hoc, er doc, well yeah man, like it all started like when I dropped two tabs of acid at Seventh St. bus, uh depot, and er, I freaked out for two or nine hours. But, okay am I, doc?"

The guys here seem to be upset over the fact they are no longer considered human beings. The situation is easily summed up: We are cattle coming through an assembly line. The cars on the Ford assembly line receive more compassion and consideration.

Downstairs again: "Hey, they just tried to bust me for the camera (lifts sweater exposing camera). Cops and all. So this stupid Oakland fuzz asks the sargent if the army wanted to press charges. The sargent says he let me off if I gave him the camera. Hell no, I said, I know my rights. They knew that I knew; they blew it and couldn't do nothing. So they let me go."

THE ELDER gentleman next to me (who looked like Dr. Frank Baxter of the Bell Telephone science film series) is interesting because he has a funny scar on his forehead. Just when I begin to start a conversation he gets up and goes over to the guy with the camera.

Dr. Baxter turns out to be with the FBI and takes the guy to a small office elsewhere.

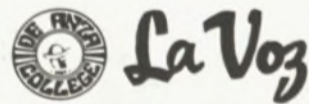

The draft board takes good care of you if you have to spend the night. They supply you with room and food, and the opportunity to walk the streets of Oakland in the rain.

HONESTLY, IT'S fun watching television tragedies with the old men in the lobby if you dig on being bored out of your mind. I got so bored that I stood and watched them dig the BART tunnel for two hours in the rain. I gave it up and went back to the hotel where some guy asked me for a date.

After Oakland, you are initiated as a pawn. You've been with the military for only 30 hours and you're already starting to hate the two or more years you haven't even begun yet.

Publically I think the draft board is swell, and the Oakland Induction Center a very nice place to visit, though I wish the floors were warmer.

NorCal Meet

Owls win going away

Foothill recorded an impressive victory in the Northern California wrestling tournament held here Saturday. The Owls pinned down 83 points to 65 for second place Diablo Valley.

Despite a winning effort by Bob Garcia over Foothill's Cleave Holt in the 191 pound class, the Don's were able to muster only a fourth place. The De Anza grapplers did put four men in the finals and two others in consolation matches.

The Dons' other finalists all took seconds. Burt Dudgeon felt the sting of defeat when he lost 6-0 by Jeff Fern of Chabot in the 137 class. The next Don to be defeated was Dave Brigham at 167 pounds when Saul Nava of Chabot scored an 8-1 victory over the tough Don grappler. Nava later received the "outstanding wrestler award" for his victory over Brigham.

The last De Anza man to suffer defeat was Bill Harrigan in the 177 pound class, who lost at the hands of Gene Hansen who outscored Harrigan, eight to one.

The next test for the wrestlers comes this Saturday at the Cal State J.C. championships. The top four in each weight class from the NorCal tournament will be sent to meet the best from the South. This tournament will be held at Chabot.

Golfers face Panthers; More practice for Dons

De Anza's golf team takes its 0-3 conference record to Salinas Tuesday to battle the Hartnell Panthers.

Earlier this season, the Dons dropped decisions to Monterey Peninsula College, Laney and Gavilan. The duffers have been improving with each match, but, according to coach Bob Pifferini, the other teams are always a little better.

The team to beat in the Coast Conference this season, in Pifferini's opinion, is West Valley, with Monterey Peninsula College in a dark horse role.

The Dons don't practice quite enough to be consistent winners, Pifferini explained. To be a champion, the Don mentor said that one should practice seven to eight hours a day. But despite a gloomy outlook, Pifferini does expect to win a few matches this year.

Utt paces Don scores

The De Anza basketball team, 1968 Coast Conference champion, played Pasadena College, the nation's number one junior college basketball team, last night but because of the La Voz deadline, that score is unavailable.

The following statistics cover the Dons' 27 games of the 1967-1968 season and include players who are no longer on the team.

this generation didn't make the mistake of waiting too long to make a move to correct the problem peacefully.

An opposite view was expressed by another student who felt that legal means had not yet been exhausted. "The solution doesn't rest in the ghettos but in us, the ones outside."

Both Luotto and Bernasconi felt the discussion was successful in generating interest in the forthcoming speech by Senator Bradley.

ABOUT THE concern displayed by the students, Bernasconi said, "I sense a kind of frustration because they've been given no alternatives."

RIGHT ACROSS THE STREET FROM DE ANZA

De Anza bats sing dirge for non-conference foes

When the bat of Dennis Ferguson speaks, De Anza baseball foes listen. The flashy Don shortstop came up with the best display of power in De Anza's short history.

Ferguson came to the plate eight times in a pair of week-end games with non-conference opponents, Reedley and Coalinga, and reached base safely seven times.

THE DONS OUTHIT Reedley, 11-10, in their home opener Friday but dropped a tough 7-6 decision. Reedley mounted a 5-1 lead before the Don bats responded to the offerings of Tiger starter Bill McGill.

A four-run De Anza rally drove McGill to cover in the seventh inning, with Art Reyes then coming into the fray. Len Zures unloaded a three-run homer off the offerings of Reyes, sending the game into the eighth inning deadlocked at 5-5.

De Anza pitcher Tom Griffin was the victim of sloppy fielding as Reedley tallied twice in the top of the eighth to take a 7-5 lead.

THE DONS CAME back with a single run in the bottom of the eighth.

Coach Ed Bressoud got encouraging pitching performances from hurlers Jim Phann and Raleigh Rhodes in registering a 7-2 win over the Coalinga Falcons.

Pfann went the first five innings, allowing one run, for the win. Rhodes did a good mop-up job in his four-inning stint as he fanned six enemy batters.

Lobos host Dons; Hawks fall 60-53

Hoping to hold onto their edge of first place in the Coast Conference swimming standings, the De Anza tankmen play the powerful Monterey Peninsula College Lobos today in their second conference meet of the season. The meet is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. at the Lobo's pool.

The Dons took possession of first place with a 60-53 win over Cabrillo Friday.

THE DONS registered seven firsts out of the eleven events, plus five seconds and a pair of thirds. Mark Evans and Jim Wilten were double winners for the Dons.

Evans captured the 200 freestyle with a clocking of 1:58.9, beating out teammate Rick Foreman by five seconds. Evans also scored a first in the 500 freestyle with a good time of 5:54.3, almost a minute ahead of his closest challenger.

Wilten displayed his skill with a quick 23.4 time in the 50 freestyle. Bob Pugh also added a point to the Dons' total with a third place in the same event. Wilten also took the 100 free in 52.1, finishing ahead of Foreman who recorded a 54.3.

SINGLE WINNERS were Lance Dilloway in the 200 backstroke (2:11.5), Pugh in the 200 backstroke (2:35.5) and the De Anza 400 freestyle relay time of 3:33.1.

Mike Iwanciw came through with a third-place finish in the grueling 1,000-yard freestyle and a second in the 200 butterfly.
